Ottawa Firm On Powers

Social Aid Transfer Vetoed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government today again rejected a Quebec demand that all social security measures be placed under provincial control.

Also rejected was the demand that Ottawa make payments—such as family allowances — to the provinces rather than to individuals.

A working paper prepared for the fourth federal-provincial constitutional conference here Monday to Wednesday said transfer of family and youth allowances and old age pensions to the provinces would cost the federal treasury more than $2,400,000,000 annually.

The paper also maintained that acts of Parliament in the field of retirement pensions —for example, the Canada Pension Plan—should over-ride provincial statutes such as the Quebec Pension Plan.

"In respect of retirement insurance and associated benefits Parliament's powers ought to be paramount," the federal paper said.

Apart from this proposal for additional federal powers, Ottawa appeared to come out in favor of the status quo in the field of distribution of powers as they apply to social services and income support.

The paper said the provinces ought to have exclusive jurisdiction over social services.

SUGGESTS EQUAL POWERS

Parliament and the provincial legislatures should have equal powers to make general income support payments to persons. Examples of such payments are family allowances and old age pensions.

Ottawa and the provinces should continue to have "concurrent powers" in public income insurance measures such as old age pensions and supplementary benefits. Unemployment insurance would continue exclusively federal, workmen's compensation exclusively provincial.

ONLY TENTATIVE

The paper emphasized that the federal proposals are tentative, conditional on agreement on final distribution of powers and are not intended to prejudice existing programs.

It noted that Quebec has asked that all social security measures be placed under exclusive provincial jurisdiction.

It immediately rejected the proposal that Ottawa make payments to the governments of the provinces rather than to the people.

"Bluntly, a sense of community is less likely to exist where taxes are imposed to help governments rather than to help people. . . .

"The provinces would be under no obligation to use these grants for the purpose of supporting the incomes of the poor. "They could use them instead for any purpose—including in-

YARD SUSPENDS FOUR POLICEMEN

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard today suspended from active duty four detectives, three of whom were alleged by a London newspaper to have accepted bribes from criminals.

A Scotland Yard spokesman identified the four suspended officers as Det. Inspector Bernard J. Robson, Det. Sgt. Gordon F. Harris, Det. Sgt. John Symonds and Det. Officer Harold Hughes. All were taken off duty today the spokesman said.

Canada, Britain Clash on Cutback

Times News Services

BRUSSELS—Canada and Britain clashed here Wednesday during the NATO defence planning committee meeting, over a proposed Canadian reduction of forces in Europe.

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux took exception to the way British defence chief Denis Healey spoke of the Canadian halving of land forces in West Germany and talked back at him in what was described as "strong and eloquent" language.

The words exchanged at the closed meeting were not on record but Cadieux said he considered that by inference Healey was being critical of the Canadian move.

A year ago when word of the impending Canadian reduction became public Healey in a briefing to British correspondents accused Canada of "passing the buck" to her allies.

Wednesday he told the NATO defence ministers Britain hopes to ship her 5,000-man 6th Brigade to West Germany soon and was reported to have inferred that Canada was taking out her entire brigade group there and that the Britons would replace it.

Cadieux immediately reminded the meeting Canada is leaving 2,800 men of the brigade in Germany. Other observers then pointed out that Britain, in fact, withdrew her 6th Brigade from West Germany in 1967 as an economy move.

Massacre 'Whitewash' Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Army investigators looking into a possible coverup of the alleged My Lai massacre of South Vietnamese civilians called for questioning today Capt. Ernest Medina, commander of the unit reported to be involved in the incident.

Medina was the immediate superior of Lieut. William L. Calley Jr., the army platoon leader charged with premeditated murder in the deaths of at least 109 civilians at My Lai March 16, 1968.

The inquiry is an attempt to determine if a brigade-level investigation last year into reports civilians were killed unnecessarily was whitewashed. Interviewed Wednesday were five officers who were in Vietnam at the time of the incident.

A spokesman for the board, headed by Lt.-Gen. William R. Peers, said it was not satisfied with the scope and nature of the investigation by the 11th Infantry Brigade of the army's American Division, which concluded 20 civilians had been killed.

INDIAN WRITER CHARGES:

Our People Worse Off Than Whooping Cranes

The Times today begins an exclusive three-part condensation of Indian author Harold Cardinal's controversial book, The Unjust Society, which was released to bookstores across Canada this morning.

In it, Cardinal delivers a harsh condemnation of the Canadian social and government systems calculated to stir the public to action against what he contends are gross injustices done to the native peoples of this country.

Cardinal, born in 1945, was raised on the Sucker Creek Reserve in Northern Alberta and is now president of the Indian Association of Alberta.

By HAROLD CARDINAL

Now, at a time when our fellow Canadians consider the promise of the Just Society, once more the Indians of Canada are betrayed by a program which offers nothing better than cultural genocide.

The new Indian policy promulgated by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's government, under the auspices of Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, and Deputy Minister John A. MacDonald, and presented in June of 1969, is a thinly disguised program of extermination through assimilation. For the Indian to survive, says the government in effect, he must become a good little brown white man.

The Americans to the south of us used to have a saying: "The only good Indian is a dead Indian." The MacDonald - Chretien doctrine would amend this but slightly to, "The only good Indian is a non-Indian."

The federal government, instead of acknowledging its legal and moral responsibilities to the Indians of Canada and honoring the treaties that the Indians signed in good faith, now proposes to wash its hands of Indians entirely, passing the buck to the provincial governments.

As an Indian writing about a situation I am living and experiencing in common with thousands of our people it is my hope that this book will open the eyes of the Canadian public to its shame. In these pages I hope to cut through bureaucratic double-talk to show what it means to be an Indian in Canada.

It sometimes seems to Indians that Canada shows more interest in preserving its rare whooping cranes than its Indians. And Canada, the Indian notes, does not ask its cranes to become Canada geese. It just wants to preserve them as whooping cranes.

Indians hold no grudge against the big, beautiful, nearly extinct birds, but we would like to know how they managed their deal. Whooping cranes can remain whooping cranes, but Indians are to become brown white men.

The contrast in the situation is an insult to our people. Indians have aspirations, hopes and dreams, but becoming white men is not one of them.

INDIAN MORTALITY RATE RISING

VANCOUVER (CP) — The mortality rate of Indians in Canada is rising, says a letter distributed to regional directors of the federal health and welfare and Indian affairs departments.

The letter, signed by G. Graham Cummings of Ottawa for the acting director-general of medical services, Ottawa, was published Wednesday in The First Citizen, a Vancouver-based native-oriented bi-monthly newspaper.

The letter, dated Oct. 20, said the Indian mortality rate increased 8 per cent from 1965 to 1968.

DECREASES OFFSET

"Increased mortality among young Indians since 1965 has more than offset decreases in infant and childhood mortality and increased the standardized Indian death rate," the letter said.

"If Indian infant mortality remains cause for concern at a rate of 2.5 times the national infant mortality rate, Indian mortality between the ages of 20 to 39 years has ranged from over three to five times the comparable national . . . mortality rates.

"The situation among Indians in British Columbia remains in all respects the worst in Canada.

"By contrast, Indian death rates and patterns of mortality in Quebec differ hardly at all from those of all residents of that province."

Warm Clothing Need 'Urgent'

Winters are cold in Korea.

There have been cases of entire families freezing to death because of a lack of warm clothing.

This winter is going to seem especially cold for several thousand families who lost their homes and all their possessions in disastrous floods in September.

Emergency feeding and shelter has been provided but the need for warm clothing and quilts is still urgent.

CLOTHING

A small dedicated group of Victorians work year-round to mend, pack and ship clothing to Korea for the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada.

In November, a shipment of 3,543 pounds of clothing and quilts was sent from the USC depot at 2333 Government St.

The USC Victoria work group under chairman Mrs. E. G. Woodward is looking for clothing donations during the Children of Asia campaign now under way.

There are a few basic rules.

The USC sends only warm, practical and wearable clothing overseas.

"We are pleased to get any used clothing but we would appreciate it if they are clean," said Mrs. Woodward.

Men's trousers and children's clothing top the list of needed articles. Women's clothing, other than dresses of

Bonner to Testify On Business Links

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Bonner, former attorney-general of British Columbia whose name has been linked with the administrator of the B.C. Brewers' Institute, has been called to testify before the B.C. Liquor Inquiry Commission.

Arthur Fouks, institute administrator, earlier told the inquiry that he and Bonner have been partners in an apartment building for about 2½ years.

Bonner, now a senior executive with MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., resigned his portfolio May 27, 1968.

The attorney-general's department is responsible for the provincial Liquor Act. The Brewers' Institute is an organization formed by the province's four major breweries—Carlings, O'Keefe's, Labatts and Molsons.

Bonner said Wednesday night in an interview there was "no question" that Fouks was his business partner, but he said the apartment building they own is "a family estate matter on both sides."

"We are not in business in the commercial sense of the word," he said.

Bonner said there was no conflict of interest when he was attorney-general.

CEASEFIRE IN VIETNAM

Shots Stop for Christmas

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government today announced a 24-hour ceasefire for Christmas and another one for New Year's.

President Nguyen Van Thieu's office said the Christmas ceasefire would begin at 6 p.m. Dec. 24 (2 a.m. PST) and end at 6 p.m. Christmas Day. The announcement said the New Year ceasefire would run from 6 p.m. Dec. 31 to 6 p.m. Jan. 1.

A United States mission spokesman said American forces also would abide by the ceasefires, as with previous Christmas and New Year truces.

Last year, the South Vietnamese announced a ceasefire for Christmas but refused to call one for New Year's Day.

The announcement of the ceasefires came shortly after the U.S. command disclosed that 70 Americans were killed in Vietnam last week, one of the lowest weekly death tolls of the war. But the 1,049 Americans wounded pushed total U.S. battlefield casualties in the war past the 300,000-mark to 300,829.

South Vietnamese casualty totals also were down last week, with the government reporting 373 of its soldiers killed and 953 wounded.

Headquarters said 2,177 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were killed. The week before these death tolls were 567 government soldiers and 3,220 guerrillas killed.

'GROUP OF SEVEN' PAINTINGS SOLD

MONTREAL (CP) — Nine paintings by three members of the Group of Seven Canadian artists were sold Wednesday for prices ranging from $85 to $2,300 at a public auction conducted by Fraser Brothers.

Sold were four paintings by Arthur Lismer, four by A. Y. Jackson and one by J. E. H. MacDonald.

Among the paintings, Bow River near Banff, Foothills, Alberta, and Go Home Bay, two oils by A. Y. Jackson, sold for $2,300 each.

Divers Seek Clues To Aircraft Crash

CARACAS (AP) — Rescuers pulled bodies, clothing and parts of an Air France airliner from the shark-infested waters of the Caribbean today, and said there was no hope that any of the 62 persons reported aboard the big jet had survived its plunge into the sea Wednesday night.

By early morning, the bodies of 11 women, and nine men had been taken from the waters off La Guaira port, seven miles north of Caracas.

The search area was in waters 100 to 150 feet deep. Divers were to go down at dawn to seek clues to the cause of the crash.

The Boeing 707 jet crashed from 33,000 feet shortly after taking off from Caracas on a flight from Santiago, Chile, to Paris. It had stopped at Lima, Peru; Guayaquil, Ecuador; Bogota, Colombia; and Caracas.

cotton or flimsy material, are also needed.

Mittens, gloves, snowsuits, cardigans and pullovers are much in demand.

In 1967, as a Centennial project, the USC sent 1,967 quilts to Korea. The project has been continued with quilts, made by senior citizens, womens' organizations, church groups, schools, brownies, guides and individuals.

In Hong Kong, shipments of Canadian clothing are sent to two day-care centres where 380 parents leave their children.

"There is never really enough clothing sent," said Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, USC executive director who was in Hong Kong earlier this year for a clothing distribution.

DENTAL EQUIPMENT

"The gratitude of these people who are struggling just for an existence for themselves and their children is genuine," she said.

The November shipment of clothing to Korea from Victoria contained a bonus, $2,400 worth of dental instruments, donated by a retired dentist.

USC Korean workers have already set up a clinic in Mokpo and have arranged for a weekly visit from a dentist.

Computers Tote Doctors' Tax

A decision on what information to release about doctors' payments under the B.C. Medical Services plan won't be made for some time, Provincial Secretary Wesley Black said today.

Black said results of computer runs producing the information will not be available and analysed for "a few months."

He said doctors have expressed their views about the disclosure of their medicare incomes which was ordered Oct. 17 by the provincial cabinet.

Asked if the type of information to be released is a subject of negotiation with the doctors, Black declines a direct answer but pointed out that the medical plan contract with B.C. doctors expires in late 1970 and will have to be renegotiated.

"I work with the doctors and that working arrangement has been excellent up to now, Black said.

He said there may be further meetings with doctors on the disclosure question. Under the Financial Information Act payments by public bodies in excess of $500 a year must be disclosed.

Liquor Profits Nil—Bennett

Premier Bennett said today there's "no net profit to the government of British Columbia from liquor."

Bennett said that costs of the "jail system, all our institutions and social welfare" are related to liquor consumption.

He was replying to charges from former Vancouver police chief Ralph Booth that the province makes huge liquor profits without putting any of it back into solving problems arising from use of liquor.

The government cleared $56 million last year in sale of beer, wine and liquor.

Canadian Pen Guards Threaten Walkout

OTTAWA (CP) — Prison guards in 34 federal institutions have voted to strike if compulsory arbitration doesn't produce an offer better than the two-per-cent pay increase made by the government.

The 2,100 prison employees are designated under federal law as a group that can't go on strike because of the nature of their work. They guard about 6,000 prisoners.

"This would be an illegal strike," agreed Paul Gascon, chief union negotiator, in an interview Wednesday.

"There may be serious consequences for us but we have no alternative."

Union leaders who encourage an illegal strike can be fined $300 and union members $100. The union itself can be fined $150 a day for the length of the strike.

"If they show that kind of irresponsibility, they don't deserve two per cent," a federal spokesman said.

He said there is an emergency plan to staff prisons with troops in event of a strike.

"We don't expect them to take two per cent any more seriously than we take 27 per cent," the spokesman said. The union package is said to amount to a 27-per-cent demand.

Wives of guards from two British Columbia institutions picketed the Harrison Hot Springs hotel at which the Liberal policy conference was held last month.

The women paraded outside with placards saying: "Welfare cheques and pen cheques — nearly equal."

Gascon said that if arbitration under Mr. Justice Andre Montpetit of Montreal, who helped settle the postal dispute last year, doesn't produce a satisfactory contract, "there will be a general walkout."

'BAD FAITH'

He said he knows this could mean riots and prison breaks but it would be the fault of the government for "negotiating in bad faith."

The last contract, under which salaries range from $5,027 to a maximum $7,843, expired Sept. 30, 1968, and negotiations began last July.

dustrial promotion schemes or even tax reductions. . . .

"The government of Canada would not be able to support any suggestion that Parliament ought to finance the take-over by the provinces of exclusive jurisdiction over income support."

WOULD HURT GOVERNMENT

A fundamental economic reason for denying the provinces exclusive jurisdiction is that "the ability of the government of Canada to stabilize the economy would be seriously undermined," the paper said.

If jurisdiction were transferred to the provinces, Ottawa would also have to transfer to them an additional 32 per cent of the basic personal income tax plus an extra $500,000,000 in equalization grants.

Ottawa would be left with less than 25 per cent of the basic income tax.

"It has become evident that income redistribution between the rich and the poor across the country . . . could only be accomplished by the government which is responsible for the well-being of all Canadians," the paper said.

The paper is the eighth submitted to the continuing constitutional conference by Ottawa since February, 1968.

It offered a point-by-point rebuttal to Quebec's claim that the provinces should assume responsibility for federal family allowances and old age security.

'Double A Rating'

British Columbia municipalities have a good credit rating, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today on his return from New York where he talked finance with Wall Street brokers.

"The credit rating of any B.C. municipality will be higher than any in the country," he said, adding that the new B.C. Municipal Capital Financing Authority will have "at least a double A rating."

Campbell said money is extremely tight, pointing out that Quebec is currently in the market for "9.88 per cent money."

Anyone who fails to practise restraint in a market like that "is not being responsible," he said.

The Weather and You

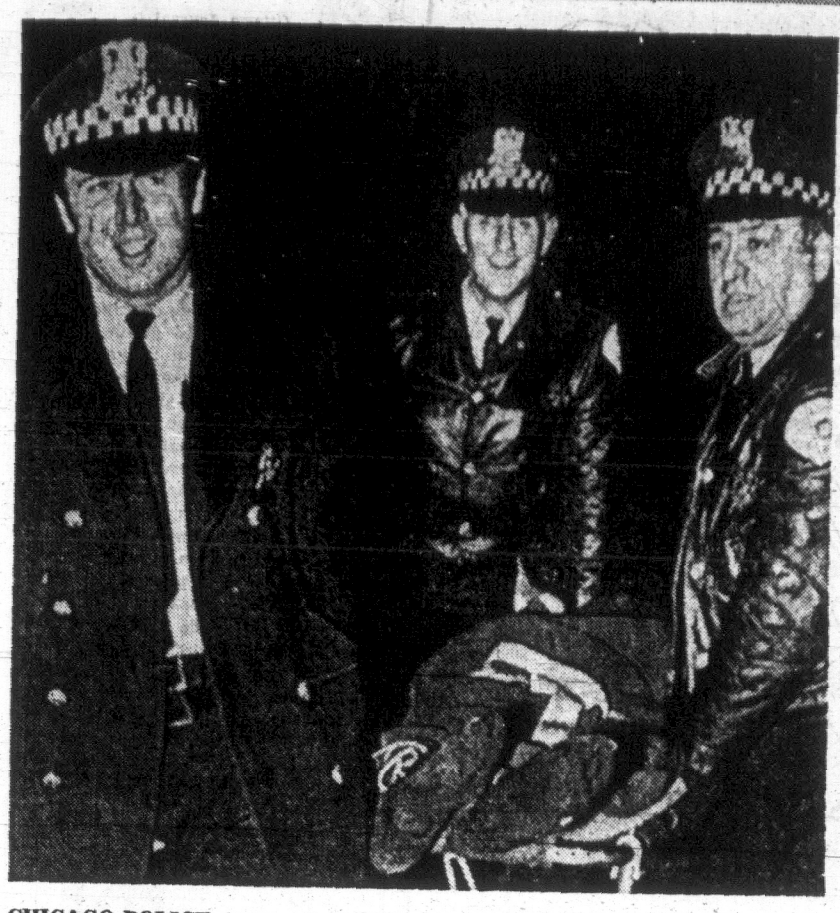

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Our male weimaraner has a girlfriend. Her name is Lady and she is just an inch or so shorter in the chest than Frosty, although she may still grow a little. My friend down the road, the retired Wyoming cowboy, said: "There's a pretty pair of bird dogs. Maybe we can break them in to the gun."

The old cowboy knows just about everything about hunting and fishing and dogs and horses and the weather. He explained that there are some days in the field when a good bird dog that has been the best at finding quail may flunk the effort because of the weather.

"Don't blame the dog when that happens," the old cowboy said. "He probably works best when the sky is overcast and the air heavy with humidity. His sense of scent depends on nerves in his nose. The particles in the air that tell the dog birds are near dissolve a lot better when they fall on his nose when the air is moist. His senses get the signal a lot faster than when the weather is dry."

Illinois' Black Panther Chief Killed in Gun Battle With Police

CHICAGO (AP) — Two persons — one identified as Fred Hampton, leader of the Black Panther party in Illinois—were killed and seven others were wounded today in a gun battle on the West Side.

The shooting erupted as police arrived at a building adjacent to the Black Panther offices and attempted to serve a warrant. Police said the warrant charged Hampton and Bobb Rush, another Illinois Panther leader, with illegal possession of firearms.

The Cook County state's attorney's office identified Hampton as one of the two persons killed. The other was identified as Mark Clark, 22, of Peoria.

Two policemen were among those wounded or injured, one by gunshot and the other by flying glass. Three women were among the five others treated for wounds.

Hampton was with eight other persons who opened fire at members of a special prosecution unit of the state's attorney's office who forced their way through barricaded doors at the West Side address, said Richard Jalovec, an assistant state's attorney.

Twelve shotguns, eight handguns and 5,000 rounds of ammunition were found scattered throughout the apartment, Jalovec said.

'Return Journey' by Uvic Hilarious Entertainment

By AUDREY JOHNSON

"An entertainment from the poetry and prose of Dylan Thomas" says the program subtitle of Return Journey.

And an entertainment it is in truth. Merry with the merriment that often explodes hilariously — poignantly tender and haunting in its nostalgia, dramatic with incident.

Return Journey is a presentation of the English department of the University of Victoria which was given the first of four performances Wednesday night in the MacLaurin Building auditorium. Repeats are tonight, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m.

For some of the near capacity audience this was Return Journey re-visited. It was first produced two years ago by, with one exception, the same group.

The original concept was by Sean Virgo and this version acknowledges his direction while making minor changes in the staging.

Major change has come about in the work of Anthony Jenkins who, two years ago, blended into a uniformly fine over-all impression but who on this occasion, emerges as the brilliant accent in a good evening.

The voices of Reg Terry and Trefor Williams are excellent, their feeling and color in utterance of the opulent, flowing poetry and prose is effective.

The only woman in the cast, Ann Purdon, possesses an attractive voice and personality but her performance is light and understated to a point of now and then being barely audible.

In fact Dylan Thomas tends to overwhelm all three but with Jenkins it is different.

He is nothing short of superb in the story of the outing to Porthcawl, in "the man with the bottle on his finger" and Fern Hill.

He takes command of Thomas, creates character and weaves visions, incarnating recollection with a vividness that is compelling and poised and profoundly real.

He is master of the situation and the situation is a delight and a proper sequel to the first Journey.

Interest Rates Too High—Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Wednesday that interest rates are "too damn high."

But he declined in the Commons to say whether he would make a statement saying the chartered banks have failed to practise restraint.

He said in reply to Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) that he would study the figures on bank profits and consider making a statement.

Mr. Saltsman described bank profits as "tremendous" and "excessive" and asked for an emergency debate on the need to impose regulations limiting interest rates and other service charges.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux disallowed the motion on the grounds that the subject now is before the Commons finance committee.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) asked Mr. Benson to discuss with the banks a reduction of interest rates on programs, such as farm loans, guaranteed by the federal government.

Mr. Benson said Mr. Woolliams should lend his "great knowledge" to the finance committee.

Mr. Woolliams asked Mr. Benson whether he thinks interest rates of 8¼ to 10 per cent are fair in relation to bank profits.

Interest rates are "too damn high," Mr. Benson said.

Retaliation

THE MEETING OF NATO DEfence ministers at Brussels has drawn up plans for nuclear attack on Russia's Warsaw Pact allies if the Soviet Union should launch a land assault on Western Europe. The strategy is to deter Moscow by injuring its satellites, apparently with the hope that by avoiding a nuclear attack on the Soviet homeland the latter would withhold a nuclear strike against the West.

This seems, at least to the layman, to be a pretty shaky thesis. For one thing it attributes to the Russians the very attitude that the United States has repeatedly emphasized would not be countenanced by Washington—that is, the situation feared by the United States' European allies, in which the West's great nuclear power would hesitate to protect Europe by launching a nuclear attack on Russia because such an attack would inevitably result in retaliation against the United States.

Now it is argued, apparently, that Russia would do what the U.S. says it would not do itself: hold its fire while its European allies were wiped out. And these Communist targets could be countries which had not taken aggressive action against the West or changed their diplomatic status as friendly nations. It would be a difficult bombardment to justify—a judgment of guilt by association.

On two counts the strategy seems deficient. Either an invading Russia would resort to nuclear weapons to protect or avenge its allies, or it would push on with its conventional invasion, calculatingly ignoring its satellites' casualties. If the world's safety from a full-scale nuclear war hangs on this slender thread, we are in danger indeed.

Timing of the announcement of the plan is also open to question, with the United States and Russia involved in nuclear arms reduction negotiations at Helsinki, and amid rumors of an East-West conference on European security some time next year. The NATO plan appears in the light of an attempt to stampede the Communist satellites into demanding restraint by Moscow. But it could have the opposite effect, if the Soviet Union adopted the course of reassuring its allies by promising increased armaments or instant retaliation in kind for any nuclear attack on them.

Prime Minister Trudeau has reiterated that Canada's policy of phasing out our nuclear role in NATO remains unchanged by yesterday's announcement. But much of the Brussels discussion dealt with steps to fill in the gaps that will be left by Canada's withdrawal of about half its land and air contributions to the NATO forces in Europe over the next year or two. As Defence Minister Cadieux said in a recent statement: "The brigade in Germany will drop the Honest John nuclear role when it is re-configured next year, and the nuclear strike role of the air element will continue only until January, 1972."

He stressed that "these are interim forces." It is difficult to escape the feeling that the proposed action plan of the Brussels NATO ministers is likewise of a temporary nature. It is apparently intended more as a bargaining counter than as a war plan. The major effort of the organization should lie in trying to guarantee, through negotiation with the Warsaw Pact countries, that this plan or any other will never be needed.

Unreproductive Youth

THE ACCENT ON YOUTH HAS caused uneasiness and a certain amount of resentment among some older Canadians. Parliament is considering lowering the voting age to 18. Business advertises with an eye on the youth market and many radio stations play music directed solely at youth. It seems good politics and good business, considering that almost 10 per cent of the population was under the age of five, 21 per cent under the age of 10, and 10 per cent under the age of 15, as of June 1, 1968. A total of 49 per cent of the population was under 25.

But youth is fleeting. The Canadian birth rate has been declining since 1959 and it reached an all-time low of 19.4 (per 1,000 total population) in 1966. Similar statistics have been recorded in Japan where the birth rate registered a steep fall from 32.4 per 1,000 in 1930 to 19.3 in 1967.

Demographers use a yardstick called the reproductive rate to estimate future population trends. The rate estimates the average number of girls a woman gives birth to during her child-bearing years. If this national reproductive rate is one, it is estimated that the country's population will show no change even after the lapse of a generation. If the rate is less than one, it means a declining population.

Japan's rate has been less than one for the last decade, except in 1965 and 1967. Canada's reproduction rate is healthier but it declined from a high of 1.915 in 1950 to 1.369 in 1966. If present Canadian trends continue we might conceivably be in the same position as the Japanese, with labor shortages and the necessity of providing expanding social security for the aged.

Unknown variables, including the future of the "pill," might reverse present trends. With little more than nine persons per square mile in Canada, excluding the Yukon and Northwest Territories, we would stay relatively empty with a reproduction rate of less than one, especially if prospective immigrants—from countries like Japan—are staying home because of labor shortages in their native land. If Canada's population becomes heavily weighted with the aged it will be interesting to see how today's youth grown old treats a rebellious youthful minority.

Science in Revulsion and Revolt

THE VOICE OF CONSCIENCE echoed from the International Conference on Chemical and Biological Warfare in London late last month as scientists of high repute placed themselves firmly on record regarding their primary responsibility. That ultimate responsibility is to humanity, they said, not to individual national interest under the guise of patriotism.

The stand becomes more impressive in the light of the nationalities invoived. Prof. Oganes Baroyan, director of the Gamaleya Institute of Epidemiology and Microbiology of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Medicine, urged that scientists should say "no" to war and to the weapons of annihilation, "no matter what country we live in, no matter what the system of government, my country included."

Dr. Jonathan Beckwith of the Harvard Medical School, honored recently for his isolation of a heredity gene, feels that "the bad far outweighs the good in this particular field." The possibility of genetic engineering is "more frightening, especially when we see work in biology used by our government in Vietnam and in devising chemical and biological weapons."

Spokesmen from other countries agreed that scientific research should not be perverted for military purposes. They felt that the time has arrived for scientists to refuse to become involved with chemical and bacteriological weapons. This was the voice of the experts on whom modern war-makers must depend. It was a timely and significant statement of which more should be heard.

No 'Hi Bish'

Ottawa Journal

Howard Measures, private secretary to two Canadian prime ministers, First Secretary of the Department of External Affairs, and the inaugurator and guiding force of our protocol service, is Canada's acknowledged expert on protocol. His third edition of "Styles of Address" lives up to its billing as a "complete and indispensable guide to correct methods of address in both formal and informal letters and speech for people in every rank and station the world over."

And the book is often educational, as in explaining that the Burmese title "Maung" is "equivalent to the English 'Mr.' but lower than the Burmese title 'U'," and that it is also used in a signature "to signify the writer's humility in a friendly relationship, or to indicate humbler or more junior status."

The book can be intriguing, as when Mr. Measures explains how to address correspondence to bishops. The bishops of Anglican churches in both Canada and England, and of the Episcopal Church in America are addressed as "The Right Reverend . . .," while a bishop of the Greek Orthodox Church is "His Grace The Right Reverend . . .," and a bishop of the Mormon Church in the U.S. is simply "Mr. . . ." And while a bishop of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada is "The Rt. Rev. . . .," the bishop of the Roman Catholic Church in the U.S. is "The Most Reverend . . ."

It seems that "Hi Bish" just won't do anywhere!

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

Is the White Paper the Next Budget?

HOW firmly is the government committed to the tax proposals of Mr. Benson's White Paper? As there is no precedent for a White Paper of this character in Canadian parliamentary history, the answer to this important question is by no means clear. What makes the situation puzzling is the fact that relatively minor tax changes are normally effected by budgets prepared in conditions of strictest secrecy. In Britain even a hint of a leak may cost a chancellor his job and in Canada Mr. Gordon's sufferings began with the revelation that he had been assisted by the famous "whiz kids" in his first budgeting venture.

Western

Yet now quite specific and very far-reaching changes — amounting, some critics have suggested, to a veritable tax revolution — are being publicly discussed and debated in every part of Canada although the budget, which may eventually incorporate them, is not even on the horizon.

Can Change

This is possible because the White Paper consists of proposals for changes in the tax system which are to be submitted for the consideration of a House committee. In theory anything can be changed. Mr. Benson's latest assurance on this point was a sentence in his speech on Friday. "If Canadians including the members of the opposition can put forward ways in which proposals could be improved, the government will be quick to adopt them."

On the other hand it would be a mistake to assume that the White Paper is an academic exercise and that the government is neutral. It is obvious from Mr. Benson's speeches across the country that he takes much pride in his work. He repeatedly sounded this note on Friday.

"We believe," he said, "that the proposals outlined in the White Paper would produce a good tax system, a system substantially better than the one we have. Indeed, we believe it will be a system which is better suited to the Canadian situation than would any of the systems in other countries be."

Still Mr. Benson stopped short of claiming perfection for the proposed tax regime. The country is being invited to an exercise in participatory democracy because of the government's hope that even a good system can be made better.

How Much Freedom?

The question is: How closely does theory approximate the political reality? Now that the White Paper has been published and defended by Mr. Benson in glowing speeches up an down the land, how much freedom does the government possess to make drastic changes in the face of public criticism? The difficulty is less technical than political because a ministry may be greatly damaged, as Mr. Gordon proved, if it repeatedly exposes itself to charges of "retreat."

There is a supplementary question. How open-minded is Mr. Benson on proposals of change? He had something to say on this point in the House. After asserting that the government would be quick to adopt proposals for improvement, he observed: "For example, I now wish to bring to your attention two modifications which we are prepared to make."

At first glance, this is reassuring since it was long ago observed that deeds are more impressive than words. But the more the changes are examined, the more readers may be tempted to suspend judgment.

Mr. Benson mentioned, first, a "modification of details" in proposals concerning the application of capital gains tax to bonds and mortgages. According to the original scheme, a taxpayer who possessed on valuation day a bond worth less than on "White Paper Day" would be permitted to recover his cost before national revenue moved in for the kill. The change will now extend this concession to anyone who purchased after Nov. 7 and held until valuation day.

This may show that Mr. Benson's heart is meltable. Reading on, however, we come to this sentence. "As a result, it (the change) should remove an uncertainty that might otherwise have complicated the marketing of new bond issues and bond trading between now and valuation." It might in fact, have complicated Mr. Benson's work.

The second change looks more disinterested. It applies to dividends paid to a parent company by a subsidiary that is a gas, steam or electric utility. It will be welcome to a small group (some pension plans and non-residents) who would otherwise have been adversely affected but, considering the scope of the White Paper, it is obviously a minimal modification.

In contrast, Mr. Benson dealt sternly with the disaffected in the middle group whose numbers, especially in the lower categories, are obviously great. They have noted, without enthusiasm, that they have been singled out for the largest increases in personal income tax.

Computer Justice

This, according to the minister, is wrong because it ignores the effect of bringing capital gains into income. To prove it, his officials have run 100,000 representative 1967 taxpayers through the departmental computers. The results show that the new rates will fall with unerring justice on the various categories.

How can the computers report so infallibly when there were no capital gains in 1967? The answer is: "With capital gains, we relied on the relationship between dividends received and capital gains, and to some extent on U.S. experience. We believe that the results are as good an estimate as can be derived."

There are, however, many taxpayers in these categories who regularly have no dividends to report. It is a fact, as revealed by the White Paper, that those who live on salaries placing them in the $10,000 - $15,000 group will be hit harder than those in higher groups even though neither have been able to channel savings into investment. Even if the latter group did have such assets, a bad market could wipe the slate of capital gains, in which case it would be impossible to demonstrate equity even with the department's best trained computers.

Digging In

The point is that on the more controversial matters, such as the propsed new rates, capital gains and the taxation of small corporations, Mr. Benson appears to be digging in for battle. The more forcefully he argues and the more computers he enlists in the service of the White Paper, the less meaningful must the coming exercise in participatory democracy appear to the taxpayers at large.

Since Mr. Gordon saw a budget shot to pieces and yet managed for some time to survive, it is quite possible that Mr. Benson, a far more astute minister of finance, will emerge unscathed from a few such modifications of detail as those announced on Friday. But is the government prepared to accept substantial change? There is no sign of it yet.

It seems much more likely, in the nature of politics, that "White Paper Day" was no chance expression but a term intended to have legal significance and that the White Paper, plus and minus a few trappings, was a budget in all but name.

Sunday Entertainment

No people have suffered from reasonable observance of the Sabbath, or the Lord's Day. It has been a day noted for the promotion of human rights, social justice, reverence, rest and freedom. The principle of it has been incorporated in the Conventions of the International Labor Organization.

I do not believe that social progress will be advanced if the proposals of the Sunday plebiscite are passed. The eroding of the Lord's Day Act by degrees can be just as damaging as trying to eliminate it altogether.

The history of the Act in Canada, (and incidentally, we have about the world's best Sunday law), shows that it has won for thousands, their Sunday freedom from work when they were able to use its provisions.

Every group which has to work because the protections of the Lord's Day Act have been set aside, loses a measure of its freedom. The movie industry, for instance, wants to fill its coffers fuller by Sunday business, so its employees, and their families, must lose their Sunday freedom, fifty-two Sundays a year. And these employees, remember, have to work on holidays, too.—C. Leighton Streight and Harold T. Allen.

Sewers, Freeze and Costs

I think most people will agree that for a district to install either a sewage system, or a waterworks, a certain density of population must be reached. When there were, say, six houses in the area of Central Saanich, no one would have dreamed of installing a sewage system. The cost would have been prohibitive. But step by step, house after house, through the years, we have been marching steadily forward to the point where a sewage system has become not only necessary, but economically possible — with shared costs coming down and down.

It would be quite simple if we could just let growth continue until the shared cost was so low everyone would willingly accept it. Unfortunately, it is not that simple.

As population growth was gradually bringing the shared cost down, the same growth was, step by step, increasing the inescapable hazard of pollution. The costs on their way down met the hazard on its way up and we have a building freeze. No more building — no additional people to share these costs.

So far we have seen a situation where the longer we waited, the lower our shared costs would be, but what now? We have a building freeze; but it is quite beyond our power to freeze costs. So what is our situation now? The longer we wait the higher will be our shared costs. At the present growth rate one can estimate about 10 per cent per year.

We have reached this state of freeze in one quarter of the district now, and will soon reach it in much of the remaining area. Assuming that we do nothing, just let things ride, we will be driving development farther afield and creating more areas that need servicing, and further increasing the problem we are faced with today.

Let's assume that we vote "Yes" and install sewers. What happens then? We unfreeze the building restrictions. We allow progress to continue. More houses are built and our shared costs again start to come down. We start to gain grown again.

In this area we should have confidence in our ability to finance and operate community owned services such as a sewer system. We have two examples — the Brentwood Waterworks System and the Central Saanich Water System — of projects that became necessary before population growth had brought the shared costs down to a very acceptable level. However, in both cases urgency prevailed, people accepted the seemingly high initial cost, and today are happy that they did so.

Let's have a district where children can be safe and healthy. Let's have a district of which we can be proud — Arthur Bolster, 7088 West Saanich Road.

Poor Postie!

I do hope we weren't expected to cry on reading the Post Office advert "The things he'll do for 6 cents." The picture in the ad was a most unfortunate choice, as I recall it was the paper boy who came through the blizzard last winter, we looked in vain for our heroic mailman. The caption is slightly misleading, I believe the postal workers get paid a little more than 6 cents, that is the sum we pay for our mail to take longer than it did when we paid 5 cents. I almost cried when I read about the poor sorters not getting home any earlier then I remembered they get paid overtime so put my hanky away. I haven't bundled my mail since the strike in 1965 but I will do if they pay me union rates. To ensure the passage of my mail through "The hail. The sleet. The snow. The rain. And the dead of night" I ask that my name and address be withheld. —Taxpayer.

"DO YOU WANT THE YOUNG MR. MITCHELL OR THE OLD MR. MITCHELL?"

Looking Back

From The Times of Dec. 4, 1909

David Spencer and his son, Chris Spencer, have returned from a six-month tour of Europe confident that trade relations between Canada and Europe are generally good. Both said that, while in the United Kingdom, they found great interest in Canadian affairs and received many inquiries concerning the market potential of British Columbia. Large purchases for their firm were made in the capitals of Europe.

Takeover Issue Won't Go Away

By ANTHONY WESTELL

EDMONTON—The problem of U.S. investment in Canada and the takeover of Canadian companies is again forcing itself on to the agenda of the federal cabinet.

A few ministers are insisting that the government must face the continuing erosion of economic independence with a clear statement of national policy. They are pressing for establishment, as a first step, of a new agency to:

● Keep foreign capital under surveillance in order to alert the government to pending takeovers before it is too late to act.

● Co-ordinate the policies and activities of federal departments such as finance, trade and commerce and corporate affairs which have different interests in foreign business investment.

● Ensure that the political question of preserving sovereignty ranks with purely financial and economic questions when new investments and takeovers are considered in the government.

Even this modest proposal is encountering resistance. Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, an anti-nationalist, is not much interested in economic nationalism. Bureaucrats naturally fear a new agency which might encroach upon their departmental empires.

For many senior Liberals, the battles over Walter Gordon's nationalist policies in 1963-1966 were traumatic because they split the party and nearly defeated the government, and they shy at the idea of reopening the wounds.

There was, for example, a notable failure at the Liberal party's recent policy conference at Harrison Hot Springs, B.C. to give the problem of foreign investment any more than passing attention.

Despite these negative pressures, the cabinet is being forced to react, however reluctantly, to the economic fact of continuing takeovers and to the political fact of the rise of a New Nationalism.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield has already responded by criticizing the government's inaction since 1963 and promising, in a recent speech in New York, to begin development of effective policies to assert Canadian control over the economy where it is essential for national policy and pride.

The New Democrats made nationalism the central issue of their recent national policy conference in Winnipeg and the major thrust in their appeal for power.

Here the other day there was an impressive display of young Canadian nationalism at a two-day teach-in, under the explicit title, The American Domination of Canada, sponsored by the students' union of the University of Alberta.

The Prairies have not been fertile soil for nationalism which might cut off the U.S. capital with which they are developing their wealth.

When Walter Gordon attempted a comeback for economic nationalism at the Liberal policy conference in 1966, it was the western Liberals who organized to defeat him. Alberta has been developed with U.S. oil money and is regarded as a conservative province.

This makes it all the more surprising that the handsome students' union building on the campus here should now be the site for a significant revival of nationalism.

Sixteen hundred chairs were set up in the students' cafeteria for the opening debate on foreign policy, and latecomers had to sit on the floor.

The theatre was jammed with about 800 students at noon the following day to hear Professor Melville Watkins, leader of the radical left within the NDP, develop his thesis that Canada must cut itself loose from a racist and imperialistic U.S. empire.

There were perhaps 2,000 in the cafeteria that night to hear debate among Watkins, Gordon and others.

At another session, the students became so caught up in a debate about U.S. influence in Canadian universities that they asked for it to continue far beyond the advertised closing time.

These were not audiences of New Left radicals. As Gordon remarked after his debate, it was one of the most pleasant student groups he has met for years.

But at the end of two days, there could be no doubt that the overwhelming majority of the students who attended the teach-in are not only Canadian nationalists, but also reject the U.S. alliance.

They are groping for a new definition of Canadian values and purposes, as opposed to continental attitudes and seeking the politicians who will be their spokesmen.

THESE GUNS were turned in during emotional period after assassination of Robert Kennedy. Re-arming by citizens has resumed, however, and is likely to continue unless more funds are spent in public sector.

Forecast for America: Lives of Hellish Fear

By DAVID S. BRODER

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Last week's report from the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence makes a point that is terribly pertinent to the current Senate debate on the tax bill.

The commission headed by Dr. Milton Eisenhower, in its study of "crime in the streets," the epidemic of violence that afflicts the major cities and fosters the politics of fear, said there are only two ways of dealing with the problem.

Either society and government will make the expenditure of public funds needed to combat crime and to eliminate its causes or individual families will buy as much protection for themselves as they can afford.

"The consequences of the choice are enormous—and the tax bill is an important part of the choice, because it represents the biggest decision on national priorities Congress will make this year.

In its present form (even without the additional tax-reduction amendments Senator Gore is sponsoring) it embodies a political compromise to procure a limited amount of tax reform at a substantial cost in federal revenues.

$6 Billion Extra

The reforms—many of them worthwhile in themselves—would bring the government something over $6 billion a year of extra revenue, when fully implemented. At the same time, it is proposed that more than $9 billion a year of tax cuts be granted.

About $625 million of the cuts would go to poor families, who would be relieved of their income tax obligations by the bill. But the vast bulk of the tax relief would go into the pockets of the middle and upper-income families as a subsidy to further private consumption.

It is this decision to give private spending priority over public investment that has largely escaped challenge in congressional debate.

Few Voices Heard

Belatedly, the administration and some members of the joint economic committee have questioned the inflationary aspects of the scheduled tax cuts. But few voices have been heard from either party challenging the basic assumption that private spending has priority over public.

Yet that question must be raised when one considers the Eisenhower commission's description of what the "private spending" solution to the crime problem means to the future of our country.

If individuals are left to cope with the problem of providing safety for themselves, the commission says, central business districts will be inhabited only during daytime "and will be largely deserted except for police patrols during nighttime hours.

"High-rise apartment buildings and residential compounds, protected by private guards and security devices, will be fortified cells for upper-middle and high-income populations living at prime locations in the cities . . ."

In the suburbs, the commission says, "Ownership of guns will be almost universal; homes will be fortified by an array of devices from window grills to electronic surveillance equipment; armed citizen volunteers in cars will supplement inadequate police patrols in neighborhoods closer to the central city, and extreme left-wing and right-wing groups will have tremendous armories of weapons which could be brought into play, with or without any provocation.

"High-speed, patrolled expressways will be sanitized corridors connecting safe areas, and private automobiles . . . will be routinely equipped with unbreakable glass, light armor and other security features. Inside garages or valet parking will be available at safe buildings in or near the central city. Armed guards will ride shotgun on all forms of public transportation."

'Places of Terror'

Meanwhile, the report says, "The ghetto slum neighborhoods will be places of terror, with widespread crime, perhaps completely out of police control during nighttime hours . . . between the unsafe, deteriorating central city . . . and the network of safe, prosperous areas and sanitized corridors, there will be, not unnaturally, intensifying hatred and deepening division."

That is a description of a hellish America, a society living in constant fear, a society that could not possibly sustain for long the habits and institutions of freedom and self-government. But it is not so different from the cities of today that anyone can believe it is exaggerated.

What is the alternative? The Eisenhower commission, like every other body that has looked at the problem, says there simply must be a massive commitment of resources—doubling the amount being spent on the criminal justice system and making billions of dollars available to improve housing, education and job opportunities in the slums that produce most of the urban crime.

His Jeans—Or His Genes?

By GEORGE BAIN
The Globe and Mail

At the Liberal conference at Harrison Hot Springs the other day, at which Prime Minster Pierre Trudeau said that a question for the seventies would be genetic engineering, a young invited delegate was quizzed by undercover RCMP agents about his bona fides because, as Solicitor General George McIlraith said later, of his long hair and his jeans.

We present, in rough draft, the script for a musical playlet in one act.

The scene is the grand Liberal think-in scheduled for late next year. As the curtain rises, we find two RCMP constables — Cons. Polonius and Cpl. Felonius — in civilian clothes, press cards on their lapels, standing outside the door of a conference-room, on which the sign says:

GENETICS:
DOES FREE ENTERPRISE BELONG IN THE BEDROOMS OF THE NATION?

Cons. Polonius: The policeman's lot, as has been so wisely observed, is not a happy one.

Cpl. Felonius: 'Tis truly said. But what, in present circumstances, leads to such cold and melancholy thought.?

Cons. Polonius: What thing, indeed? Can one but deplore the fate which leads us to such judgments as must here be made, given the hairstate of the young, as between Genes and Jeans?

Cpl. Felonius: 'Tis true, 'tis sadly true. But for the up-ending of them which is not acceptable to society, 'tis hard to tell.

Cons. Polonius: Nor is that all. Now, the Liberal Party having entered upon the field of genetic engineering, who is to say that it was yon delegate's jeans and not his genes which gave offense?

They sing:

How should a cop at a conference act
When he's faced with a youth wearing jeans?
Is he safe to assume
That it's safe in the room
Though lacking in visible means?
Does his duty, in fact,
Or an absence of tact,
Impel him if he should inquire
For the lineage charts
And the chromosome parts
It derived from its dam and its sire?

Cpl. Felonius: Attend, for there one approaches now — a youth in jeans, and all too obviously badly genetically engineered, wearing an Afghanistan sheepskin coat and beard, and carrying a guitar.

The youth unslings its guitar and sings:

Ah rem-em-ber long before ah lef' mah carriage.
That mah Mama said ah sim-ply
wouldn't do,
An' ah thought she meant no more than to disparage
'Till the day she went an lef' me at the zoo;
Oh, she lef' me still an inoffensive
creeper,
An' dee-parted with no fond maternal kiss,
Jes' a note that said: "Dear Sir,
if yore the keeper
Then ah'm shore yo' won't much mind jes' keepin' this."

Chorus:

Got those blue-e-e genes,
Rotten ol' blue-e-e-e genes,
An' there ain't no one who ain't rejecting me,
Got those blue-huh-lue genes,
Rotten ol' blue-huh-lue genes
An' yo'd better call the ars-huh-cee-emm-pee.

(There will be a short pause while the singer catches his breath and reflects on the unhappy twist of fate which caused him to be born before the Trudeau Government set out to ensure that, in a Just Society, no one would be born with blue genes and, therefore, placed beyond the pale. Or pail, for that matter, in case genetic engineering should result in the right sort of people being blended, like paint.)

Cast Off Ear Plugs and Fight

By PAUL JOHNSON
New Statesman

Medieval theologians described the pains of hell in excruciating detail, but I don't recall any of them mentioning noise.

I suspect, indeed, that medieval man welcomed noise, as a sign of civilization and an antidote to the prevailing silence which to him symbolized fear and sudden death.

Under Anglo-Saxon law, a man travelling through the forest at night was obliged to sound a horn at intervals, to indicate that his business was not felonious.

And all that "three-o'clock-and-all's-well" ritual was regarded as reassuring instead of an intolerable threat to sleep.

Today, a silent Hell would almost seem a contradiction in terms. At this very moment I am trying to write while immediately below my office window, a man is cutting up logs with a chain-saw—surely one of the most devlish instruments ever invented.

I don't know which is worst: the elephantine metallic hiccups as it flexes its vocal muscles; the laser-beam of sound which punches into my brain at full-throttle; or the brief but ominous spells of quiet while I wait for it to start up again. I think of the unfortunate man in Dorothy Sayers' The Nine Taylors, who was trapped and noised to death in a belfry.

So far as I can see, our anti-noise laws are almost wholly ineffective. If the present chain-saw, for instance, were absolutely banned, a less noisy one would speedily be perfected.

But we noise-haters are too afraid of being branded as cranks to set up a really powerful agitation.

And, of course, there's big money in noise. The man who first said that Silence is Golden must have been a fool—or deaf.

'Magic' of the Fairy Shrimp

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Apart from the insects which are the largest and most diverse group of all, the crustaceans are remarkably versatile. Their members range in size from pin-head water fleas to spider crabs with an eleven-foot spread, in modes of life from free living copepods to barnacles that parasitize whales, and they include familiar forms such as shrimps, lobsters and crayfish.

Most of them show features typical of arthropods, namely jointed legs, antennae on the head, and gills, but some are so modified that they are completely unrecognizable without intensive study.

Crustaceans get their name from the hard shell or body covering which many of them possess. However in the smaller forms the shell is exceedingly thin and delicate though still functional as a protective cover.

The simplest types of crustaceans include fairy shrimps, brine shrimps, clam shrimps and water fleas but even these are highly complex creatures. Collectively they are called Branchiopods because their gills are attached to their feet.

Actually their swimming appendages are leaf-like and bordered with thin plates to make highly efficient breathing organs especially since their constant motion assures a steady current of water to keep them well aerated.

The fairy shrimp which appears in local ponds in late winter and early spring is a good example of the Branchiopod group. The gilled feet are easily seen because this creature has the remarkable habit of swimming consistently upside down and the entire upper surface of the body presents a fascinating rhythmic study as successive waves of motion pass from tail to head.

The result is an effortless movement of the animals forward in the water while a reverse current carries oxygen and food particles between the legs toward the mouth.

The head bears two bulging eyes and in the case of the male, a pair of sickle-shaped appendages for clasping the female. The tail is long and tubular and ends in a couple of tufted projections.

The whole animal is beautifully translucent so that the dark contents of the gut show through the body. Its diaphanous appearance and slight iridescence of the outer cover justly earn this creature the name of fairy shrimp.

Some magic also seems to be associated with its history because fairy shrimps appear mysteriously, often in ponds where they were not previously known. The reason for this is that their eggs are capable of remaining dormant for several seasons during which time they may be transported from one area to another by winds, birds or other agents. When they fall into a suitable habitat they hatch almost immediately and start another generation.

A close cousin is the brine shrimp which is very similar in general appearance but which has the ability of living in concentrated salt water. It abounds in Great Salt Lake, in brine vats used in salt works, and in certain saline pools such as Spotted Lake near Osoyoos in the Okanagan Valley.

Its eggs, too, are resistant to dessication and hatch within hours of being placed in salt water, consequently they are widely used as a source of food for young aquarium fishes and other aquatic animals held in captivity. The sale of eggs and of frozen adult brine shrimp is the basis for an industry worth a half-million dollars per year in the United States.

Another well-known member of this branchiopod group of crustaceans is the water flea, Daphnia, so called because it moves throughout the world in most lakes and permanent ponds of fresh water and is also a basic food supply for all types of plankton feeders.

Under favourable conditions Daphnia occurs in immense numbers. A pond in Beacon Hill Park is often colored orange by their presence.

A water flea has a somewhat oval body enclosed in a transparent, valve-like shell. A pair of long branched feelers or antennae on the head are used as oars giving the animal its characteristic jerky movement through the water. Between the valves of the protective shell several pairs of tiny feet paddle furiously to carry water past the gills and to draw in particles of food.

Reproduction in Daphnia is a bit unusual. Eggs are carried in a pouch on the back of each individual and as the young develop they feed upon a secretion from the walls of the brood chamber. They are released as replicas of the parent, not as larvae as is the case with most crustaceans.

Moreover they hatch from unfertilized eggs, there being no males in the summer population. Before cold weather, however, some males are produced and the result of their mating is a type of egg that winters over in a special protective case that can withstand successive periods of dessication and freezing.

This extraordinary ability to survive adverse conditions in a resting stage accounts for the wide distribution and abundance of this tiny crustacean.

Gas Bid by El Paso

WASHINGTON (CP) — El Paso Natural Gas Co. of Texas has applied for permission to increase its daily imports of Canadian natural gas by 150,000,000 cubic feet to a total of 800,000,000 cubic feet daily, the Federal Power Commission announced Wednesday.

El Paso would import the increased gas volumes under a sales-purchase agreement with Westcoast Transmission Ltd., of Vancouver.

It also seeks authority to build about $26,100,000 in additional pipeline facilities in Washington state.

The new agreement would extend through October, 1991.

The deadline for filing protests or petitions to intervene in this case was set by the FPC as Dec. 26.

The application supersedes prior agreements under which El Paso is importing 500,000,000 cubic feet and an application of last June, still pending, to import an additional 150,000,000 cubic feet to a total of 650,000,000 cubic feet daily.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Pension, Savings Plans Affected

This is a service provided by The Times and by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia.

By Edgar A. Downey, C.A.

The proposed new tax rules for company pension plans and registered retirement savings plans will cause changes in the long term results of these plans.

The advantages and disadvantages of savings for retirement funds in the form of these tax deferring programs, as distinguished from unregistered savings schemes, are becoming more complex.

In brief, the advantages of registration are that the contributions, up to certain limits, in a year may be deducted from taxable income and the income earned by the investments is not subject to tax while it is retained in the fund.

On the other hand, all monies paid out of the fund as pensions are eventually taxed at full income tax rates in the hands of the recipients.

Upon first examination this would seem to be wholly advantageous in that taxes can be deferred for many years and that current tax money can be used to spend, or invest in the fund to build a bigger pension.

OTHER SIDE

However, as with all such schemes there is the other side of the coin.

An ordinary taxpayer who received a dividend from a public company would receive a tax credit under the new rules for one half of the corporation taxes paid on the income out of which the dividend is paid.

A pension fund does not pay taxes and, therefore, there will be no application of the tax credit on a dividend which is to be available to the ordinary taxpayer. Then in later years when the pension pay-out is taxed that dividend is taxed in full, without any tax credit at that time either.

If the dividend is received from a closely-held private company the ordinary taxpayer will rective a credit for the whole of the corporate taxes and the pension beneficiary receive none.

Furthermore, with the new proposals to tax capital gains an ordinary taxpayer will pay tax upon only one half of his gains on shares of public companies but the pension fund investor will pay tax upon the whole of his capital gains in the fund when he receives the money.

MORE COMPLEXITY

To some extent these same problems exist under the present tax rules for pension plans. The new rules just make more complexity in the problem of deciding whether it is wiser to pay the tax now or defer it to a later year and pay tax on a larger amount.

One point the proposals do make clear is that for middle income earners tax rates do climb higher every time there is a change. Therefore, it is reasonable to assume that in the future years when the retirement pension becomes subject to tax the general tax rates are likely to be higher than they now are.

As a general rule, if a taxpayer would make his investments for retirement in the form of interest-bearing securities, such as bonds, mortgates, etc., he would be wiser to use the tax deferment of a pension plan or registered retirement savings plan.

Interest does not qualify for a tax credit anyway and bonds and mortgates do not normally show any capital gain. So the pension fund investor has nothing to lose compared with the ordinary direct investor in such securities because neither get anything but their interest.

It does not follow, therefore, that it is wiser to switch pension fund investments into bonds. To avoid earning income or capital gains just because to do so would incur some tax is, of course, nonsense.

Under the new rules the maximum tax rate on the highest income is proposed to be about 50 per cent, so even in the worst position, the taxpayer can go on hoping to recover half of what he earns.

Business Leaders Look For Growth During 1970

TORONTO (CP) — About 300 business leaders sat down Wednesday to hear 10 top management officials predict the state of the Canadian economy in 1970.

By IRVING C. WHYNOT
Canadian Press Business Editor

There was some mention of troubles ahead, almost all said predictions were difficult because of the campaign to check inflation, but in general there was agreement that 1970 will be a year of growth or at least no worse that 1969.

Most of the speakers at the seventh annual business outlook seminar sponsored by the school of business at the University of Toronto said that any estimates of the future had to be cautious because of the government's anti-inflation measures.

ALL SEGMENTS

How long these restraints continue, and how successful they are, would reflect on all segments of the business community.

Chairman J. R. Kimber, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, opened by noting that the stock market had reacted to the tough fiscal policies.

He hoped the speakers could be more optimistic. Most were.

R. M. MacIntosh, deputy chief manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, saw little chance of a decisive reduction in the rate of price increases next year.

He said inflated prices will continue into 1970 "because of the built-in cost factors from this year which will be spreading through the economy" and because of the "moderate kind of economic pause which individuals are expecting and which governments are prepared to tolerate."

Derek Mitchel, president of BP Oil Ltd., said many questions face the petroleum industry but "the prospects are that all sectors of the Canadian industry will continue to grow, some sectors rapidly."

He said the "demand for oil in Canada seems likely to show satisfactory growth and, barring unexpected developments in the U.S., short-term prospects for exports are excellent."

He noted increasing costs and said it "seems essential" that prices of the industry's products will have to rise.

R. A. Irwin, president of Consolidated Bathurst Ltd. said the pulp and paper industry enters the 1970s with little unused productive capacity for newsprint, chemical pulp and container-board — about 90 per cent of the industry's total output.

"For all of these products, it seems likely that the increase in world demand next year will not be surpassed by the increase in supply that becomes available."

SOME PROBLEMS

Irwin said fine paper mills are experiencing some problems in adjusting to lower Canadian tariffs implemented last June, three years sooner than expected. Other than that, he said, the future looks promising.

Lawrence Rice, president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd., said the automotive industry "will have some difficulty" meeting and beating 1969 but he saw 1970 sales about the same as this year.

He predicted the Canadian industry will lean toward smaller, lower-priced cars in an effort to meet foreign competition.

Foster Todd, executive vice-president of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., said proposed federal tax revisions would make mining "the most heavily-taxed industry in the nation" and put Canada at a disadvantage with producers in other countries. He expected the industry's output for 1970 to remain about the same as this year.

NATO, China, Urban Renewal Reasons for Grit Resignation

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada "did not play ball with its NATO partners" in its decision to reduce its forces in Europe, MP Perry Ryan said in reply to questions why he had resigned from the Liberal party Wednesday to sit as an independent.

Mr. Ryan, the only MP to leave the Liberal party since Prime Minister Trudeau assumed office last year, took nearly everyone by surprise when he rose in the Commons and said:

"I have come to the conclusion that I cannot continue my support of the government and, having r e s i g n e d from this group, would ask that I be seated across the floor with the opposition as an independent member."

A few minutes later the 51-year-old MP was telling reporters outside the chamber that, among other things, he disagrees sharply with Canada's fast reduction of its NATO forces.

He also disagreed with current negotiations to extend diplomatic recognition to Communist China and didn't think the government was giving enough priority to urban renewal, including projects in Toronto.

SAYS DOOR SHUT

The blunt-spoken m e m b e r said he supports immigration from Europe but "the government is turning off the tap."

So far as NATO is concerned "I feel that Canada did not play ball with its partners in the alliance." By deciding to cut its 10,000-man NATO force in half, Canada produced a "grievous problem" for the United States in a "ham-fisted" way.

When this was added to the fact that Canada is providing sanctuary for U.S. draft-dodgers and military deserters, Mr. Ryan said "the pattern to me is anti-Americanism."

"It looks to me like we are trying to get the U.S. at a time when they are policing the world."

Prime Minister Trudeau knew about Mr. Ryan's announcement in advance. In a press release, the prime minister said he had had "friendly and frank conversation" with the Toronto MP before receiving a confidential letter from him. He said he regretted the decision.

Mr. Trudeau said that two of the issues mentioned by Mr. Ryan formed part of the Liberal platform in the 1968 general election.

GAVE MONTH'S NOTICE

"The third has been the subject of exhaustive discussion in caucus and in c aucus committees on which occasions Liberal members played a full and effective role."

Mr. Ryan told reporters he gave notice of his intention to resign a month ago.

He is vice-chairman of the Commons committee on external affairs and defence, and he said that the government should have accepted the recommendations of this committee which advocated retention of the armored bridgade and the air division in Europe well into the 1970s. The government plans to complete its reduction in Europe by 1972.

Mr. Ryan said that recognition of China will cause difficulties in South Korea, Nationalist China, Japan, Hong Kong and Indo-China.

He said he would resign from the committee in a few days. He also said he will confer with the executive of his riding, but "at the moment" he had no plans to join another party.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield referred to Mr. Ryan as a "high-calibre MP" and he said he would be "happy" to discuss the possibility of him joining the ranks of the Conservatives.

Mr. Ryan entered the Commons in 1962. He is the first MP to leave a party since Gordon Churchill, Conservative MP for Winnipeg South Centre, quit his party to sit as an independent in early 1968.

The only other resignation given to Mr. Trudeau was when former transport minister Paul Hellyer quit the cabinet earlier this year. But he remained in the party as an MP.

Mr. Trudeau said in his press release that Mr. Ryan's "active role as a busy and competent representative of his constituents is without question."

Flu Hits Italy

ROME (AP) — Influenze is sweeping the Italian peninsula, taking workers off the job and children out of school. No precise estimate of victims was available, but Italian newspapers said "thousands of men, women and children" had the flu, an annual visitor. The flu also has reached epidemic proportions in parts of France.

BRIAN SMITH

CANDIDATE FOR OAK BAY ALDERMAN, SAYS:

I have stressed the need for restraint and public discussion before any future apartment zoning is permitted in Oak Bay. Council must then make public its own blueprint for limited future apartment zoning.

I feel strongly, however, that no more waterfront land should be rezoned for apartments in Oak Bay. Our remaining waterfront should be retained for the enjoyment of all our citizens, because clearly it is one of our most precious assets.

Council should also initiate a home-renovation programme to encourage, with expert advice, the improvement of Oak Bay homes. Home owners would be far more likely to renovate if they clearly understand Council's future zoning plans. Presently many home owners are uneasy that the developer may have his eye on their neighborhood.

It is up to you to consider these matters before you vote. My belief is that an Alderman should be willing to stand and fight on certain basic issues. The preservation of the residential character of Oak Bay and the maintenance of its beauty are worth fighting for, in my judgment.

Transportation to the Polls on December 6th, Phone 383-3978.

Candidates Back Regional Planning

Two of Victoria's four mayoralty candidates underlined their enthusiasm for regional planning in a debate before the city Chamber of Commerce Wednesday.

"It's important to think of the region as one big community," said Ald. Ian Stewart. The city is passing through critical years and "now is the time to determine the priorities we want."

The municipal divisions now separating the capital region were "archaic."

"Regionalization is the future of this entire area," agreed Ald. Robert Baird.

He criticized four municipal administrations existing within Greater Victoria and denounced "parochialism, partisanship and pride . . ."

Ald. Baird said Greater Victoria should be "united as one."

Courtney Haddock and William Scott, the other candidates, concentrated on local questions with Haddock saying a harbor commission for Victoria is his first priority.

Port Alberni, Nanaimo and New Westminster have increased development and revenue through harbor commissions, he said.

Scott said the city has been missing a source of revenue from tourist ships. Previously he had urged Victoria be declared an open port.

Haddock said property owners should have been given a chance to vote on the new swimming pool issue before council agreed to spend $1.6 million on the complex.

Funds for the pool are already available from the McPherson estate. No tax dollars are included.

Asked whether he felt recreational facilities should be run at a profit, Haddock answered that they should be paid for by the people who use them.

He did not elaborate.

The candidates made their statements during a press conference staged at the regular luncheon meeting of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Policeman's Murderer 'Unknown'

MONTREAL (CP) — Coroner Laurin Lapointe ruled Wednesday that "it is impossible to attribute responsibility" to anyone in the shotgun killing of Robert Dumas, a Quebec Provincial Police corporal, during a 16-hour strike of Montreal police and firemen Oct. 7.

The coroner said in his verdict: "Cpl. Dumas was felled by a shot fired by a person or persons unknown."

Cpl. Dumas, 35, was shot in the back during an outbreak of violence at the west-end garage of Murray Hill Limousine Service Ltd.

'Bare' Musical Drawing Well

TORONTO (UPI) — Hair, the "love-rock" musical in which there is a plentitude of hair on display but a marked absence of clothes, opens here Jan. 11. Torontonians, it appears, are quite well aware of this fact.

A statement Friday from the firm handling Hair's publicity here said that 30,000 tickets have already been sold through mail orders and group sales and the box office isn't even open yet.

LOGGING LOSS SAYS FIRM

Resources Minister Ray Williston said Wednesday a letter from a logging company indicates New Democratic Party house leader Dave Barrett is wrong in his claims of big logging profits in Cypress Bowl.

The letter was written to Williston by E. E. Osborne, president of Mountain Timbers Ltd. which contracted in 1967 to build access roads and clear ski slopes in the West Vancouver recreational development.

Mountain Timbers carried out the work for Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources Ltd., original developers of the project who last week were ordered to dump Benguet Consolidated Inc. as a partner because of Benguet's gambling interests in the Bahamas.

Williston said Mountain Timbers has been billed for $203,693 in stumpage fees payable to the government since December, 1967. The letter said the company faces a deficit of $250,000.

Barrett has charged that logging in the bowl has produced at least a $200,000 profit.

Williston said he hasn't been able to counteract the idea that there is 'all kinds of gobs of money around" in Cypress Bowl profits.

Asked whether the government was accepting as fact that Mountain Timbers faced a $250,000 deficit, Williston said:

"I'm not saying that, but that is right on the basis of what they have said."

February Transfer For Ship

Maritime Command Pacific will lose one of its destroyer-escorts in February when HMCS Saskatchewan is transferred to Maritime Command Atlantic in Halifax.

Capt. G. H. Hayes, chief of staff logistics at CFB Esquimalt said today "the loss of one destroyer-escort is on a temporary basis. She will be eventually replaced — but this is still in the planning stage."

The ship's crew, most of whom live in the Victoria area, will sail the ship to the east coast. Some of them will be flown back.

Others will man two minesweepers, HMCS Chignecto and HMCS Chaleur, which will be transferred to Esquimalt.

TRAINING

Hayes said the transfer of the minesweepers to this coast is being made because of the high training commitment.

"They will join the Fourth Escort Training Squadron, doing much the same job as the old frigates did, being used for all facets of training."

He said the $3,300,000 conversion of HMCS Gatineau, currently being carried out in HMC Dockyard, is scheduled to continue until next November.

Asked about the likelihood of the Rescue Co-Ordination Centre in Vancouver being moved to Victoria, Hayes said:

"This is still under active consideration as part of the consolidation plans of the armed forces."

Snow Triggers Mines

MUNICH (Reuters) — Heavy snowfalls have set off landmines along the border strip between West and East Germany. Border police here said they saw 10 mines explode in their area Wednesday.

'Peckham Pope' Dies in U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — Lord Carron, a militant anti-communist union leader who became a director of the Bank of England, died at his London home Wednesday night. He was 67.

Stocky and soft-spoken, Carron was a former president of Britain's second largest trade union, the Amalgamated Engineering Union.

Carron was made a life peer in 1967. He was known for his stern anti-communism and as a devout Roman Catholic.

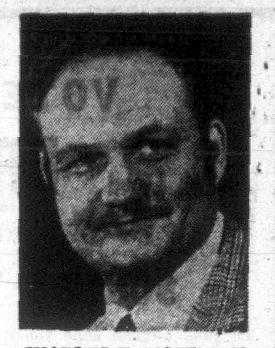

The Communist daily worker once described him as "the Pope of Peckham," after the London district where the union has his headquarters. Other oppontents used to refer to him as "an agent of the Vatican."

Get Dirty Dangerously, New B.C. School Course

A course in how to get dirty dangerously — and be well paid for it — is being offered by a new B.C. trades school.

Presented as Canada's first deep diving school, Northwest Divers Ltd. has been issued a certificate of registration under the Trade Schools Act for its underwater classroom in North Vancouver.

"Diving is a dirty, miserable, well-paid occupation," said Don Sorte, vice-president of Northwest's parent company, International Hydrodynamics Ltd., owner of the Pisces deep submersible craft.

The tpye of person who makes a good diver, Sorte said, ideally is "somebody who is a tradesman and is prepared to get his hands dirty.

"Certainly not a man who thinks he is entering a glamorous profession. Under the sea is no place for a prima donna."

It is estimated that 90 per cent of diving work in B.C. is for offshore construction. Demand for experienced underwater tradesmen by construction companies led to the formation of the school.

Up to now, Canadian divers have had to get training at one of six U.S. schools. The new B.C. school, because it will train in the use of deep submersibles, is expected to draw enrolment from Europe as well as North America.

Divers will learn underwater welding, cutting, pipefitting, demolition, cementing, photography, rock removal, drilling, and salvage. Graduates will be certified to dive 250 feet and will train to 2,000-foot depths in the submersible. They will learn skin diving, conventional diving and mixed gas diving.

Sorte said offshore pipeline construction is increasing, harbors are being doubled and tripled, and population increase demands more sewage and drainage outfalls.

Four three-month courses — at $1,100 to $1,200 a course — will be offered each year, with 20 students expected in each.

Graduates can expect to make money, at least $140 a day, Sorte said.

And off Canada's northern and eastern coasts, "offshore oil and gas exploration should keep divers employed for many years to come."

'CITY BETRAYED US'

Betrayal of residents in the area of Hillside shopping centre was cited at a meeting of Victoria Labor Council Wednesday as good reason for the services of an ombudsman in B.C.

Delegates approved an executive recommendation to write B.C. Federation of Labor reiterating pressure of a year ago for appointment of a provincial ombudsman to intervene where rights or justice appear to be abrogated, subjugated or ignored.

Murray drew, of International Woodworkers of America, said Victoria city council and Dominion Construction Co. Ltd. had agreed to certain undertakings to ensure the privacy and convenience of residents on streets adjoining the shopping centre.

HAS LETTER

The work has not been done, said Drew, waving a letter from the city's senior planner of community development, Peter Crisp, who outlined the commitments Feb. 6 after a meeting with residents two days earlier.

Drew, who lives in the neighborhood, said city and Dominion Construction representatives had been approached since, but had answered to the effect that the matter was out of their hands or would not be done.

"Dominion Construction says to hell with you, city council. We aren't going to be told what to do by you or the citizens. It was a con game to let Simpsons-Sears and Dominion Construction get in there," Drew said.

OMBUDSMAN

An ombudsman is needed to get an injunction against further work at the shopping centre development, he said. Anyone else applying for one would just be laughed at, said Drew.

"They say you can't fight city hall. I guess you can fight city hall if you've got the money," he added, suggesting firms like Dominion Construction make promises to the council until they "get what they want."

Crisp's letter, written to Gordon Patterson, 1652 Edgeware, at whose home the neighborhood met Feb. 4, dealt with installation by the city of signs on Edgeware, Oakland and Burton streets which would denote restricted parking;

BARRICADE

A barricade at the north end of Shakespeare at North Dairy by Feb. 12, opening date of the shopping centre's first phase; landscaping and screening North Dairy at the intersection of Shakespeare;

Construction of a pedestrian walk between Hillside and the adjoining streets, running between the Safeway store and new Zeller's department store "in accordance with the commitment made by city council at the time when the rezoning of this site was approved."

The latter would enable residents of Edgeware, Oakland and Burton streets to reach the bus route on Hillside conveniently after one block of Shakespeare was closed and consolidated into the building site.

Planning, Zoning and Sewers

Planning and zoning problems in Sidney and a $1.125 million sewer construction bylaw in Central Saanich are the major issues in the northern peninsula municipal elections Saturday.

The Sidney election features a mayoralty contest between Mayor Arthur Freeman, who has had two terms and Ald. Stanley Dear, a 53-year-old school teacher.

But the most controversial subject is the sewer bylaw in Central Saanich which will need a 60-per-cent favorable vote to pass.

While the proposed program will provide sewers for all urban areas, solving as well serious sanitary problems, taxpayers are divided over the necessity of installing the system to districts other than Brentwood.

Those in favor point out construction costs are rising and a delay would be economically unsound.

All property owners are eligible to vote on the sewer bylaw, but only residents living in the proposed sewered areas would pay the costs.

Three aldermen and two newcomers are contesting the elections. They are Ald. Philip Benn, Ald. Percival Lazarz, and Ald. Donald MacLaurin, Ronald Drayton, a painter, and Patricia Grove, a chemical analyst.

In Sidney, Mayor Freeman and Ald. Dear have clashed over planning matters.

"I have no hesitation about being judged on my record," said the mayor. "We have been able to develop our road system and bring it up to safe standards."

Dear claimed that Sidney is faced with many problems because of the lack of planning — especially economic planning.

He also charged that Sidney council held too many closed meetings.

"I'm strongly opposed to this practice," he said. "I believe the public is entitled to know what's going on in council."

Issues at Sidney involve the $600,000 drainage proposal and a $300,000 sewerage expansion and improvement scheme.

The sewage system is overloaded, though steps were taken this summer to alleviate the problem in some areas.

Five candidates are also contesting two vacant seats on council. They are William Larnick, Hugh Hollingworth, Karl Schwartzenberger, Fred Robinson, and Mrs. Norma Sealey.

There are no major issues in North Saanich. Five candidates are contesting three council seats. They are Ald. Trevor Davis, Ald. Nellie Horth, Harry Taylor, James Gardner and A. G. Gilmore.

Mayor J. B. Cumming was elected by acclamation.

A lot of other features we don't skimp on include direct vision tubes for better viewing, illuminated channel selectors, dipole antennas for clear reception, and earphones for privacy. And a lot more.

Seductive Patients Catalogued For Fast, Easy Recognition

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A psychiatrist gave some advice Wednesday to physicians about one of their sex problems—that of the seductive patient.

Dr. Herbert E. Vandervoort of the University of California School of Medicine, San Francisco, characterized seductive patients at the American Medical Association's clinical convention.

Here is his description of them:

—The Habitual Flirt is just that and her flirtations may prevent the doctor's getting an accurate medical history or being able to perform a thorough examination.

—The Doctor Killer is actually a man-hater who must for psychological reasons dominate men, and seducing the doctor is one way she tries to do it.

—The Fun Patient is a "good time girl." She always tries to please the doctor, and is more interested in a good time than in being treated.

—Lolita is the seductive adolescent whom doctors are encountering more and more often. They dress seductively and act provocatively when they don't mean to, and there is a problem as to whether they should be seeing a pediatrician or a specialist in internal medicine.

—Ma Perkins is the old radio soap opera character who was always beset by troubles and who "won't actually get the doctor in bed but will lead him down many primrose paths to indulge her need for punishment and gratification."

—Baby Doll is another form of Doctor Killer, who manages to convince the doctor he is superhuman and tries to please him.

Another pitfall for unwary doctors is the House Call. This is a special problem for pediatricians who are summoned to homes to visit ostensibly sick children only to be greeted at the door by a young mother in a negligee.

Teachers' Strike Could Last Months

LONDON (Reuters) — More than 300,000 British schoolteachers have mounted a strike for higher wages in a dispute that could last for months.

Trouble had brewed for a long time on Britain's educational front, and on Dec. 1 hundreds of schools closed down when members of the National Union of Teachers and the National Association of Schoolmasters did not turn up for work.

Many fully-trained teachers start work at less than $2,400 a year, and a man with 15 years of service earns a basic $3,900 annually.

The teachers seek an annual salary increase totalling only $352. The government countered with a bid of $130.

The shift from gentility to militancy comes at an awkward moment for the governing Labor government, whose efforts to formulate a convincing incomes policy have been largely torpedoed by its union allies.

Barbara Castle, employment and productivity minister, already embarrassed by union refusal to accept a compulsory wages policy, is expected to publish shortly new guidelines limiting salary increases to a range not exceeding 4.5 per cent.

WANTS LOTS MORE

The teachers want more than twice that and point to groups with bigger bargaining power, such as airline pilots, who have won increases of up to 15 per cent.

Bernard Mawby, secretary of the teachers union's action committee, says:

"Going on strike is repugnant to teachers. They have done so only because they feel that reasonable negotiation has failed. The reaction throughout our membership has been overwhelmingly in favor of strike action."

Union membership totals 294,000 out of the 350,000 teachers in England and Wales. Scotland is not affected.

Malcontent teachers, soured by stalemated negotiations, are emigrating in increasing numbers to Canada and Australia or taking other jobs. Male teachers in particular are deserting the primary schools, now almost exclusively a woman's domain.

Teachers, among middle-class professions, are in a low-pay category along with nurses. There appears to be considerable public sympathy for their position, weakened in some cases by a feeling that they enjoy short hours and long vacations.

Fire Engine In Final Run

A 40-year-old provincial government fire engine makes a final run from the mainland to Victoria today.

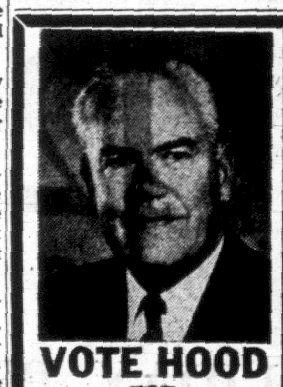

The engine which has served the Essondale mental health complex since 1929 was to be turned over to the Provincial Museum at 2 p.m.

At the wheel is Chief Andrew Lowry, who has also served the Essondale fire department for 40 years.

History curator Daniel Gallacher said the engine will be exhibited at the back of the museum for two weeks before it is stored away in a hangar at Patricia Bay.

The curator who is looking for all types of old machines, including an old Victoria streetcar, said the engine will form the basis of a museum vehicle collection.

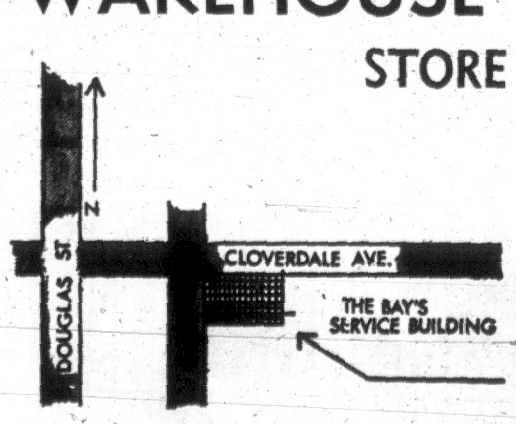

"This is the first major donation towards the collection," he said.

'Rent-a-Cop' Puts Stop To Ruffians

STEWIACKE, N.S. (CP) — Nova Scotia has its first "rent-a-cop" police force, and residents of this small community say they are happy with it.

Before ex-RCMP constable Bill Brown went on patrol here, local ruffians drank beer on town streets, speeders ignored posted limits and local dances ended in brawls.

Officer Mike Lennerton had retired six months ago. Town council advertised for a constable, but they could not find one with any experience.

"We had to have some kind of enforcement," town clerk Grace McLennan said. "The RCMP said the area was out of their jurisdiction."

Council asked the provincial attorney-general's department to contract with the RCMP to do the job, but without success.

Mrs. McLennan said council finally decided to hire an outside investigation firm. "They really put things under control."

Bob Douglas, whose Dartmouth, N.S., protection agency provided Stewiacke with its new policeman, wants to extend the practice to other parts of the province.

"It's common out west, particularly in Saskatchewan," said Mr. Douglas, also a former Mountie. "It should be a workable system here."

Nova Scotia Police Association president Joe Ross said he is against the hiring of policemen on a rental basis.

"If a town hires a man directly, it's likely to get more dedication," he said.

But he admitted that Stewiacke is better off with Mr. Brown than it would have been had it hired someone "off the street."

Loch Ness Monster Has Rival

MALLAIG, Scotland (Reuters) — The Loch Ness monster is in danger of becoming a has-been.

Traffic to Loch Ness, usually frequented by thousands of tourists hoping for a glimpse of "Nessie," has slowed down for the first time in years.

The reason is that Nessie, Loch Ness's legendary denizen of the deep, has been eclipsed by a monster named "Morag," which is said to have surfaced in Loch Morar, only 50 miles away.

Two men in a boat on the lake claimed they were almost overturned by "Morag." They said they had to beat at it with an oar and finally shoot at it before it descended again into the depths.

Almost overnight, their report created a tourist boom in the Loch Morar area.

The two men described the monster as about 60 feet long, with dirty brown humps and covered in fungus.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1969 —PAGE 15

'DON'T TELL US WHAT WE CAN DO WITH OUR DAY'

ISSUE SPLITS CHURCHES

Support Seems Strong for 'Open Sunday'

There appears to be a strong feeling among Greater Victoria voters that, while they might not particularly favor paid Sunday sports and entertainment, they oppose being told what they can not do with their Sundays.

Voters in the four core municipalities have a chance to vote for or against the issue Saturday.

British Columbia municipalities, outside Vancouver which operates on its own charter, were given the right to put the question under an Act passed during the last legislative session.

Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils have each given the "open Sunday" bylaw three readings. Before they can give it a fourth and final reading — whether for or against — the issue must receive a 60-per-cent vote in favor Saturday.

So, even should the vote "yes" be 60 per cent or better, councils will still make up their own minds, although voter reaction will no doubt bear strongly on their decision. Should the vote be less than 60 per cent, the idea is ditched for another year at least.

And, although it will affect movie theatres, the vote on entertainment after 1:30 p.m. will likely not mean much change for other ventures which have quietly operated on Sundays for some time.

The Victoria Symphony Society regularly holds Sunday concerts — with paid admission — and paid exhibition games on Sunday are not uncommon in Victoria's city-owned Memorial Arena. Now being advertised is a Dec. 21 — that's a Sunday — hockey game between Russia and Canada.

"I personally prefer Sunday the way it is," said Dennis Pearce, 1180 Hollis. "But I think people have the right to choose for themselves how they will spend a holiday — especially when they're willing to pay for it.

"I'd hate to see Sunday turned into Saturday and I don't think that will happen. It's just a matter of adding movies and Sunday games to the symphony concerts that are already permitted."

And, after some debate, the Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night came out in support of the bylaw.

Several delegates voiced concern that passage of the bylaw would increase Sunday employment and possibly some day permit other commercial enterprises such as stores and industries to remain open.

Wages and working conditions should be safeguarded, and when an employee is required to work Sunday there should be provision for compensating time off, delegates said.

Retail Clerks' Union delegate John Nicol described some of the pitfalls of "open Sunday" as experienced in the U.S., where family life is disrupted, there is no day of rest and workers become disgusted with the "rat race."

Among other area voters canvassed, Victoria builder Matthew Paine said a man who works six days a week is entitled to relax in his own way on Sunday.

"Sunday is a day of recreation which means re-creation—a renewal of mind and body. Many find re-creation in church; others at a symphony concert, a football game or a movie show.

"The important thing is that they have the right to choose."

Mrs. Clara Hill Maunsell, Victoria teacher and poet, said people with religious feeling should be able to go to church in the morning and attend public entertainments in the afternoon and evening.

Salesman Philip L. Hutchins, 1127 Douglas, said the Lord's Day Act is out of date.

"It belongs to the days when North America was largely an agricultural community, with hangovers from the Puritans of New England. And even then it was hypocritical. They said we mustn't work on Sundays, but there were still cows to be milked and chores to be done."

The projectionist at a Victoria theatre said:

"I'd rather not work on Sunday even if it means double pay and a day off during the week. But if people want Sunday movies, I guess they're entitled to them."

Speaking for the Greater Victoria Council of Churches, Canon Grahame Baker issued a statement:

"The Sabbath is to the Christian a day of worship and re-creation. It is a great boon to mankind and I assume all Christians will wish to honor the Sabbath in their own lives.

"However, it is not practical in the 20th century for Christians to try and legislate for those who do not hold the same viewpoint."

Baker said Victoria is "two-faced" as regards Sunday.

"If I happen to enjoy the symphony concert I can have that enjoyment on the Sabbath; if I enjoy films or sports I am not allowed to enjoy them.

"This seems to be very unfair."

Canon Baker said while some Christians insist people should not work on Sunday, they are "quite happy" to have bus drivers, telephone operators, waitresses and restaurant employees attend to their needs."

"I have never heard anyone suggest that buses should stop and electricity be cut off because they force people to work on the Sabbath."

Rev. William Bahan, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene and spokesman for 30 churches in the Greater Victoria Evangelical Pastors Fellowship, said a "yes" vote will be bad for everyone. "We need one day a week when we can relax ourselves, bodily and mentally, from the daily toil."

A committee representing the Presbyterian Church on Vancouver Island unanimously opposed the bylaw and, in a resolution, urges "all our people to oppose the introduction of Sunday sport and Sunday entertainment."

Scott Can't Withdraw Says Municipal Act

Civic Election Watch

By JIM HUME

Mayoralty candidate William Scott cannot withdraw from the Victoria campaign.

Once a candidate has officially entered the race, he has 24 hours after nominations close in which to change his mind. After that, like it or not, he's in the fight all the way.

The rules and regulations are laid down in the Municipal Act, Section 67, subsection 1.

And that means that while William Scott may dramatically announce that he has withdrawn from the contest, his name will be on the ballot paper come Saturday.

The Act is quite specific: "Any candidate may withdraw within 24 hours of the close of nominations, but not afterwards."

Scott said he is pledging his support to candidate Courtney Haddock, who is being opposed by Ald. Ian Stewart and Ald. Robert Baird. Neither Scott nor Haddock could be reached for comment today.

In 1961 Scott pulled 1,366 votes when seeking an aldermanic seat. In 1966 he increased his support polling 1,483 votes; again in the aldermanic race.

On Saturday, with a tight three-way race in the offing, that could be the difference.

Indications are that it will be tight right down to the wire.

RECORD DAY

Wednesday returning officer Morran Waller and his assistant George Merz conducted the first day of advance polling. Significantly they recorded 48 votes, an all-time record for the advance.

In recent years a total of 70-75 voters for three days of advance polling has been the high. More than half that total on the first day suggests the Victorians will turn out in record numbers two days from now.

Overshadowed by the mayoralty campaigns in Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Sidney have been the struggles of aldermanic candidates.

On the basis of campaigns, past experience, prominence and community-service records, informed observers of Greater Victoria politics see the trends moving this way:

In Victoria with four seats vacant and eight contestants, incumbent Clyde Savage and ex-council member Hugh Ramsay are emerging as favorites. Peter Pollen and A. O. Hood should pick off the other two seats although Ove Witt, who came close last year, could provide the upset.

EDGE TO CUTHBERT

Esquimalt: Three seats, four candidates. Incumbent Arthur Cuthbert has the edge. Kenneth Hill and Arthur Mebs should take the other two seats.

Oak Bay: a scramble for three seats by 11 candidates. With no incumbents seeking re-election the race is wide-open. No heavy forecasting here, but look for Brian Smith, Brian Lawless, former alderman William Wade and Dr. Alan Hoey to be among the front runners.

Saanich: the only core municipality without a mayoralty election offers four seats to nine candidates. The four incumbents seeking another term — Alderman William Noel, William Campbell, Foster Isherwood and Edith Gunning — should be safe. But don't be surprised if John Roberts or Vincent Sullivan manage at least one upset.

Sidney: two seats, five candidates, no incumbents. Norma Sealey should make it back on past experience. Hugh Hollingworth could be her council companion.

Here's Where You Vote

Polling stations will abound Saturday for the annual municipal elections.

Saanich municipality, with the biggest number of voters—30,493—will have 13 stations. Victoria city has five, Oak Bay two and Esquimalt one. Polls are open from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m.

They are:

SAANICH:

Cloverdale School, 3427 Quadra;
Cordova Bay Elementary School, 5238 Cordova Bay Road;
Frank Hobbs School, 3875 Haro;
Glanford School, 4140 Glanford;
Gordon Head Elementary School, 1671 Kenmore;
Lansdowne Junior High School, 1765 Lansdowne;
Mount View High School, 3814 Carey;
Prospect Lake Community Hall, 5300 block Sparton;
Royal Oak Secondary School, 4564 West Saanich Road;
St. Joseph's Parish Hall, 745 Burnside West;
St. Luke's Hall, 3821 Cedar Hill Cross Road;
St. Martins'-in-the-Fields Hall, 550 Obed;
Tillicum School, 3155 Albina.

VICTORIA, with 20,072 voters:

Senior Citizens' Activity Centre, Centennial Square;
Goodwill Enterprises, 220 Bay;
James Bay Elementary School, Simcoe at Oswego;
Sir James Douglas Elementary School, Thurlow and Moss;
Oaklands Elementary School, 2827 Belmont.

OAK BAY, with 9,173 voters:

St. Philip's Church, 2928 Eastdowne;
Municipal Hall, 2167 Oak Bay Avenue.

The single Esquimalt polling station is at the municipal hall, 1229 Esquimalt Road. The municipality has 4,432 voters.

SWEET SMELL OF TROUBLE is demonstrated by Saanich Constable Dave McGregor as he burns marijuana sample while student Marilyn Sluggett watches during drug classroom discussion at Claremont High School today.

Oh! That Word!

Author Farley Mowat was in Victoria today promoting a new book and never crying "progress."

"I don't know of a more mis-used word," he said. "In the name of progress we have polluted our rivers, our air and destroyed wildlife resources in many parts of Canada."

He spent the afternoon at three downtown bookstores autographing copies of his recently-published "The Boat Who Wouldn't Float," an entertainment about an old two-master he found at Muddy Hole in Newfoundland.

Of Victorians, he said, "I hear you all are dedicated to progress. You wait—you will make a muck of things here. That's why I'm not sure of coming here. I hate to see the beauty of the natural resources of a province gradually destroyed."

POLICE SPEARHEAD DRUG EDUCATION

This Squad Doesn't 'Bust' Kids

By DON VIPOND

He was 14½ years old, a good scholar, fine athlete, with ambition.

That was a year ago and he still has ambition — he wants to go to Montreal to push "pot."

He's not in school any-more. He dropped out after almost being expelled. And to hell with sports, man.

"We still see him around and talk to him," Saanich police Sgt. Bill Chisholm said this morning. "He admits freely he's dropping acid now."

Chisholm and Constable Dave McGregor were talking to a class at Claremont High School, boys and girls mostly in Grade 12.

They've been taking their film, Marijuana, into classes, detailing some of their experiences from the local drug scene, answering questions.

They bring a big display board — pot, hash, the kinds of pipes users employ, all the pills, acid, crystal plus the hard stuff, H (for Heroin). Everything on that board is the real thing, much of it seized in local "busts," or raids.

The schools invite the police and their presentation is low key, as factual as they can make it.

The boy Chisholm mentioned in passing lives in Saanich and is a fact.

The officers say that a lot of research is still under way on marijuana. There's no proof at the moment that it is more harmful —even as harmful — as cigarettes for many people.

But we know cigarettes are killers, and do two wrongs make a right?

One thing is certain about marijuana. It's part of an environment which leads to other drugs. To back that up, the film goes to a narcotics rehabilitation centre to ask recuperating addicts how many started on pot.

Ninety-five per cent of them say it all began with marijuana.

The chat produces some intriguing items:

Five local drug addicts, aged 24 to 30, have died in the past two years.

Hashish is the big interest locally at the moment. It is refined marijuana, six times as powerful.

If you set out to buy marijuana, you're likely to get burned with a baggie of alfalfa.

Chisholm said the police don't just enforce laws, they're available to help.

"Give us a call and we can talk things over. You don't have to give your name or address."

Big Stink Is Sewer Lack Not Old Tanks–Whitbread

Instead of raising a stink about septic tanks, anti-pollution groups should be informing the public of the need for sewer systems," Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said today.

Whitbread, senior medical health officer for the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Health Board, was replying to a charge Wednesday by a Glen Lake property owner that governments are "morally wrong" in not conducting periodic checks on all septic tanks in British Columbia.

Schoolteacher Jim London asked the Victoria branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control to demand regular three-year checks on all septic tanks.

"The situation is appalling," he said.

London said many of the 55 property owners around Glen Lake have not had their septic tanks cleaned out since they were installed 20 years ago.

Said Whitbread: "If he's so annoyed about the septic tanks, why doesn't he get out and promote sewer systems?"

STAFF SHORTAGE

"It's ridiculous for us to attempt to check every individual septic tank in this area. We just don't have the staff."

Whitbread added there have been no complaints about sewage leaking into Glen Lake.

London said he had no proof that effluent is seeping into the lake but that it is shocking that nobody ever checked septic tanks.

"Governments check cars and all kinds of insignificant things but when it comes to something important like pollution they don't bother."

The SPEC executive decided to investigate legislation concerning septic tanks.

"If there is no legislation regarding inspections we'll ask for it," said SPEC vice-president David Dunsmuir. "And if there is legislation we'll go after some teeth for it."

Whitbread said SPEC should get out with their banners and try to convince the people of View Royal and Central Saanich of the importance of Saturday's sewer referendum.

Arthur Mayse...

IN THE YEARS WHEN convicted and uncommuted murderers were hanged, I was sometimes assigned to help cover spring or fall assizes. If nothing else, those sessions taught me that in crime as in life, the shadings between black and white are infinite.

From my observation post behind an Assize Court press table, I was forced to realize that even murder has its gradations.

If black as we see it is merely the absence of any redeeming color, the slayer who plotted coldly and slew deliberately was dark-hued indeed. But, though his victim was no less dead, the murderer who struck in haste and repented at leisure often had for his hue a dull, sad grey.

One of these who blundered into the deadly web was a fisherman whose boat was his home until he met and fell pathetically in love with a woman in her late twenties. She had a child by a marriage no longer operative, and if she didn't actually promote a liaison with Joe Zebb, she offered no discouragement.

The gods to whom we mortals are but as flies for their sport rang down the curtain on the first act of the dismal play a few months later. In centre-stage, at the foot of her own too-popular stairs, the woman died of a stab-wound to her heart.

Vancouver police found Zebb with almost ridiculous ease. He had returned to his boat and there he huddled, with blood on his shore-going suit. Zebb gave no trouble. He produced a bloodied fish-knife and, almost before a warning could be delivered, launched into a confused and rambling admission of guilt.

They took him in. From that point, each step fetched him closer to the gallows.

"Hell," his shocked partner maintained, "Joe wouldn't kill a fly! If I'd been around, I'd have taken him off and got him good and drunk."

But he wasn't there, and Zebb, a man distraught, returned to the East End apartment, where he killed his butterfly.

First came the inquest. A preliminary hearing followed. On the strength of evidence presented, a lower court judge decreed that Zebb should stand trial.

The case was added to the spring assizes calendar. Joe was returned behind bars to wait.

The courtroom where his fate was decided smelled of old varnish. Its ceiling was lofty, its furnishings of heavy oak, and its walls, as I remember them, were panelled in dark wood. Even though I came to it as an observer, I could never enter that place without a slight shiver.

Zebb, his face paler than it had been when last I saw him, looked curiously out of place in the law's arena. He was a small man; the provincial policemen in Jack Canuck uniforms who fetched him up from below made him appear smaller still. He seemed unaware of the Supreme Court judge in his big oak-and-leather chair upon the dias, or the lawyers busy at their tables, or later of the jury selected for his trial.

He stared straight ahead of him. His partner, who came each day to sit among the gallery that a murder trial attracts, watched him with a worried eye. They were friends, they had worked the troller together for years, and their partnership was approaching dissolution.

The trial plodded its methodical way from medical evidence through to the judge's charge to the jury.

It was a simple enough story. Zebb, in a fool's paradise, had given the woman new clothes, furniture, household appliances and so on. As he saw it, she and her child were his family, and he meant to provide for them.

To come in from a trip and find himself not only betrayed but laughed at had been too much for him. Even then, he hadn't meant to kill her.

However, the reef that the defence could not weather was premeditation. Zebb had threatened. (Not her, but the other guy, he maintained.) He had gone back to his boat, returned with the knife, and while legally sane, struck the death-blow.

So to grim sentencing day, and on to the final scene.

A black-bordered invitation to be an offical witness was up for grabs, but I wanted no part of that assignment. Although we had never exchanged a word, it is hard to follow a man's journey through the processes of law without some feeling of involvement.

The reporter who covered the hanging told me that it was a notably neat job. But what stuck in my mind was this conviction. Except for a chance meeting with the wrong woman, and his partner's absence at a crucial moment, Joe Zebb would never have stretched a rope.

Bill WALKER

There are 44 great big acres of it, and there is a plan for every single acre.

This is Lambrick Park in Saanich, site of what could well be the finest sports complex of its kind in the area.

Rugby, baseball, Little League, soccer, swimming. You name it.

Saanich will have it at Lambrick, or try and figure out how to get it in. The project is that big.

Naturally, the plans have been on the drawing board for some time.

Some are already in effect; some are laid on for next year; and some others are in the future book.

Monday night, impetus was provided for one of the major undertakings.

The Victoria Baseball Association received approval from Saanich Council to begin renovation of an old barn on the site as a future clubhouse and administrative building.

In this regard the Victoria Baseball Association is working in close co-operation with Saanich.

The baseball people felt that as a clubhouse-type building would be needed in the area, and that the baseball association itself was in need of a headquarters for its many leagues, perhaps it could be a joint undertaking.

It is.

Under the present plan, the baseball body is obligated to spend $10-12,000 on the first phase of the renovation of the existing building.

The overall plan calls for a building that will provide in its more than 8,000 square feet of space, dressing rooms, a conference room, kitchen, large concession area, office, furnace and storage rooms.

And it is a facility that will be needed in the almost immediate future.

Because this is definitely going to be a major playground for most sports within the next two years, or before.

Some of the fields are in use at present.

For example, the Cosmopolitan Babe Ruth League operated from a new diamond in the area last summer;

The Saanich Velox of the Victoria Rugby Union second division have been using a new field as their home park this fall;

And there is a practice field available now for any sports groups who wish to use it.

In addition, a new Little League baseball park has been developed, and will be seeded and equipped with a backstop next spring;

A new senior league diamond is laid out, and will also be seeded in the spring;

Two full-sized soccer fields are being prepared;

At least one grass hockey pitch is being readied for play;

And tenders are expected to go out before Christmas for a new swimming pool.

This was determined Wednesday at a special meeting of the Gordon Head Community centre.

This will be a family recreational type of pool that can be adapted for competitive swimming.

It will be 25 metres in length, will have a diving area, and will cost $435,000.

Average depth of the pool will be about two and one-half feet, with two thirds of the pool under five feet in depth, making it ideal for family swimming and children's instructional classes.

The water level can be raised to three and one-half feet for competitive swimming meets, and the pool is wide enough, 45, feet, to accommodate six lanes.

The Community centre building which will house the swimming pool will also have a community hall which will have provision for a badminton court.

Council is expected to approve architect's working drawings in order that bids may be called Dec. 17. It is hoped the pool will be ready for use by September.

Hockey and skating have not been forgotten either. Allowance has been made for an area at a future date adjoining the Community Hall.

There is an elementary school in the area and its playing fields adjoin Lambrick Park.

Another school, probably at the senior secondary level, is planned, and its sporting fields will also adjoin the Lambrick complex.

Bert Richman, Saanich parks administrator, foresees a tremendous future for the area, and is most willing to co-operate with any group wishing to discuss the planned facilities, or having any ideas for improving the plans that are presently being carried out.

The baseballers, for their part, should be congratulated for offering their funds for such a paramount cause.

And Saanich for going along with the idea.

It is co-operation of this nature that makes recreation and sports worthwhile.

And a community virtue.

Kings Laced 7-1 By Philadelphia

By Canadian Press

After knocking around the minor circuits for most of eight seasons, centre Jim Johnson is starting to make a name for himself in the National Hockey League.

The 27-year-old Winnipeg native scored three goals Wednesday night to lead Philadelphia Flyers in a 7-1 victory over Los Angeles Kings. The scoring flurry pushed his total in the Flyers' last three games to eight points on six goals and two assists.

In other Wednesday games, Pittsburgh Penguins edged Detroit Red Wings 2-1, St. Louis Blues downed Oakland Seals 3-1, Minnesota North Stars tied Toronto Maple Leafs 5-5 and Chicago Black Hawks deadlocked with New York Rangers 3-3.

Johnson, who played in only eight NHL games with New York Rangers after turning professional with Sudbury of the old Eastern Professional League in 1962, was drafted by the Flyers when they entered the NHL in the 1967-68 season.

HAD SLOW START

He spent most of that season with Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League and started his first complete schedule in the big league last season, finishing with 17 goals and 27 assists.

He was off to a slow start again this season until last Thursday's match against the Kings when he picked up two goals and an assist. He followed up with another goal and assist in Sunday's match with Pittsburgh before his outburst Wednesday.

The loss was the 10th in the last 12 games for the Kings who returned home Wednesday from a nine-game road trip.

Ray Cullen also staged a three-goal performance Wednesday and his third of the game gave Minnesota the tie with Toronto before 13,686 Minneapolis fans.

Dave Keon scored his 10th and 11th goals to lead the Leafs with Jim Dorey, Ron Ellis and Norm Ullman adding single scores.

The Leafs remain in the East Division cellar, four points behind Chicago and Detroit.

Vic Hadfield scored his 12th goal and 12th assist of the season to lead New York against the Black Hawks, but Chico Maki's first goal of the season midway through the final period gave Chicago the tie.

HULLS-A-POPPIN'

Brothers Bobby and Dennis Hull provided the remaining scoring power while goalie Tony Esposito kept the Hawks in the game by stopping 37 Rangers drives.

Ed Giacomin had a comparatively easy night in the New York nets, handling 22 of Chicago's 25 shots.

Bill Fairbairn and Jean Ratelle also scored for the Rangers before 17,250 home fans to put New York four points ahead of second-place Montreal Canadiens in the East Division.

First-period goals by veteran Dean Prentice and rookie Michel Briere kept the 4,116 Pittsburgh fans happy as the Penguins picked up their seventh season victory.

Al Smith stopped 22 Detroit shots while Roy Edwards was kept busy in the Red Wings net, making saves on 33 Penguins drives. The loss left Detroit in a tie with Chicago, four points back of third-place Boston in the East Division.

Phil Goyette picked up his 13th goal in the Blues' victory before a crowd of 15,706 in St. Louis to move within two points of scoring leader Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins. Goyette now has 33 points with team-mate Ab McDonald five points back in a tie with Walt Tkaczuk of the Rangers.

'SNO FUN, OR IS IT?

Braking skates spray snow onto face of Chicago goalie Tony Esposito, but that was the least of his troubles during National Hockey League action in New York. Vic Hadfield, not shown, also sprayed puck into Hawk net on this play for Rangers' first goal as teams battled to 3-3 deadlock. Snow came from Rangers' Rod Gilbert (7) and Chicago defenceman Pat Stapleton (12).

Expos Swap Again

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (CP) — Montreal Expos Wednesday completed their second major league deal in as many days at baseball's annual winter meetings, trading pitcher Jerry Robertson to Detroit Tigers of the American League.

In exchange for Robertson, Canada's first major league baseball team acquired pitcher Joe Sparma from Detroit.

Tuesday, in the day's only deal, the Expos swapped starting pitcher Larry Jaster to Atlanta Braves for pitcher Jim Britton and catcher Don Johnson.

Both pitchers in the Montreal-Detroit deal are right-handers.

Sparma, 28, played six seasons with the Tigers. In 23 appearances last season, 16 of them starts, he compiled a 6-8 won-lost record and an earned-run average of 4.74.

Robertson came to the Expos in the expansion draft from St. Louis Cardinals. He started 27 of the 38 games he played and managed five wins against 16 defeats with an earned-run average of 3.75.

FELIPE ALOU TRADED

In other trades Wednesday, the Braves dealt 12-year National League veteran outfielder Felipe Alou to Oakland Athletics of the American League for right-handed pitcher Jim Nash and defending World Series champion New York Mets obtained third baseman Joe Foy from Kansas City Royals, an AL expansion team.

The Mets gave up infielder-outfielder Amos Otis and pitcher Bob Johnson.

ALL-STAR 3 TIMES

Alou, 34, has a lifetime batting average of .290. An all-star choice three times, Alou's highest batting average was .327 in 1966. He missed 39 games through injuries in 1969 and managed a .282 average at Atlanta.

Minnesota Twins appointed Early Wynn as their major league scout.

Wynn had served as pitching coach for the Twins last season under manager Billy Martin, who has been replaced by Bill Rigney.

Chicago Cubs announced the signing of Joe Becker as their pitching coach for 1970.

Becker, who had coached the Cubs' hurlers for the last three years, had announced his retirement at the end of the 1969 season but was lured back by manager Leo Durocher and club vice-president John Holland.

Royals Clipped By Centennials

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lowly New Westminster Royals tried hard but couldn't handle Vancouver Centennials, losing by a 6-5 margin in British Columbia Junior Hockey League action Wednesday.

Centennials opened scoring with three fast goals between 7:25 and 9:50 of the first period. New Westminster replied with two, but Vancouver stayed ahead for the rest of the game, holding a slim margin over a fired-up New Westminster club.

Pat Russell paced Centennials with two goals, while Ray Todd, Rob Aquiline, Larry Simon and Alex Dick each got singles.

New Westminster scoring was handled by John Dalzell, with two, and Jim Dalzell, Craig Park and Grant Williams.

Maurice L'Heureux stopped 31 shots in Royals' nets while Vancouver's Brian Giles held out 24.

Dalton Declines To Leave Quietly

MONTREAL (CP)—Head coach Kay Dalton of Montreal Alouettes isn't planning to give up his post in spite of new management of the Eastern Football Conference club.

"I was asked two weeks ago to sign a temporary letter of resignation," Dalton said Wednesday.

But he denied he was under any legal obligation to abandon his coaching post as a result of the change of ownership.

Sam Berger of Ottawa took possession of the Alouettes Monday after approval of the sale last week by the Canadian Football League executive.

Berger says he is not responsible for Dalton's contract under the terms whereby he bought the Als. Joe Atwell, outgoing owner, says Dalton was told two weeks ago his services were no longer needed.

"I was not officially advised," Dalton says. "I have a contract that calls for two more years with the Montreal Alouette Football Club—immaterial of who the owner is."

Daltons' post calls for an estimated $46,000 in salary for the next two seasons.

But of the request two weeks ago to sign a "temporary letter of resignation," Dalton says:

"Mr. Atwell had told me he wanted to retain the coaches—he knew the rebuilding job was well on the way."

NOT QUITTING

"Will I quit? No. I've never quit anything in my life and I've never been fired. I guarantee you one thing, they'll have to pay me off if that's what they want to do. This isn't what I want, but if a push comes to a shove. . . ."

Dalton's three-year contract with the Als was signed last January and Dalton said he was happy with the "friendly" contract.

"Friendly," he said, meant Atwell had the option of terminating the contract if he felt he was getting inadequate service from Dalton.

Atwell said he exercised that right in November, after the Alouettes had completed a season with two wins and two ties in 14 games, but Dalton refused to step down.

Mann Rink Sidelined By Pickering

EDMONTON (CP) — Bob Pickering of Milestone, Sask., advanced to the 16-rink, double-knockout final of the Canadian open car bonspiel Wednesday night as he trimmed two-time champion Merv Mann of Saskatoon 11-7.

Pickering was joined in the finals by three other rinks from the B event playoffs. Matt Baldwin and Doug Johnston of Edmonton and Dave Gerlach of Calgary all won their playoffs for a championship berth.

Baldwin was in command throughout to defeat Zane Kotyk of Edmonton 9-6. Johnston scored two with his final rock to edge Al Delmage of Yellowknife, N.W.T., 7-6.

Benefit for Gamblers If Injuries Hushed

TORONTO (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, says that the annual CFL meeting in February may consider the problem of player injuries and their connection with gambling.

Gaudaur is back home in nearby Burlington resting up after the Grey Cup game in Montreal where it was not known until just before game time Sunday that end Jim Worden would not play for Saskatchewan Roughriders due to a rib injury.

The National Football League demands that teams disclose player injuries to the league office which then distributes the information to the public to prevent gamblers gaining an edge on the betting public.

"To tell the truth," Gaudaur said in a telephone interview, "I can't think of the pros and cons of this argument. All I can say is that nothing is more important to us than the integrity of the game. I believe the league would want to take a look at this or anything else that would cast any doubt on the game's integrity."

We'd hate to think what you'd pay if somebody else built it.

Let's face it, you'd pay considerably more than the price tag on the new Toyota Mark II. And even then you might not have as great a car.

What makes the Toyota Mark II such a great car?

Well, first of all it's a Toyota, which means it comes to you with a long standing reputation for durability, performance and fine craftsmanship.

Secondly, and for that same price tag, The Toyota Mark II comes fully equipped. No extras to sneak the price up. For example, the Mark II has an oversquare, overhead camshaft, five bearing, four cylinder engine developing 108 h.p. Enough to cruise at any legal highway speeds, very comfortably and very quietly. The transmission is a console mounted four speed all synchromesh or, you can choose an optional three speed automatic if you prefer not to shift for yourself. When you build a car that can top 105 m.p.h. it better have brakes. So we gave the Toyota Mark II the best. Power assisted discs on the front and self-adjusting drums on the rear.

To make sure it would handle like the thoroughbred it is, we built it with coil spring front suspension, a torsion bar stabilizer and double acting shock absorbers.

Then we took all this rugged performance and wrapped it in a beautiful, luxurious package.

Fully reclining, fully adjustable, contoured bucket seats. Wall to wall deep pile carpeting. "Fresh Flow" fan boosted ventilation. Ignition/steering lock. Heavy duty three speed heater/defroster. Whitewall tires.

Plus all the safety features. Three point front and two point rear seat belts. Impact absorbing body. Dual headlights. Collapsible steering column. Rear window defogger. Padded dash. Padded visors. Padded interior walls and roof liner. Padded steering hub. We put all the padding in the car not the price.

In fact we can't think of an extra the Toyota Mark II doesn't have. And you get the whole beautiful package for one low price.

Think about it. Can you imagine what you'd pay if somebody else built it?

Two door hardtop. $2884.*

Dancer's Image Handlers Fined

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The two men who handled 1968 Kentucky Derby winner Dancer's Image have paid $300 fines each in connection with charges arising from an investigation of the race.

Trainers Lou Cavalaris of Toronto and Robert Barnard, accused of conduct detrimental to the best interest of racing, pleaded that they neither affirmed nor denied the charge.

It was filed by the Kentucky State Racing Commission which launched its probe after an illegal medication turned up in the winner's system after the race.

Counsel for the trainers said: "We believe the best interest of racing will be served by such a plea, being made without any admission of guilt."

The two previously denied any wrongdoing in the case which involved "salting" Dancer's Image feed with aspirin two days after the Derby.

Investigators termed the incident an attempt to hinder their efforts to find those responsible for slipping the medication to the colt before he ran in the Derby.

The commission declared Dancer's Image the winner but awarded first prize of $122,600 to the second place horse, Calumet Farm's Forward Pass.

The commission's decision is under appeal in Franklin Circuit Court, with owner Peter Fuller contending the colt should have the money as well as the title.

Eaton Named To BRM Team

TORONTO (CP) — George Eaton of Toronto will join British Racing Motors' Formula I racing team in 1970 along with Jackie Oliver of Britain and Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico.

"George was our pick in a field of six candidates because of his sensible driving and considerable skill," said Louis Stanley, managing director of racing for BRM.

Stanley also announced that BRM will build a Group 7 sports-racing car for the Canadian-American challenge series in 1970 and Eaton, who drove a factory McLaren on the circuit last season, will be one of the two team drivers in that competition.

Group 7 cars, built and driven by Bruce McLaren, swept the Can-Am series in 1969.

Eaton, the 23-year-old heir to the department store millions, thus becomes the first Canadian to join a factory team on the Grand Prix circuit.

Brief, Bloody Clash Shook Halifax

By DAL WARRINGTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In a world of nuclear bombs, intercontinental missiles and the threat of bacteriological warfare, the brief and bloody clash of British and American frigates in the War of 1812 seems a little irrelevant. But Rear-Admiral Hugh F. Pullen, retired Canadian Atlantic coast naval commander, draws some conclusions from it for modern military strategists.

One is that men are more valuable than weapons, machines or ships. Another is that sea power is of paramount importance in achieving final victory in a major war.

Admiral Pullen is known for his firm convictions. He was a strong opponent of armed-forces unification, of reduction in naval strength, of removing the White Ensign from Canadian naval ships.

His new book, The Shannon and the Chesapeake, is the record of a naval action that took place off Boston June 1, 1813.

Capt. James Lawrence of the United States frigate Chesapeake, a national naval hero, dared to take on Capt. Philip Broke and his Royal Navy frigate Shannon. The two ships met yardarm-to-yardarm with tremendous slaughter, and the American lost.

BATTLE WAS SHORT

It was all over in 15 minutes. But, after almost 10 years of research, Admiral Pullen says: "The lessons this action can teach us in 1970 are just as important as they were in 1813. In the long run victory at sea, on land and in the air depends on the human factor.

"Men win wars, and men well trained, well armed and well led will keep the peace."

The admiral's research also indicates that, contrary to accepted legend, Broke's challenge to Lawrence to come out and fight was never actually delivered. Broke dispatched it all right, he found, but Lawrence sailed out to disaster before he received the message.

Admiral Pullen scuttles another popular belief that the victorious Shannon towed her prize into Halifax harbor five days after the battle. In actual fact, he says, the Chesapeake sailed into Halifax well ahead of the Shannon and without assistance from her captor.

The book, authoritatively documented, seems likely to become the definitive account of one of history's shortest and most startling naval encounters.

ish, a disaster for the U.S., author Pullen attributes the result to Broke's leadership and organization, plus the years of experience and constant training, especially in gunnery, his men received under his direction.

The Chesapeake, on the other hand, was handicapped by a new captain, young and inexperienced officers and a partly trained crew. Capt. Lawrence, despite earlier successes in other ships, was accused of overconfidence and bad judgment, although recognized for his bravery in the face of great odds.

The book recounts the circumstances that led up to the action and assesses its aftermath. The battle itself is described in minute-by-minute detail—a grim picture of bloody hand-to-hand combat and massacre by cannon fire.

Of the Shannon's complement of 349 men and boys, 34 died and 43 were wounded. Of 387 aboard Chesapeake, 62 died and 85 were wounded. Lawrence himself died as the ships approached Halifax and Broke suffered the rest of his days from the effects of a head wound.

War 157 years ago may have had its moments of glory and chivalry, but the sights of the dead, the dying and the wounded on the blood-stained decks of the two ships shocked the citizens of Halifax.

Admiral Pullen sees the Shannon's victory as turning the tide for Britain in the War of 1812. He says Broke's dedication to the cause of naval gunnery influenced British policy and led eventually to the founding of the first naval gunnery school. He also sees it as another vindication of sea power—"the one great weapon which has always brought victory to those nations who have the vision and wisdom to employ it."

The book is well illustrated with maps and diagrams. Drawings and sketches of early 19th century shipboard life Cmdr. Latham Jenson, another retird navy officer, are especially attractive.

MAIL HELPERS' POOR WAGES PROTESTED

Victoria Postal Workers' Union president Stan Darlington said Wednesday he supports a Vancouver union telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau complaining of "grossly inadequate" salaries for Christmas post office help.

"I don't feel the federal government is setting a good example by paying such low salaries," said Darlington.

In Victoria 500 Christmas employees will be paid $1.25 an hour for sorting mail and another 250 will get $1.50 an hour for heavier manual labor.

The telegram signed by Vancouver local president Jim McCall, said wages are well below today's standards for industrial workers.

Death-Blaze Inquest Stalled

NOTRE-DAME-DU-LAC, Que. (CP) — A coroner's inquest into the 38 elderly persons who died in a fire here Tuesday has adjourned to await findings of an investigation into the tragedy.

The inquest into the early-morning fire that ravaged a wooden three-storey home for the aged in the village centre opened briefly Wednesday with the identification of Alfred Lebel, 69, a local man who had lived in the area for four years.

Notre-Dame-du-Lac is about 120 miles northeast of Quebec City.

But Quebec City Coroner Paul Magnon, one of a three-man team conducting the hearing, said after the adjournment it may take several months for the investigation by police and fire authorities.

Twenty-nine of the 67 pensioners living in the Repos du Vieillard survived the fire but it took more than 24 hours to establish the exact death toll because records were burnt and identification of victims was difficult.

Irene Trudeau, head of the Quebec welfare department's regional office in nearby Cabano, finally established from her records that 67 pensioners were in the building when the fire started.

LAST BODY FOUND

The last body and the last survivor were both located Wednesday morning but a provincial police officer said it may be impossible to identify positively all the bodies recovered from the ashes.

Seven staff members who lived in the home escaped the blaze.

Rene Berube, mayor of this village of 2,200 people, said Tuesday he had repeatedly asked the provincial government to build a home for the aged in the village.

Jean-Paul Cloutier, family, health and welfare minister, said in the national assembly Tuesday the building met government safety requirements.

But a government official acknowledged that it had not been inspected recently because no such request had been made and because the fire inspector's bureau was short-staffed.

Three Seamen Died In Rescue Attempt

HALIFAX (CP) — Three seamen died Wednesday in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue a fellow crew member from an empty aviation fuel tank aboard the aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

The four men, who were overcome by aviation gasoline fumes, were identified as: LS Gary Swim, 23, LS Gordon Hayes Morrell, 25, LS Donald Raymond Patterson, 30, all of Halifax, and OS John Elven Boulter, 23, of Summerside, P.E.I.

A navy spokesman said one of the victims entered an empty aviation gasoline tank to set up an air pump for venting operations.

When he collapsed, four men rushed to help. Three were also overcome by the fumes, and the fourth escaped to call for help.

Divers equipped with tanks and men wearing breathing apparatus entered the tank and pulled the men out, but they did not respond to oxygen resuscitation.

A navy spokesman said venting, a standard procedure, involves removing aviation gasoline fumes after gasoline has been emptied from the tanks. Bonaventure removed aviation fuel from her tanks at Dartmouth Monday before sailing on her final voyage as an operational ship of Maritime Command. She will be decommissioned next April.

ORDERS INQUIRY

Vice-Admiral J. C. O'Brien has ordered an immediate inquiry into the deaths. The vessel's skipper, Captain J. M. Cutts of Halifax, began his investigation immediately after the accident.

The bodies of the four men were returned to Halifax by helicopter Wednesday and the carrier continued her journey to Boston, where she will visit Friday before returning to port here Dec. 11. The ship was 100 miles southwest of Cape Sable Island at the time of the accident.

The four deaths brought to 13 the number of Canadian naval personnel to be killed on operational ships during the last six weeks. Nine crew members of the destroyer Kootenay died Oct. 23 in an engine room explosion while the ship was taking part in exercises off the coast of England.

The carrier, with a complement of about 800 officers and men, loaded fuel oil before leaving here to refuel the destroyer Nipigon, Ottawa and Terra Nova and the submarine Okanagan during routine fleet exercises. Her aircraft were not carried on the trip.

Jumbo Jet Like Flying Train

SEATTLE (CP) — Canadians will soon be able to feel like they are flying by train.

Well, not quite, but reporters who arrived here Wednesday on a Boeing 747 jumbo jet from New York were absent-mindedly looking around for porters when they landed.

"It's almost like travelling on the trans-continental except there is a muffled jet engine instead of track sounds," said one.

"I'll bet you could sit three passenger train cars into this jet's seating area."

Air Canada has ordered three of the $20,000,000 747s and plans to introduce them by March, 1971, on flights between Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

However, Air France has scheduled use of the 747 by early next summer on its routes between Montreal and Paris.

CP Air has not ordered any of the giant Boeings, but is reported studying possible purchases of two other new jumbo jets, still in the planning stage—the Douglas DC-10 and Lockheed L-1011.

88 REPORTERS ABOARD

Eighty-eight reporters from a score of countries Wednesday appraised the 747 on a four-hour, 46-minute flight from New York. Also aboard were 112 officials of Boeing.

The 200 persons aboard had an amazing amount of room. That isn't surprising when one learns that the passenger space is 100 yards long.

Normal carrying capacity is up to 500 passengers.

Surprisingly graceful considering its 355-ton bulk, the plane is capable of 625 miles an hour, 50 more than its predecessor, the Boeing 707.

Although a bit rough on runways, the giant is smoother than its smaller predecessors during flight.

At one point on the trip to Seattle, the 747 battled a head-on hurricane-force wind of more than 150 miles an hour at 31,000 feet. Only a slight shudder on its wing span, equal in area to a basketball court, indicated the force of the wind.

Picketers To Protest Safeway Grapes

A small group of Victorians will picket a Safeway store at 1950 Foul Bay tonight to protest the Canada Safeway policy of marketing California table grapes.

The picketers plan to be outside the store from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. and to hand out leaflets to shoppers urging them to boycott the store until it reverses its policy on grapes.

Pickets have been organized by Jack Solomon, 860 Queens.

Grape workers in California have been on strike for four years in efforts to get better working conditions and pay.

While many stores in Canada and the United States have ceased selling the table grapes as a result of publicity given to the lengthy strike, Safeway stores in B.C. continue to be one of the major outlets.

ISRAELI POLICIES FAIL

Occupied Arabs Support Guerrilla Force Morally

By PATRICK BROGAN
Dispatch of the Times, London

(Brogan, a Times staff writer just returned from Israel, analyses the attitude of the Israelis to the occupied Arab territories and the people who live there.)

LONDON — In the early hours of Tuesday, Oct. 21, a series of bombs exploded in Haifa. One of them went off under a block of tenements in a suburb on Mt. Carmel.

The block was on stilts, like many in Israel. Planting the bomb could not have been easier and the terrorists put it against a gas tank which stood unprotected next to the stairs.

Vigilantes Patrol

The explosion, therefore, was doubly violent. The flat immediately above the explosion collapsed in a mass of flames. There was one man asleep in it, Haim Mincovich, aged 55. He died of his burns within the hour. A number of other people were injured, and the fire badly damaged much of the block.

Police rounded up a large number of suspects, and when I got there later in the day there was only a small crowd looking at the damage—the children fearful and excited, the adults wondering if it might be their turn next.

Another bomb went off in Haifa the following night, killing a woman. Vigilante patrols have now been instituted, elderly men armed with .303 rifles, patrolling the streets in the major cities at night looking for bombs.

This, and the ceaseless fighting along the fronts, is the inescapable background to the situation in Israel and the occupied territories, and the justification they offer to all their actions and the answer they give to every criticism.

When correspondents ask Israel officers about allegations of torture they get two answers. The first is that there is none, if by torture is meant the sadistic infliction of pain for its own sake, or the use of theumbscrews and the like. This is perfectly credible.

Except for the few unavoidable psychopathic individuals, the Israeli army and police are too sane and disciplined for such aberrations. Real torture is the fruit of a corrupt society, and this is not a charge that can be made against Israel.

Needlessly Brutal

I have, however, seen a Druze policeman "working over" an Arab teen-ager foolish enough to carry a tray of loaves and bread, each wrapped in paper, to the western wall on the Sabbath. There could easily have been a bomb among the loaves and the search was essential.

But it was needlessly brutal and the policeman (the Druzes are ancestral enemies of the Arabs) delighted in the work.

The second point the Israelis make is the argument of all armies the world over when they have to deal with this sort of situation. How do you get information when, as in Haifa four weeks ago, it is vital to find out if yet more bombs are ticking away under houses full of sleeping people?

The occupation is now much harsher than it was a year ago. More people are being arrested, more houses are being demolished, the atmosphere in Gaza is even worse, and the atmosphere in Hebron is almost as bad.

It is a measure of the terrorists' success. The guerrillas are getting more efficient. There is a process of natural selection as there was in Algeria and in occupied Europe. Inefficient guerrillas—the boasters, the careless—get caught or killed. The careful survive, or survive longer, and do more damage.

The majority of occupied Arabs take no part in any resistance movement, but their moral support is total. Here again the pattern is familiar and inevitable. There was a time when the Israelis imagined that the hearts and minds of the Arabs could be won by economic benefits and rational arguments for co-operation.

The Arabs agree with the economic proposals—Israel's expertise has done dramatic things to their agricultural productivity. But in security matters the Arabs are sullen and unco-operative, terrified of both guerrillas and Israelis but in fact co-operating with the resistance.

Arab Silence

Like all armies of occupation, the Israelis follow a policy of counter-terrorism. It is very much to their credit that there have been no executions. The English hanged terrorists in Ireland, Palestine and Cyprus. There was always a murderous streak in European imperialism, but the Israelis are still free of this. Instead, they blow up houses.

Gen. Moshe Dayan visits a place and tells the people politely, in Arabic, that unless they help him find a terrorist who has murdered an Israeli or an Arab, their houses will be blown up. The Arabs remain silent and the sappers move in.

I do not find the Arab silence at all surprising, and neither, I suspect, does Dayan. The Jewish Agency refused to help the British round up the Irgun, though it disapproved of it strongly.

The policy is thus a failure, as British hangings or German massacres were a failure before. A recent incident in Gaza is a striking proof.

A misguided Israeli settled in the town and a band of terrorists came to murder him. There was an interval of several hours before they did so (he was away when they first called) and they waited for him in the street.

There was plenty of time for someone to whisper a warning. No one did so, although in Gaza of all places everyone knew exactly what would happen if there was a murder. The street was blown up in retaliation and a large number of men arrested.

The Arab population does not co-operate enthusiastically with the guerrillas but supports them enough for all that. No amount of Israeli retaliation will change them. On the contrary, it will stiffen their resistance, help their recruiting.

AIRPORT MEN FEAR BIG BOEING BIRD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 747, Boeing's biggest bird, makes its airline debut next year. But airport officials fear they cannot provide nests large enough to handle the luxury jetliner.

"They will produce instant traffic peaks on the ground, more passengers, more cargo, more visitors, more terminal public use and parking facility needs, more clogged access roads and no-less aircraft noise," says one worried official.

The 747—capable of carrying between 300 and 500 passengers and twice the cargo of the now popular 707—will be first put into commercial service by Pan American World Airways.

Pan Am's chairman, Harold E. Gray, sees less of a problem.

"It doesn't require any longer runways or any stronger runways. It can operate with the same degree of safety on these runways as our current airplanes and, in fact, the 747 will use less runway."

But Warren H. Hawes, director of economic services for Airport Operators Council International Inc., the non-profit trade association of governmental bodies owning or operating major airports throughout the world, disagrees.

"The immediate problem is that the 747 will be in service before the airports are ready for it," he said.

PROBLEM IS PEOPLE

"We are building, at the airports, as fast as we can, but there are many tremendous problems. The biggest problem of all is people—handling them, ticketing them, feeding them, getting them to and from the airport."

J. Donald Reilly, acting executive vice-president of the council, says adjusting U.S. airports to the 747 will cost $13,000,000,000 by 1979.

Pan Am paid $500,000,000 for 25 747s in 1966 and later increased the order to 33 planes for a total of $765,000,000.

The 747 will carry 58 persons in a forward first-class compartment, and 304 in economy class. The jetliner will include a lounge on an upper deck, reached by spiral staircase from the main deck, and a bar.

The four-man flight crew is housed forward of the lounge, 29 feet above the ground. The plane's tail is higher than the average six-storey building.

The 747 has 10 doors, six galleys and 12 lavatories, and will carry 14 stewardesses.

What of the plane's safety?

John G. Adams, a member of the Civil Aeronautics Board, has said that just as the Comet jet airliner failures in the early 1950s dealt the British aircraft industry a blow from which it never fully recovered, public confidence could desert the 747 for a decade with even a single disaster.

But Gray contends the bigger the airplanes, the safer they are.

Lovesick Lion Makes Margate Like Jungle

MARGATE, England (UPI)—A lovesick lion has been keeping his neighbors awake.

When the lion began roaring his mating calls in the middle of the night at Safari Park Zoo, residents of the nearby home for the elderly were not amused. "It's terrible, just like living in the jungle," complained one resident.

The zoo manager finally solved the problem by moving two lionesses into the lonesome animal's cage.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coroner Glen McDonald called on police, construction firms and workmen to treat every industrial death as a possible homicide after inquiring into the death of Jakob Vesik, 59, who fell to his death from an apartment building under construction. The death was ruled accidental.

HOUSING COSTS BOOSTED BY GOV'T SAYS STANFIELD

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield predicted Wednesday that the government's latest tax proposals will increase housing costs and mortgage rates.

Mr. Stanfield told the Toronto Home Builders Association that "the removal of the capital cost allowances on rental buildings will destroy one of the last incentives in the tax system to investment in apartment construction."

"There will be less private capital available for housing. Interest rates and the cost of housing will go up."

Mr. Stanfield said investment capital will be diverted from housing "when we are already falling short of our minimum needs . . . "

"Positive steps will have to be taken by the government and Parliament to inject sufficient new capital into the housing market to prevent mortgage rates from being driven up to unacceptable heights."

UN Groups Duplicate Work—Canada

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada gingerly suggested Wednesday that United Nations delegations might like to consider talking a little less on a given subject, even one as explosive as apartheid.

Conflict Necessary

EDMONTON (CP) — Dr. Donald Klein, community affairs centre director of the National Institute of Applied Behavioral Science in Washington, D.C., said conflict is a necessary part of social change and there are always differences of opinion.

Canadian delegate Benjamin Rogers did this by mentioning that under the situation prevailing here the same subject sometimes comes before more than one of the General Assembly's seven main committees.

For instance, he said in the budgetary committee, the subject of apartheid—separation of the races in South Africa—is being discussed in three committees this session.

Human environment was before two committees, there were two separate items on the problems of youth on the General Assembly's agenda and some it discussed separately could well be merged under one heading for general debate.

Rogers suggested creation at the next session of the assembly a committee of "three wise men" to thoroughly study the workings of the assembly and its committees.

MOVE COURAGEOUS

Some observers here suggested that it took certain courage even to make passing implication that apartheid—the most important subject before the UN in the minds of many Afro-Asians—might be restricted to discussion in only one committee.

Rogers, admitting he was on controversial ground, said that it has been suggested that "if certain subjects were discussed less frequently, certain agenda items were merged with others and the work load were more evenly distributed, it would be possible to carry on the business of the General Assembly in six main committees, rather than seven."

Rogers also called for a reduction of the number of meetings of the various UN committees, subcommittees and conferences throughout the year. He said that this year it is estimated that the number of these meetings will reach 6,404.

He said that the problem of proliferation of such conferences is becoming more and more acute. Total meetings in 1960 were 2,769, in 1967 the figure was 5,388 and in 1968 it was 5,952.

Tourism Touted

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia communities crying out for government subsidies and incentives for secondary industry should get into the tourist business, Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan told the Vancouver Board of Trade.

BUT PHEASANTS MAKE A GOOD SHOOT

'Sadists, Cannibals' Stalk Alberta Ranch

LAKE ISLE, Alta. (CP) — Pheasants are "foul-tempered cannibals and sadists, but they make a real good shoot."

Tom Walkeden, 74, was explaining why he continues to operate a pheasant ranch for contract shooting despite the trouble and expense.

He compared the flight of a pheasant to that of a jet plane. Ducks and other game birds fly like helicopters by comparison, he said.

"Do-gooders all over the country say it's bad to raise birds for hunting, but believe me pheasants have a hell of a fighting chance.

"You can be right on top of one hiding in the grass. It'll be up and off like a shot almost before you know what happened."

BIRDS CAUSE CONCERN

Mr. Walkeden opened the Lake Isle pheasant ranch 10 years ago as a hobby, starting with 100 hens and 30 cocks. He said it was the only such farm in Canada at the time. Now there are five in Alberta.

Since he started operating the ranch 45 miles west of Edmonton, Mr. Walkeden says he has been fighting a continuous battle against the weather, his bank balance and—what he refers to in a tone betraying his lack of admiration—"civil servants and do-gooders."

The birds—there now are 1,700—also cause some concern.

The Chinese ringneck has some undesirable traits, ranging from the annoying to the repulsive.

In the spring, the young male pheasant turns violently on other pheasants. Once downed, the victim is attacked by as many as a dozen other birds. They eat the flesh, leaving only bones and feathers.

"They're cannibals," Mr. Walkeden said.

For birds sold to hotels he gets $5 each. To hunters he charges $20 a day, plus $5 a bird after the first four.

The birds are raised in cages and some are let out for each hunter. If the hunter doesn't get them, the birds usually come back to their cages at night.

GOT CLEAN BILL

In one three-week period, Mr. Walkeden sold at least 350 birds. They are feathered and cleaned and put in plastic bags and frozen before being turned over to hotels.

Recently, Mr. Walkeden's pheasants got a clean bill of health after being inspected by provincial officials for traces of mercury poisoning. The hunting season in southern Alberta was closed this year because of high-level mercury content found in game birds.

"The inspection cost me $106," Mr. Walkeden said. "Everything in this game costs money.

Swim Pool Tender Call Likely Dec. 17

The first municipal swimming pool in Saanich should be open by next September.

Council will be asked at its Dec. 15 meeting to call for bids on Dec. 17 with a return deadline of Jan. 15. Construction could begin Feb. 1 with the work finished in about six months.

The pool will be at the Torquay-Feltham end of the municipally-owned Lambrick Estate in Gordon Head, just east of Shelbourne Street.

It will be 25 metres with six lanes and the building will also house a 64-by-40-foot community hall, small stage and kitchen.

Estimated cost has been put at $435,000 and ratepayers approved the expenditure in the recreation referendum in 1967.

QUORUM LACK

The Gordon Head Community Centre Committee, which has been tackling the details last year and this, was unable to formalize its agreement because it lacked a quorum of political members.

Only two of the five committee members attended the hour-long meeting Wednesday afternoon—chairman Ald. Alan Newberry and Ald. Willian Noel. Mayor Hugh Curtis, not a member of the committee, also attended. Absent committee members were Aldermen William Campbell, Foster Isherwood and Edward Lum.

Ald. Newberry said "we are unable to move a motion, so we will take it to council that it approve the working drawings and call tenders."

20 Miles of Thread Involved In a Quilting Labor of Love

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Over the past six years an elderly Victoria caretaker has produced 244 bed quilts for people who can't afford them.

He buys material for the covers out of his old-age pension and stuffs them with cloth taken from old shirts and overcoats.

He spends five days on each quilt and produces an average of six a month.

"It's a craft I picked up while farming in Saskatchewan," says 81-year-old Chris Buckle of 645 Dunedin. "I'm a lifelong bachelor and I learned to do these things for myself."

6,000 HOURS

Buckle works in the basement of an apartment house where he is caretaker and gives all his quilts to the Community Welfare Service Centre operated by the Seventh-day Adventist Church at 1117 Blanshard Street.

"I reckon I've put in about 6,000 hours at this work," he said, "and I've used about 20 miles of thread. In all I've spent around $482 on thread and material for the covers.

"This comes out of my old-age pension, but I don't begrudge a penny of it. I like a quilt on my bed when it's cold and I'd like everyone else to have one."

Mrs. Dolly Jewkes, volunteer manager of the welfare centre, said Buckle would not accept any money towards the cost of his quilt-making because the centre sells nothing.

"We give freely to anyone in need and I never knew there were so many needy people in Victoria until I took on this work. Some of them sleep on bare bed springs covered by newspapers, without any mattress."

Mrs. Jewkes pointed proudly to a pile of Chris Buckle's quilts, spread over the table with dolls dressed by volunteers; a neat array of repaired suits and dresses; an old chesterfield, a bed, a dresser and an ancient washing machine.

REPAIR, MEND

"We'll give these to anyone who is in genuine need of them," she said. "But in fairness to the needy, I interview every applicant for assistance to make sure it is a genuine application."

Mrs. Jewkes is assisted by a number of women volunteers — all Seventh-Day Adventists — who take turns in operating the centre.

Much of their time is spent in repairing old clothes, sewing on buttons and patches, mending holes and mending socks.

"It's a labor of love," said Mrs. Jewkes, "and we often get a laugh out of it.

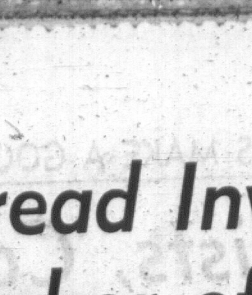

"At this time of the year we receive a lot of children's dolls and some of them are pretty battered. The fun is in trying to make them look presentable and dressing them properly."

At the moment the centre is in desperate need of children's used clothing and would-be donors are asked to phone Mrs. Jewkes at 477-2925.

Also needed are men's and women's clothing of all sizes, household linen and furniture. The demand increases as the season of giving approaches.

So far this year the Adventist centre has helped 1,470 people by giving away 6,772 articles of clothing, 120 quilts, 50 food hampers and 70 pieces of furniture.

Neighbor Noticed Beam From Flashlight

A 17-year-old youth was sentenced in provincial court Wednesday to at least four months at the Haney Correctional Institute for breaking and entering with intent to commit theft.

Robert Haywood, no fixed address, besides the four months definite, received an indeterminate sentence of eight months.

He had earlier pleaded guilty to breaking into a home at 511 Harbinger.

A neighbor of the victimized house noticed a flashlight beam Nov. 12 moving inside the home and when investigating met the accused leaving at the back door.

A struggle ensued and Haywood was apprehended after a chase over 1½ blocks.

Theft Over $50

A 20-year-old youth was sentenced to one day in jail and fined $250 for theft over $50 and his 19-year-old female companion was put on probation for a year for the same offence.

Julien B. Ledoux and Arlie Marsha Gamble, both of 939 Johnson, had earlier been found guilty of shoplifting $89.77 worth of merchandise from The Bay on Nov. 15.

The merchandise included a sealskin wrap, valued at $45.95, and a wig, valued at $29.98.

Ledoux had about $160 in his possession at the time of theft.

"I am sorry to see you here in court but there is no excuse," Judge Ostler told the pair.

"If you want to maintain your relationship, base it on something that will last—not stealing," he added.

"I don't think you are paying any interest to probation," Judge William Ostler said, pointing out probation had previously been used on offences before the Family and Children's Court.

"You have an apparent contempt for the law."

Lost Licence

John Gagnon pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was fined $500.

Gagnon, of 2638 Roseberry, also had his driver's licence suspended.

He was stopped by police Dec. 2 after he turned the wrong way onto one-way Fort Street from Government.

Gagnon had a similar conviction in 1963 and had pleaded guilty to creating a disturbance within the last three or four days.

Fence Hit

Roderick L. Cupp, 21, HMCS Yukon, was fined $300 for impaired driving.

He was also prohibited from driving in Canada for four months.

The accused was driving south on Broad Oct. 7 when he hit the brakes, slid through the intersection at View and collided with a picket fence and some planters belonging to T. Eaton Ltd., 1150 Douglas.

Cupp then switched places with one of the two occupants of the car and drove away.

The car was eventually stopped by police at Broad and Fort and the accused admitted driving earlier.

PHOSPHATE LOWERING IN DETERGENTS URGED

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave routine first reading Wednesday to a bill sponored by David Anderson (L-Esquimalt-Saanich) to lower the phosphate content of detergents to less than two per cent.

Anderson said 30 per cent of water pollution is caused by detergent phosphates. He added that phosphate content can be lowered without reducing cleaning power or without extra cost to the housewife.

Microwave Vetoed For Cable TV Use

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission Wednesday handed down an unqualified decision against the use of microwave to carry United States TV signals for wide distribution in Canada.

Pierre Juneau, CRTC chairman, made the announcement at a news conference where he outlined several other policies the commission may follow in the future regulation of broadcasting.

The issue of whether to allow the use of microwave to carry U.S. programs over great distances for distribution by cable has been before the CRTC since July.

In a written statement, Mr. Juneau said the commission feared that a rapid acceleration in the influx of U.S. programs "could disrupt the Canadian broadcasting system within a few years."

The CRTC heard both sides of the argument over microwave at public hearings in Vancouver in mid-October and in Ottawa last week.

Cable operators and viewers argued that since U.S. programs were available to those close to the border, either through regular antennae or cable systems, the same service should not be denied those in more northerly areas.

Microwave was the only practical means of carrying TV signals over great distances, they said.

COMPETITION STIFF

Many broadcasters, however, said that small local stations would not be able to withstand the competition from U.S. networks. The use of microwave, they said, would make it impossible to develop a distinct Canadian broadcasting service.

Mr. Juneau said the commission had taken account of both arguments.

"The Canadian broadcasting system is worth safeguarding only if it provides the Canadian population with essential services which could not be provided otherwise.

"It would not make sense to protect a Canadian system based essentially on the retailing of programs using predominantly non-Canadian creatives and other resources."

To develop Canadian broadcasting, Mr. Juneau said there will be a renewed emphasis in future on the responsibility of broadcasters to provide a distinctive, expanded service.

Cable operators would be expected to originate programming, perhaps through the development of cable networks.

As this programming developed, Mr. Juneau said, the commission might decide to limit the amount of U.S. fare now being carried on cable systems in areas near the border.

EXTRA EFFORT REQUIRED

"The implementation of the present decision will require a considerable effort to produce the programs required to achieve successful communication among Canadians.

"The decision rests on the conviction among Canadians.

"The decision rests on the conviction that there is in Canada the talent and the ability in the various fields of expression and knowledge to make effective use of a complex communication system."

Mr. Juneau said the commission was concerned about those in areas where U.S. television signals cannot be picked up without using microwave. "But we have taken the position that we won't accelerate further the wholesale importation of U.S. programs."

He said he was confident cable systems would be installed in remote areas to carry the Canadian networks. The use of microwave to carry Canadian programs in Canada was permissible but would have to be examined with each cable TV licence application.

The CRTC also announced Wednesday it will not encourage communications common carriers to become operators of cable TV systems.

The commission added, however, that in some circumstances common carriers may be the only means of providing cable service.

EXPRESSED CONCERN

The announcement also expressed concern about relationships between cable operators and the carriers.

Cable operators frequently complain about the type of arrangement they have to make with the carriers to get their cable up. CJCH-TV in Halifax, told the commission at last week's hearing that because communications department regulations forced it to use a common carrier, the costs of following CRTC instructions to expand into southwestern Nova Scotia were exorbitant.

It would have been much cheaper to build a private microwave system, the station said.

Maritime Telephone and Telegraph operates the Nova Scotia carrier.

In a separate study released Wednesday, the CRTC said that out of 4,000,000 urban households in Canada, 926,000 were cable TV subscribers as of September 1.

Election Contest Pleases Unionist

Murray Drew, president of the 2,049-member Victoria local of International Woodworkers of America, is being opposed in annual elections for the second time in 7½ years.

But he said Wednesday he welcomes a contest.

"I've said many, many times any member in good standing is qualified to run for office. I've always encouraged criticism; this keeps us on our toes. How else are you going to know how people feel?" Drew said.

But he could not confirm or deny the suggestion that pressure is being put on the Victoria local's executive from higher up in the woodworkers' organization.

It is alleged within the union that opposition was put up at the urging of the IWA region executive, which has been criticized locally.

Two other local officers, first vice-president Joe Fowler, and third vice-president Jack Groves, also are challenged in the election, for which balloting begins next week.

Larry Sloat, chairman of the local's Pt. Ellice sawmill division, is nominated for president; former local financial secretary Edwin Haw for first vice-president, and Art Casson, chairman of the local's B.C. Forest Products plywood division, is running for third vice-president.

Sloat has already tried for the post of local representative on the regional executive, losing to Drew by a margin of 2-1.

Second vice-president Roger Lewis was chosen by acclamation.

Both Drew and Casson, who said he was speaking for himself in the matter, had no knowledge of the suggestion that the contest was set up at the urging of the regional council.

"I don't know where that came from. I don't know if it is correct," said Drew.

It is known, however, that Drew often is critical of regional president Jack Moore.

Casson said he felt the opposing slate was the result of dissent within the local on matters of policy in the IWA. In his own case, he said, he considered it important that the 300 members he represents as plant chairman should have a voice at the executive level.

Result of the local ballot is expected to be known in about two weeks.

'It Isn't Lousy French'

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

MONTREAL (CP) — One of the most durable myths held in English Canada about French-Canadians is that they speak poor French.

Prime Minister Trudeau did nothing to weaken it with his famous remark to a Hamilton audience, when he was justice minister in 1968, about the "lousy French" spoken in Quebec.

How much truth there is in this myth is a question of argument between those purists who think nothing less than classical French will do and those pragmatists who say the language that is valid is the language the people speak.

Essayist Henri Belanger, who belongs to the latter group, defends Quebec French in an article in the literary quarterly Ecrits du Canada Francais—Writings of French Canada. The expressions and the intonations that are peculiar to Quebec are precious to him because they are the product of his people's experience as a unique society in North America.

A fishmonger in Marseille may not speak the same way as a lawyer in Paris, but he is not ashamed of the way he speaks. And the mill worker in Trois-Rivieres need not be ashamed either, Mr. Belanger would argue.

VIEWS IN CONFLICT

He insists that you are violating a man's innermost sense of himself if you force alien expressions upon him in his everyday language, in place of those that he learned at home, at his mother's knee. Mr. Belanger's article, of course, is in the context of French only. The article has nothing to do with the speaking of more than one language.

Mr. Belanger's position puts him in conflict with what might be called the official ideology, for there has been a great emphasis in recent years on international uniformity of expression and linguistic standards. This is part of the phenomenon of francophonie—of increasing awareness of the rest of the French-speaking world.

For example, he sees a certain cultural snobbishness in the Quebec royal commission on education, which studied Quebec's education problems to their depths and proposed a comprehensive reform program. He suggests the commission reached "the summit of silliness" when it recommended the use of language laboratories for instruction in the mother tongue.

He laments a statement, attributed to Pierre Laporte, Quebec cultural affairs minister in 1965, that "we are of French culture and French culture comes from France."

TRUE NORMS IGNORED

Thus, the long French cultural experience in North America meant nothing, and would have to be blotted out lest it harm the "official" culture. The "norms of written and spoken French in Quebec," decreed by the cultural affairs department, virtually ignored "the true norms of our usage."

Mr. Belanger goes back to 1958, when the Association Canadienne des Educateurs de Langue Francaise—Canadian Association of French-Speaking Teachers—held a conference in Chicoutimi, Que., on this subject, to find the origin of the trend he deplores. The ACELF adopted a resolution stating that French-Canada's place among "civilized nations" depends upon the extent to which its French conforms to the criteria of France, and that it would be wrong to try to create "a French-Canadian idiom."

Mr. Belanger says a French-Canadian idiom had already existed for two centuries prior to the Chicoutimi conference, embodying many experiences and sentiments unfamiliar in France.

He sees the Quebec government's attitude as a natural consequence of the mistake formulated by the ACELF and "violently propagated" by the Montreal daily newspaper Le Devoir.

He thinks that under the present cultural affairs minister, Jean-Noel Tremblay, this attitude is being questioned, and the idea of the French classics as the yardstick of all cultural values may be losing ground. But the decreed norms, he feels, are still there.

Lang Speaks

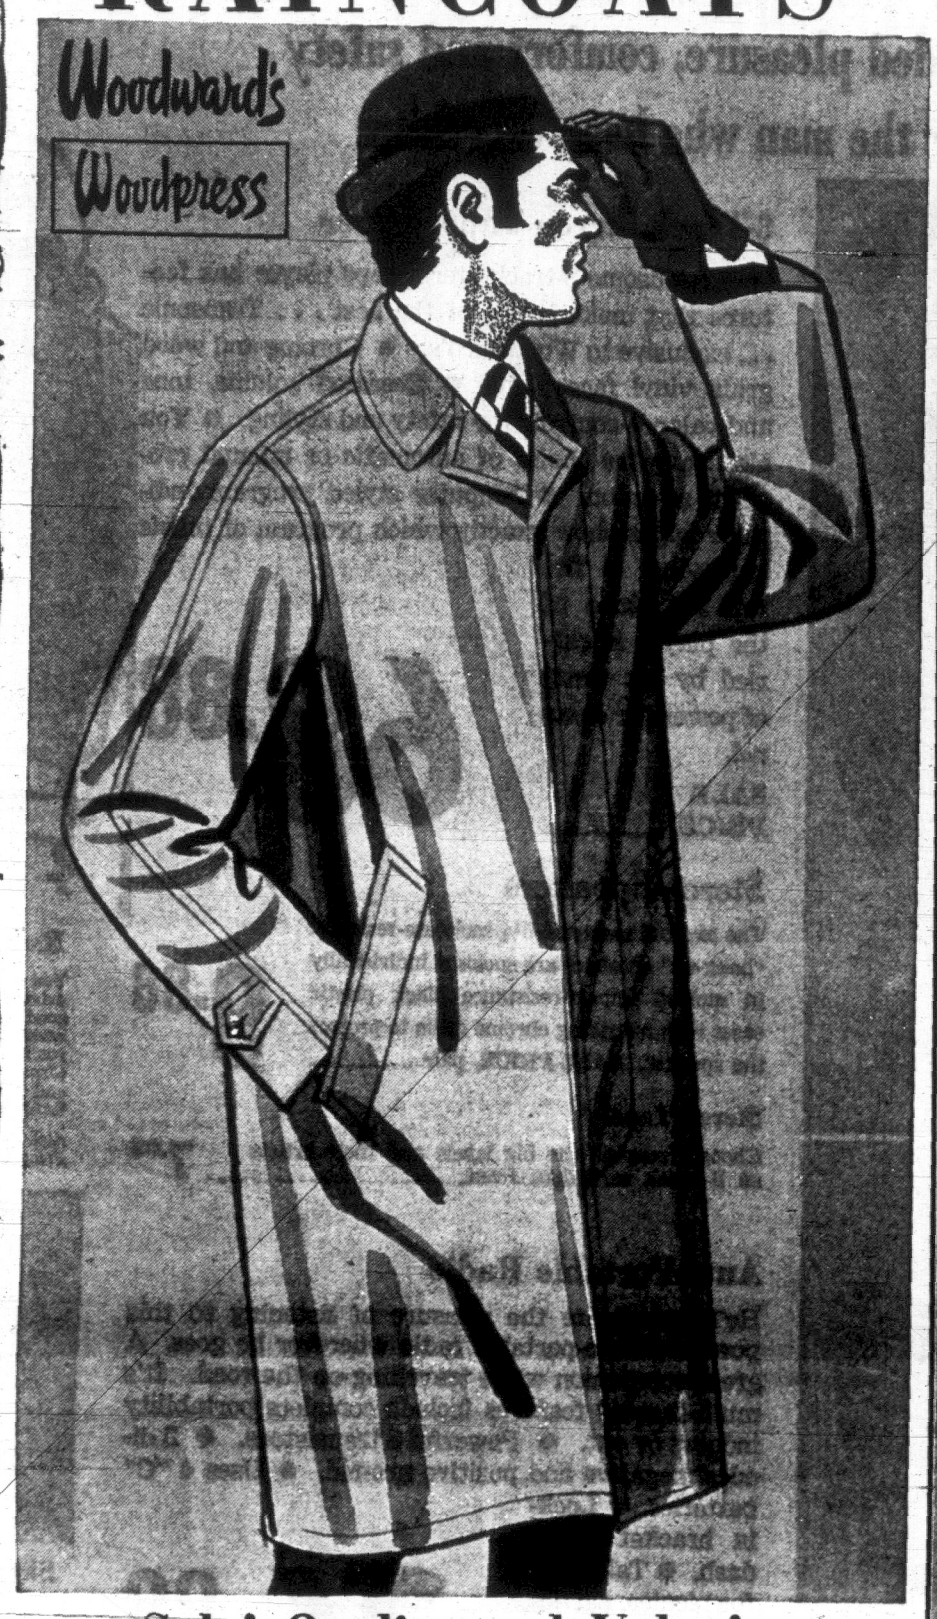

SASKATOON (CP) — Otto Lang, minister without portfolio responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board, told the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union convention Wednesday that he will take every possible action to stop the unlawful movement of feed grain across provincial boundaries.

Husband Jailed

CALGARY (CP) — Marcel Rolande Parrish, 30, was sentenced Wednesday to eight years for the manslaughter stabbing of his wife, Janice, July 8.

THE DUCK WATCHER

THE DUCK PLUCKER

THE GREEN PEPPER PEELER

THE MASTER CHEF

Gasping Gourmet Discovers Graham Kerr Knows Best

By John Duffus

THE GRAHAM KERR COOKBOOK by The Galloping Gourmet. Doubleday. $8.50.

The trouble started with the appearance of the Graham Kerr Cookbook by the Galloping Gourmet himself.

His cooking looks easy on television, and his book is so elegantly illustrated that all difficulties appear to be removed. The trouble is this case cannot be blamed on Graham Kerr. We made a serious initial mistake.

In the beginning there was my wife saying "Would you like to review a cookbook?"

Then came the fall. The book happened to fall open at a recipe for Queensland duck just as my wife reminded me of the overcrowded conditions in the poultry yard.

The book says: Method of preparation—Cut duck into four even-size pieces.

What duck?

So, first you choose your duck.

A Short Chat

This involves a period of hand-feeding, standing in the rain, and some conversation with the duck to gain its confidence so you can grab it.

In the present instance, a rather old and slow drake happened to come to hand, and the first minor deviation from the recipe occurred: For 2½ to 3-pound duckling 16 weeks old substitute 5 to 8-pound drake of advanced age.

Off with its head and start plucking.

As the plucker slowly disappears under the fuzz, so does any initial enthusiasm. Eventually we resorted to the wax method, by painting a thick coat of melted paraffin over the corpse with a paint brush.

When hard, the wax pulls off the down and feathers very neatly. Enthusiasm rises, and the future of the remaining flock of ducks looks dim.

Unlovely Sight

The drawing of the duck is best left to the imagination. Working the insides loose from the rib cage seems to be the best preparation and after that your surgical intuition is your guide.

(At this point an unexpected guest arrived, but she quietened down after a short fit of screaming.)

We are now ready for Step 1 of the book.

Three hours have elapsed. (One trip has been made to the grocery store, and the guest had to go back for a pound of butter.)

So, cut the duck in four pieces. There is no further guidance from the Galloping Gourmet as to how to do this, so we used a splendid flexible wire saw Penny Saver had discovered.

One person holds the duck and another rasps away. If you're planning a prison break with one of these saws disguised as a watch chain, forget it. But it will cut duck. If it can cut this one it can cut them all.

It has now become apparent that this duck has mettle. Even in its present state it has put up a certain passive resistance.

We decide that instead of boiling it for 45 minutes as suggested, perhaps an hour and 45 minutes would be better.

While this goes on, the chef prepares two sweet green peppers by skinning and dicing them.

Why one should worry about the difficulty of chewing through a pepper skin when one is to be faced with the hide of this duck is puzzling. But we want to be fair to our television hero, so skin them we do.

The Poke Test

When it is possible to poke a fork into the cooking duck, which now has the texture of grey leather, remove it from the pot and try to improve its appearance by frying it in clarified butter for 15 minutes.

Then put it back in the pot with some of the cooking liquid and jazz it up a bit by simmering it with the peppers, about 30 ounces of diced pineapple, 2 teaspoons of soy sauce, a teaspoon of ginger, a tablespoon of salt, and fresh ground black peppercorns to taste.

Rice and beans are now prepared in separate pots and the duck is placed on a platter in the warming oven.

Crucial Moment

Some of the liquid is now converted into a sauce by the addition of flour and cooked until thick. The cookbook would have us use arrowroot but there was no time for another trip to the grocery. Things are at a critical stage.

One taste of the sauce suffices.

More salt, more pepper, more ginger and a twist of lemon. On second thought, squeeeze in the whole lemon.

Ladle the sauce over the duck and serve with rice and beans. The sauce and rice are delicious, as are the beans. Put the unused portion of the duck back in the pot. A day or two later it will be as tender and flavorful as beef stew.

(Of course the duck should have been hung for a few days, until its feet dropped off or something. This duck we should have thrown away with the feet. However . . .)

Go by the Book

For two other recipes for preparing duck, see Graham Kerr's excellent book and FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS.

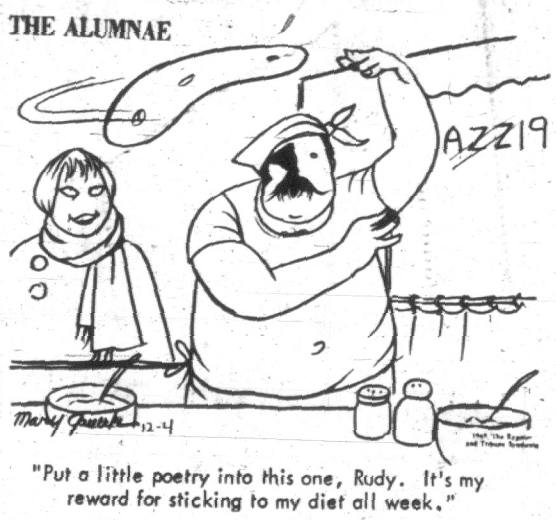

The book would make a splendid Christmas present for any cook, accomplished or reluctant. There are a lot of helpful photographs, and the instructions are very orderly.

Recipes are divided into two sections according to their complexity, giving full scope to the application of the Peter Principle.

Success is practically guaranteed, but even the Galloping Gourmet himself admits to a failure with a tough duck.

"Tenderness is quite a point with me," he says in another recipe, "because I once planned a dinner for New Zealand's governor-general. The roast Aylesbury duckling was so tough that even a fiercely wielded vice-regal fork could not penetrate its golden crust!"

THE ALUMNAE

"Put a little poetry into this one, Rudy. It's my reward for sticking to my diet all week."

Federal Government Asked to Test Toys

OTTAWA (UPI) — The federal consumer affairs department should accept responsibility for testing the safety of all toys put on the Canadian market, according to New Democratic Party member Grace MacInnis.

Mrs. MacInnis issued a statement contending that the present toy testing council, a volunteer organization, cannot handle the job alone.

A three-year-old boy in Montreal recently escaped injury from sulphuric acid which spilled from the battery of a toy car, she related. "How many more accidents must there be before the government decides to set up the necessary machinery for testing?" Mrs. MacInnis asked.

In the House of Commons, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said the government has been working for six months to draw up a safety standard for toys.

The matter is extremely complicated," he told the lady legislator. "The British have been working eight years drawing up such a standard. I am confident we will be much quicker than the British," he said.

Plastic Poinsettias Replace Ribbons

By PENNY SAVER

Mathilda sat cross-legged in the middle of the room, her wide-legged purple jump-suit clashing with the welter of red and green ribbon and wrapping paper.

Her long braid was uncoiled from her head and the stems of plastic poinsettias had been stuck through it at intervals. More flowers perched on her ears.

Each of her beautifully polished nails was adorned with a length of Scotch tape, which she proceeded to distribute around the box in her hands.

Then, with a deft twist, she ringed the box with ribbon, sealed it with another strip of tape and began to fumble for a poinsettia.

"My ribbons were always getting crunched in the mail," she said as she tucked the flower into place. "So I decided to try this instead. The flowers can be added to existing decorations, or, if the family is large enough as some I send to are, can be fashioned into a centrepiece for the dinner table.

"I found terribly realistic plastic poinsettias from 19 cents to 89 cents. Some come in bunches and there was both white and red to choose from. Some were sparkled with glitter, others were finished to look like leather. And there was plastic holly and other kinds of greenery as well."

A cup of tea drew Mathilda out of her task for a few minutes and she told me about some of the other decoration ideas she had seen while shopping.

"One item that fascinated me, though I'd never need such a thing myself, was packages of wooden toothpicks for appetizers at Christmas parties.

"Each toothpick was topped by a tiny Santa Claus head. A package of 12 is $1.25, however, so they are hardly economy items."

"In another store I found decorations that are to be made up from the materials provided. These kits might be the very thing to keep some children calm and busy during the few days he, or more likely she, is out of school before Christmas Day itself."

These kits, she went on, are $3.15 each. There are four door decorations to choose from. The designs, so far as she could tell, were made by stitching things like sequins and braid onto a cloth backing. "I seem to remember one of Santa's face, but the others I didn't notice." These I am sure contain only one decoration per kit.

Another kit at the same price contains materials to make four decorated covers for light switches.

If you would like to know where Mathilda found these items, please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

BALLOON MAN ATTENDS FAIR

Balloon Man of Victoria, Mike Bennett, will be on hand when the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded holds its Christmas Fair Saturday. With Mr. Bennett in the picture is general convener Rita Stringer. They'll be accompanied by Santa Claus and a fortune teller from 12:30 noon to 7:30 p.m. at the K of P Hall, 723 Cormorant Street. Handicrafts and gourmet delicacies made by the Elford Street trainees will be on sale as well as stalls of homebaking, needlework and novelties. Mrs. W. C. Woodward will open the fair.

Nursery School Has Strange Problem: Not Enough Pupils for Available Staff

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Volunteers running a nursery school for children with problems have only one complaint. They haven't enough children making use of the school.

They are working with retarded and deprived children three mornings a week in a church building.

They are teaching a two year-old boy to learn to use his tongue so he can learn to talk. They encourage him to blow out a candle, and put honey or peanut butter on his lips so he will lick it off. They think he will be able to say baby and bye-bye by the end of the year.

The children are given a chance to play with balls, crawl under chairs and somersault on mats. All of them play with water and mud.

VEGETATE AT HOME

Nancy Cullen, the housewife who supervises the school, says she thinks the children are not allowed some forms of play at home because they would have to be watched and cleaned up afterward.

"I have the feeling that television is the main entertainment for these children, and they sit and vegetate."

The school has been operating for five years. Mrs. Cullen and her six volunteers have all had some previous experience. The Barrie Kinsmen supply funds so the children may be picked up and taken home. The church donates its facilities, and some aid comes from the United Appeal.

Mrs. Cullen says: "We have the staff, we have the desire. All we are lacking are more children to make use of what we are offering."

The children are referred to the school by a doctor or public health unit.

"These children, including the mentally retarded, can some day become self-sufficient and will eventually have a meaningful life.

"They will feel that they belong in the world, a very significant thing because they are more aware of success and failure than ordinary people."

Deaf to Hold Sunday Party

Three women will sing Silent Night in the sign language of the deaf when the Society for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing holds its first Christmas party Sunday in the Scouts' Hall, Chester Avenue.

Mrs. Laura Cook, Mrs. J. H. Walcot and Mrs. J. Yeamen will be accompanied on the concert zither by Mrs. Frances C. Pusnik.

The society's party begins at 4 p.m. and dinner will be served. The Victoria Women's Institute and Victoria stores are helping the society put on the party, which is open to the public.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Accused Speaks Out

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: When young people date one of a different race (and I mean color) they tend to develop stronger relationships because they are defensive about the raised eyebrows and stares that follow them in public.

A child will say to his parents, "If I marry one of another race, it's my life and my business!"

This is not quite true, because the parents will have to bear the stares and raised eyebrows with him.

And if their great love miraculously survives the rejection they are sure to meet on both sides, their children will have to pay the price of never fully belonging to one race or the other.

Don't we have the right to speak for our unborn grandchildren who cannot as yet speak for themselves?

I am sure that if the truth were told, most Oriental and Negro parents are as much opposed to these mixed marriages as we Caucasian parents. And where do the white kids get the supreme arrogance to think that other races have less pride and are better off diluted by Caucasian blood?

What is wrong with evaluating an individual for his own worth, but not accepting interracial marriage as the answer?—Accused Of Prejudice

DEAR ACCUSED: Witness the unconventional appearance adopted by so many of our young people today, and it is obvious that they aren't as disturbed by raised eyebrows and stares as their parents.

I, too, believe that most Oriental and Negro parents would prefer that their children marry within their own races. I also think that many of our fine, liberal young whites go in for interracial marriage in a conscious effort to give more than lip service to the lofty ideals of "equality and brotherhood." But many are motivated by the unconscious desire to have that which has been forbidden by their parents. And parents who discourage such marriages are unfairly labeled bigots.

DEAR ABBY: We have a Tuesday afternoon bridge club, and the same women have been playing together for a number of years. I win my share, but this last year I found that I had been winning less and less. I just happened to check over the scores and I discovered that one of the girls has been padding her score, like putting a one in front of a 200 when she added the scores for the day's game.

I am just sick to think that she would do such a thing. What is the best way to solve this problem without embarrassing her?—No Name Or Town Please

DEAR NO NAME: Tell her privately. Of course she'll be embarrassed, but the embarrassment will be minimized which is more consideration than she deserves.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

TODAY'S RECIPE

SWEET AND SOUR CHUNK LIGHT TUNA

Three tablespoons butter; 14 oz. can pineapple chunks; 1 cup julienned green pepper; 2½ tablespoons cornstarch; 1 teaspoon soy sauce; 2 tablespoons lemon juice; ½ cup sugar; 1½ cups chicken bouillon (use bouillon cubes); 2 cans 6-½ oz. chunk light tuna; ¼ teaspoon salt; freshly ground pepper; canned chow mein noodles.

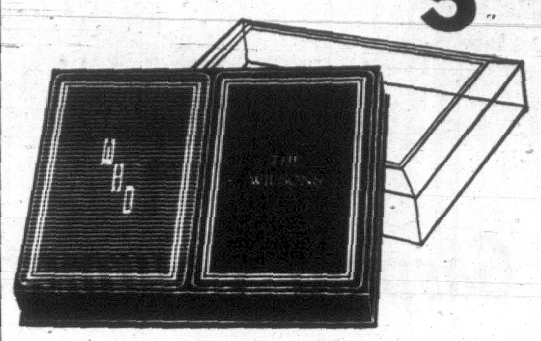

Drain pineapple, reserving juice. In a saucepan, cook drained pineapple in butter about 3 minutes. Add ½ cup of the juice and the green pepper (julienne strips are about the size of a match).

Blend cornstarch and remaining juice. Stir this into hot pineapple mixture along with soy sauce, lemon juice, sugar and bouillon. Stir-cook over medium heat until thickened. Add chunk light tuna with its bit of broth, salt and pepper. Heat to serving temperature. Serve very hot over noodles. (Yields 6 servings.)

North Americans Ridicule Exercise, Face Flabby Future

(The three-day White House conference on food, nutrition and health, this week, was organized by Jean Mayer, one of the world's leading nutritionists. French-born, and hero of the French Underground in the Second World War, Dr. Mayer is professor of nutrition, lecturer on the history of public health and a member of the Centre for Population Studies at Harvard.)

By JEAN MAYER

WASHINGTON —The contrast in appearance between the lean, hard, active hunter or pilgrim and the fat, soft, sedentary merchant, clerk or squatting Buddha is one of the oldest human traditions.

The most ancient sagas have similarly contrasted mountaineers and plainsmen, nomadic tribes, and settled populations living off the fat of the land.

The belief that lack of exercise makes people fat is well nigh universal. Yet in the past two decades, on the western side of the Atlantic at any rate, the role of exercise in weight control has been minimized, if not ridiculed. Americans, once justly proud of being the most vigorous and active group in the west, are daily absorbing propaganda advocating prolonged self-enforced starvation as the exclusive way of staying "in shape."

No Proof

Has experimental or clinical science actually disproved the association of adiposity and inactivity?

Far from it. Actually, it seems actuated, in most cases, by a desire to "push" a fad diet or a miracle drug; it is bolstered by arguments derived from two misconceptions.

The first erroneous view is that exercise requires relatively little caloric expenditure. Were this true, it would follow that even high levels of physical activity could be of only small importance in the balance between calories ingested and calories expended.

The second false idea is that, at any level of caloric intake, an increase in physical activity is automatically followed by an increase in appetite and is, therefore, self-defeating as a weight control measure.

Up to 6,000

The first misconception, minimizing the cost of physical activity, could be avoided by anyone who has carefully perused a table of caloric requirements put out by the League of Nations, the U.S. National Research Council or, more recently) the Food and Agriculture and the World Health Organizations of the United Nations.

For example, the daily allowances for men given by the National Research Council vary from 2,400 calories for sedentary men to 4,500 calories for very active men. Laborers and athletes are advised by the NRC that they may require up to (and occasionally more than) 6,000 calories.

Results of the cost of different kinds of exercise are usually expressed in terms of an average man of definite physical characteristics.

The cost of walking (in terms of caloric expenditure over the cost of sitting) varies from 200 to 350 calories per hour depending on the speed for a 150-pound man; swimming will consume twice as much.

A caloric expenditure rate of 500 to 600 calories per hour represents a degree of physical activity which can be comfortably endured for at least half an hour by an average healthy adult, even if he is out of condition. A trained man should feel all the better after a full hour or more of such exercise.

Depends on Size

Even more important, it has already been noted that the cost of activity is dependent on the subject's size. In exercises where no heavy object outside the body is moved, the cost of exercise increases proportionately to body weight. If excess body weight be such that it impairs body movement, the cost of exercise will actually increase faster than does body weight.

The proportionality of the cost of physical activity to weight has another important result; any increase of caloric intake above the balance level will cause far less of a weight increase in an active individual than a sedentary person.

In other words, the active person will expend some of this extra intake carrying about on the tennis court or the golf course, whatever fat he is storing.

By contrast, in the sedentary person, only the slow increase in passive heat loss which follows the expansion of his waistline, and of his body surface, eventually starts matching the daily addition of his caloric consumption of, say, a dessert at supper. In effect, the active man has two brakes on weight gain: increased cost of exercise and increased basal metabolism.

Let us now examine the second major argument against exercising to control weight, namely, that it is a self-defeating practice.

The idea that in increase in appetite normally follows an increase in activity is true if the subject was reasonably active to start with. The mechanism of regulation of appetite adjusts caloric intake to expenditure so that the body will not burn away its substance if called upon to perform a suddenly increased amount of work.

However, this relation does not hold if the subject was inactive to start with: Decreasing activity below a certain limit will no longer be accompanied by a decrease in appetite.

Main Cause

This finding explains why underexercising rather than overeating as much may well be the more important cause of the prevalence of overweight today.

The role of decreased activity seems particularly important in childhood obesity. In general, the large psychiatric literature dealing with this vexing problem has tried to explain why obese children overeat: as a result of parental neglect or as a protection in excessive shyness, among some reasons.

But although a particularly observant child psychiatrist, Dr. Hilde Bruch, has noted that obese children were often inactive, it is only recently that the basic assumption has been questioned: Do all obese children eat excessively as compared to children of normal weight, or could some of them get their caloric supplement from underexercising?

School Study

A study we conducted on high school girls first showed that inactivity is indeed the major factor in perpetuating obesity in many, if not most overweight youngsters. Examination of the dietary intake and of the schedule of equal groups of overweight and normal weight girls, matched for age and height, showed that the obese students fell into two groups.

Too Much TV

One group, and by far the larger, contained girls who ate no more than the girls of normal weight but who exercised considerably less. All the sitting activities were emphasized at the expense of walking and active sports. Television watching consumed four times as many hours in this group as it did in the normal weight group.

The second group (the existence of which emphasized the fact that there is more than one cause of obesity) ate more than the normal and exercised normally. These were of the red cheeked, cheerful type and while overweight, they appeared less overfat than the inactive group. Other studies indicate that the same situation prevails with boys as well.

Obesity thus appears to be in many instances a disease of civilization. Mechanizations of work and of transportation combine to decrease physical exercise.

For many of us, physical activity has been so decreased by our mode of life, that we no longer respond to a further decrease in exercise by a further decrease in appetite. Excess calories accordingly accumulate as fat.

If we want to avoid this, we must either exercise more or feel hungry all our lives.

Discounting the value of playing nine holes of golf because it is equivalent to only a slice of apple pie a la mode is all the more dangerous because the person so advised will not play the nine holes of golf, but may still have an appetite so regulated that he will eat the pie and ice cream.

Labor Problem Insoluble

REGINA (CP) — Complete equality between men and women in the labor force will never occur until it is biologically possible for men to bear children, says Doris Caven, president of Regina's Business and Professional Women's Club. Since that's unlikely to happen, employers must change their thinking and realize today's women are successfully combining careers and marriage.

Red China Hopes to Break Soviet Monopoly in E. Europe

VIENNA, Austria (Reuters) — China is strengthening ties with Eastern European countries in an apparent move to break Moscow's near-monopoly in the area and to offer Communist governments an alternative political line.

Peking sent a new ambassador to Romania in June. Since then China has signed an agreement with Yugoslavia to exchange ambassadors, ending an 11-year freeze in Peking-Belgrade relations.

Two features common to Romania and Yugoslavia—and which they share with Albania, China's ally in East Europe—are that neither has Red Army troops stationed on its soil and that both reject the Brezhnev doctrine of limited sovereignty in the socialist world.

This doctrine, named after the Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev, was cited as justification for the armed Russian intervention in Czechoslovakia in August, 1968. Throughout China's cultural revolution, which at times appeared almost to amount to civil war, Eastern Europe was largely forgotten. Virtually all China's ambassadors were recalled to Peking for indoctrination.

Now the ideological ice age, during which Peking demanded nothing short of total commitment to its own political values, appears to have ended.

HUNGARY WOOED

Hungary recently was singled out in Chinese propaganda as a country which, under Communist party leader Janos Kadar, is blazing a trail toward stronger nationalism and independence from the Moscow line.

Some time may elapse before China succeeds in re-establishing ambassadorial ties with Hungary. However the country is the logical next target for Peking's new diplomacy since it is the most flexible of the remaining East European states.

Recent Chinese propaganda dismisses Poland and Bulgaria as hirelings of "the new czars" —Peking's terms for the Kremlin leaders.

And in China's view, both East Germany and Czechoslovakia are so dominated by the Soviet Union they are incapable of independent thought in the sphere of international diplomacy and ideological relations.

City Airport Ranks 18th In Activity

Aircraft movements for Victoria ranked 18th among all Canadian landing fields during October.

Figures compiled by the aviation statistics centre at Ottawa were reported here by the Canadian Owners and Pilots Association, Victoria flight.

The more than 200 landings and takeoffs a day at Victoria International Airport at Patricia Bay placed Victoria ahead of Gander, Halifax, Regina and Windsor in total traffic.

Pat Bay traffic was bettered by Saskatoon, Moncton and London, among the medium-sized terminals.

The busiest airport in the country, said COPA, is at St. Hubert, with three times the traffic handled by Victoria and double the volume of Vancouver International, which stood 10th.

Local flight activity at Pat Bay during October accounted to 4,066 movements, or about half the total activity. There were 3,850 itinerant aircraft landings and takeoffs.

At the eight B.C. airports having control towers there were 28,100 itinerant aircraft movements in the month, of which 11,500 were at Vancouver.

Locally there were 355 simulated landings or training approaches, making 11th place, just behind Vancouver with 364 approaches.

Lake Residents Ducking Heavy Anti-Duck Fire

NORTH COWICHAN — Ducks are flying and Quamichan Lake residents are ducking, North Cowichan council was told Wednesday.

"People are shooting from powerboats and canoes without regard for human safety," Ald. Margaret Robertson said. "Signs should be posted forbidding anyone shooting on the lake."

Mayor Don Morton suggested a petition be started by the protesters because hunting everywhere in the municipality will be under scrutiny before the next hunting season opens.

"They better be ready because the hunters and their game associations will be well organized."

When Mrs. Robertson suggested an immediate ban be placed on Quamichan Lake, Morton pointed out that Somenos Lake had been closed to hunting since 1960

ROBERTSON
... "ban shooting"

but that hadn't stopped some hunters.

"You can still hear them firing away in the fog," he said.

Ald. John Cannon defended hunters' rights contending that no one had been "killed with a shotgun" in the Delta area near Richmond despite its much greater population.

"Hunters shouldn't be discriminated against either."

Mrs. Robertson said anyone rowing around the lake was taking his life in his hands. At least six people had called to complain, some said they had been shot at.

"The RCMP and the peace officer have been very prompt but by the time they get there the culprits have gone," she said.

Two men using a canoe were frequently seen on the lake.

Dead ducks found floating indicated the shooters were not interested in the game but just in killing, Mrs. Robertson said.

"If it is a matter of public safety then it is time to insist on a competency rule for hunters such as they have in some other countries," Cannon said after the meeting.

Safety Meet Scheduled For Tonight

DUNCAN — A public meeting for people, firms and organizations interested in the formation of a regional accident committee will be held tonight at 7:30 in the Alexander Elementary School gymnasium.

Provisional secretary D. R. McRae said today it is hoped the organization formed will become a chapter of the British Columbia Safety Council.

"Industry and commerce already are well organized in accident prevention but this is not the case in the home and on the highway," McRae said. "Little wonder that employees are safer on the job than away from it."

J. R. Arnold, representative of the B.C. Safety Council, and Dennis Wagner, manager of Capital Region Safety Council, will speak.

Discussion will be interspersed with the showing of five films on safety.

School Named For Resident

LAKE COWICHAN — The name of A. B. Greenwell, a longtime village resident, will be given to a new open area school in appreciation for services to the school district during the last 20 years.

The school board announced today the change of name will have approval of the education department. It is now known as South Shore Primary.

JOKERS RETURN PINCHED ANCHOR TO BASTION

NANAIMO — An anchor taken by pranksters in late October was returned Wednesday to its proper spot at the famous tourist attraction, The Bastion, police said today.

They were informed of its return by an anonymous caller. It was taken, along with a sign from Malaspina College, and held for ransom to the United Appeal fund.

College students raised $333 to get the sign back but the Native Sons, owners of the anchor, refused to ante up.

The sign was returned to its regular place more than two weeks ago.

'I Just Got Panicky'

NANAIMO — Roger A. Manser, 24, of Powell River was fined $150 and had his licence suspended for three months after pleading guilty in court Wednesday to falling remain at the scene of an accident.

Manser, a student at the voctional training school here, was charged Tuesday in connection with an accident at nearby Harewood Oct. 29.

He told the court he was driving on Fourth Street in Harewood when the car hit a patch of black ice and slid into a parked vehicle.

'I just got panicky and took off," he said.

Judge William Philpott gave him until Jan. 15 to pay the fine.

Vocation Classes Double

DUNCAN — More than twice as many local residents have been sponsored by Canada Manpower on full-time vocational classes this year compared with 1968, says district manager R. S. Robinson.

Robinson said that 81 adults have been sponsored in courses ranging from accounting to welding since they began in April. Last year 35 adults were sponsored in the same seven-month period.

Although most persons are attending school in Victoria and Nanaimo, he said, others are at school as far away as Saskatoon.

Canada Manpower estimates that it is spending about $2,000 on each of these local students.

This includes the cost of the course, a living allowance of up to $80 a week, a supplementary allowance for married men who have to leave home for the course and trainee travel grants to enable a student to travel to a school elsewhere in British Columbia.

"This means that over $150,000 has been spent on training people from this area since April," Robinson said.

In the nation as a whole, Canada Manpower expects to train 325,000 adults this year in full-time and part-time course, at a total cost of $250 million.

"This is considered an investment in the labor force that will be paid back several times in the workers' increased productivity," Robinson said.

SALLY ANN REQUESTS GRANT BOOST

NORTH COWICHAN — The Salvation Army's request Wednesday that North Cowichan's grant of $30 be restored to the $75 it gave prior to the Second World War was referred to the finance committee.

The army said in a letter to council there is an increased need for funds to aid unwed mothers.

A request for financial support to maintain the newly-opened Senior Citizens' and Teen Town Activity Centre in Duncan was also referred to the finance committee for consideration in the 1970 budget.

Mayor Don Morton said guidance is needed on how much the organization expected and the clerk was directed to write to the groups.

Rites Friday For Pioneer Journalist

VANCOUVER (CP) — A private funeral service will be held Friday in Duncan for Lily Laverock, a pioneer Vancouver journalist who died Tuesday in a nursing home.

She was 89.

Miss Laverock, born in Edinburgh, became in 1907 the first woman general news reporter in Vancouver when she joined The World soon after graduating from McGill University with a major in moral philosophy.

She later became women's editor of the News Advertiser, and for a time edited her own weekly newspaper, the Chronicle, in Vancouver.

Miss Laverock founded the Vancouver branch of the Canadian Women's Press Club, was an early member of the University Women's Club, and for decades handled publicity for symphony concerts, plays and many of the city's cultural events.

She is survived by a brother, David, Shawnigan Lake director on the Regonal Board.

The funeral service will be held at 1:30 at Hirst Funeral Home chapel.

The service will be conducted by Rev. Alan G. Kerr with interment to follow at Mountain View Cemetery, Duncan.

HOME FOR INDIAN in Manitoba is this tattered tent — a manifestation of what author Harold Cardinal maintains is The Unjust Society. Government and the public, he contends, have both been outstanding in their ignorance of the plight of the native peoples of Canada, in spite of the fact that the situation is known by a handful of government employees.

THE UNJUST SOCIETY

'Average Canadian Doesn't Give a Damn'

Indifference? Indians have witnessed the growing concern of Canadians over racial strife in the United States. We have watched the justifiably indignant reaction of fellow Canadians to the horrors of starvation in Biafra.

Television has brought into our homes the sad plight of the Vietnamese, has intensified the concern of Canadians about the role of our neighbor country in the brutal inhumanity of war.

The Unitarian Service Committee reminds us of the starving conditions of hundreds of thousands of Asians. Canadian urbanites have walked blisters on their feet and fat off their rumps to raise money for under-developed countries outside Canada.

We do not question the concern of Canadians about such problems. We do question how sincere or how deep such concern may be when Canadians ignore the plight of the Indian or Metis or Eskimo in their own country.

There is little knowledge of native circumstances in Canada and even less interest. To the native one fact is apparent — the average Canadian does not give a damn.

The facts are available, dutifully compiled and clucked over by a handful of government civil servants year after year.

Over ralf the Indians of Canada are jobless year after year. Thousands upon thousands of native people live in housing which would be condemned in any advanced society on the globe. Much of the housing has no inside plumbing, no running water, no electricity. A high percentage of the native peoples of Canada never get off welfare.

This is the way it is, not in Asia or Africa but here in Canada. The facts are available; a Sunday drive to the nearest reserve will confirm them as shocking reality.

Throughout the hundreds of years of the Indian-government relationship, political leaders reponsible for matters relating to Indians have been outstandig in their ignorance of the native people and remarkable in their insensitivity to the needs and aspirations of the Indians in Canada.

More often than not, government people simply do not know what they are doing, and if they show any evidence of caring, it usually is in direct proportion to political pressure and political expediency at the time.

In 1969 it is true that there are some notable exceptions on the political scene: Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing; Martin O'Connell, a Liberal backbencher from Toronto and a member of the House standing committee on Indian affairs; Gerald Baldwin, a Conservative member from Peace River and Frank Howard, the New Democratic Party member from British Columbia.

While a few men like these have worked to build up Indian competence and leadership qualities, many more through the years have contributed to a disastrous and calculated program of leadership destruction.

The white man's government has allowed (worse, urged) its representatives to usurp from Indian peoples our right to make our own decisions and our authirity to implement the goals we have set for ourselves. In fact, the real power, the decision-making process and the policy-implementing group, has always resided in Ottawa, in the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development.

To ensure the complete disorganization of native peoples, Indian leadership over the past years and yet today has been discredited and destroyed. Where this was not possible, the bureaucrats have maintained the upper hand by subjecting durable native leaders to endless exercises in futility, to repeated, pointless reorganizations, to endless barrages of verbal diarrhea promising never-coming changes.

Indeed, the real tanners of hides for the Buckskin Curtain are these self-same bureaucrats.

To gain insight into the Indian problem, a basic understanding of the group of people known as bureaucrats, civil servants or mandarins, working in the Departmet of Indian Affairs and Northern Development (formerly the Indian Affairs Branch of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration) is necessary.

These faceless people in Ottawa, a comparatively small group, perpetually virtually unknown, have sat at their desks eight hours a day, five days a week, for over a century, and decided just about everything that will ever happen to a Canadian Indian.

They have laid down the policy, the rules, the regulations on all matters affecting native peoples.

They have decided where our sons will go to school, near home or hopelessly far from home; they have decided what houses will be built on what reserves for what Indians and whether they may have inside or outside toilets; they have decided what types of social or economic development will take place and where and how it will be controlled.

If you are a treaty Indian, you've never made a move without these guys, these bureaucrats, these civil servants at their desks in their new office in Ottawa saying "yes" . . . or "no."

And, you know something? It would almost be funny if it weren't so pathetic. In the latter part of 1968, a government official suggested publicly that the mandarins in Ottawa would probably not even recognize an Indian if they met one on the street.

These are the people who make the decisions, the policies, the plans and programs by which we live, decisions made in almost total isolation from the Indians in Canada. Their ignorance of the people whose lives and destinies they so routinely control perpetuates the stereotype image they have developed of the native people.

Talking and listening have been one-way streets with white men and Indians. Until very recently white men have expected Indians to do all the listening. Indians, on the other hand, have felt that the white man just couldn't shut up long enough to listen.

We want the white man to shut up and listen to us, really listen for a change. Some Canadians listen but they wish to hear Indians say only what white people want to hear. They like to hear an Indian tell them what a good job government is doing and how the lowly Indian would have vanished if not for the white man's help. Such people quit listening when an Indian tries to tell them the hard facts of Indian life in Canada.

Help Turns Into Harm

PENTICTON (CP) — An attempt to put 38,000 yearling trout in Yellow Lake, 15 miles west of this Okanagan community, has backfired and killed more than half the fish, fish says biologist Sandy MacDonald.

Air was pumped into the lake to increase the water's oxygen content and sustain the fish during the winter freeze, said Mr. MacDonald, biologist with the Penticton branch of British Columbia fish and wildlife.

He said about 19,000 rainbow yearlings and 2,000 to 3,000 imported eastern brook trout suffocated in the last few weeks.

"You might say we turned over the top 50 feet of the lake and brought up dead water," he said. "Before we started aerating, the water had an oxygen content of five parts per million. It's now down to around .7 parts per million."

Low-Paid British Worker on the Verge of Revolt

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The scene could be Crockford's, or The Pair of Shoes, or any of the fashionable Mayfair gambling clubs, any evening of the week. Shaded lights, frilled dress shirts, the soft click of the gaming chips and the murmur of the croupiers: "Faites vos jeux, messieurs et mesdames."

The air smells of Paris perfume and money. There is no lack of the stuff in tourist London, pouring out at the green baize tables, in the expense-account restaurants and packed night spots of the West End. Property developers, pop record impresarios, trendy magazine photographers—these are among the professions richly rewarded in Britain today.

Teacher . . . $46.80 a week

These well-dressed citizens with money to burn would no doubt be astonished to learn that the wine waiter who just proffered a bottle of Chateau Lafite 1959 is a highly qualified teacher driven to such part-time jobs to supplement his meagre pre-tax salary of $4,000 a year.

But such things happen, and they are part of the reason why Britain is currently in the grip of a slow but inexorable revolt of the lower-paid—with teachers now threatening to strike and nurses simmering, in the wake of protest actions by menial workers like garbage collectors and subway guards who have gummed up the wheels of London life in recent weeks.

Many of the wage-earners whose services seem to be rewarded in inverse ratio to their value in the community—such as teachers, firemen, junior doctors and nurses—feel bitterly that society takes advantage of their sense of public duty, relying on them not to strike like other ill-paid workers.

But patience is wearing thin among them all. The London firemen were narrowly talked out of plans for an unprecedented strike on Guy Fawkes Day—worst day of the year for fires—and their militant members are still considering using the ultimate weapon of refusing to answer emergency calls.

The money received by teachers in particular is derisory compared to North American levels, and considered in relation to their role in shaping the minds of tomorrow. Some take home as little as £13 ($33.80) a week after tax. One primary school teacher in Manchester, a married man of 33 with three young children and a university degree, was forced to work as a bus conductor because it paid better with overtime than the £18 ($46.80) he was taking home weekly from his teaching job.

Jr. Doctors . . . $44.20 a week

The national average weekly wage for men in all classes of occupation, incidentally, now is £23 10s. ($61.10). One-third of the working population earn less than £20.

Junior doctors are another notoriously ill-rewarded group. A 27-year-old houseman in one of London's cramped, overcrowded Victorian hospitals works a 110-hour week for a take-home pay of less than £17 ($44.20). Out of that he has to meet not only household bills for himself and his wife but also the high cost of fees for examinations, in the hope that higher qualifications will edge him out of this sordid struggle for existence towards the green pastures of a consulting room in Harley Street.

Meanwhile, this doctor opens his Sunday Times and reads that photographer David Bailey, 31, says anything less than $25,000 a year "isn't much good."

"If you only had £5,000, you couldn't go to restaurants all the time or fly to Paris for a party," explained the shaggy-haired Bailey, one of the founding figures of so-called "Swinging London."

Swinging Set . . . $25,000 a year

Small wonder that thousands of young doctors and other much-needed but ludicrously-paid professional people are heading in droves for the immigration offices of Canada, Australia and the United States.

Britain's "two nations"—the extremes of rich and poor as first outlined by Benjamin Disraeli—are still strongly in evidence, though since the Second World War they have been somewhat disguised under a veneer of social equality. Wealth has undoubtedly been redistributed, but to many of the lower-paid it just seems as if a different set of people have got it.

A salient fact of life in Britain is that, despite a rising level of national prosperity, the majority of people have to struggle and cut corners to make the weekly pay packet meet the climbing cost of living.

Away from the glittering prosperity of London's West End, in the thousands of drab brick houses lining the railway tracks out of the city and in the hinterland of industrial Britain, families are cutting down on 10 cigarettes here, a visit to the movies there. A penny or two saved on a supermarket "offer" assumes real value, and the treasury's £50 limit on foreign holidays is just of academic interest since a week at Brighton or Blackpool is all they will be able to afford.

A national poll taken in October showed that 63 per cent of Britons consider the cost of living is the single most pressing problem facing the country. Another recent survey of 7,000 households showed weekly expenditure had risen by nearly 6½ per cent in 12 months.

MOBILE HOME HEARING POSTPONED

A public hearing into rezoning of land around Florence Lake for a mobile home development has been delayed until January.

The hearing was to have been this month, but Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell hasn't had time to study the proposal, a department spokesman said.

The developers, Wagon Trail Estates Ltd., want to rezone 65 acres at the north end of Florence Lake to allow 110 mobile units.

Residents opposing the scheme presented a petition to Campbell in May and the minister vetoed the application. However, the company has since met residents to outline plans and reapplied for zoning changes.

Hospital Bargaining Resumes

Resumption of bargaining between B.C. Hospitals Association and its employees is set for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

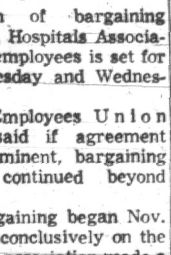

Hospital Employees Union Local 180 said if agreement seems imminent, bargaining would be continued beyond these dates.

Initial bargaining began Nov. 24, ending inconclusively on the 26th after the association made a counter-proposal to the union's contract language and working condition submissions.

All but two general hospital boards in the association have turned their bargaining authority over to the association. The exceptions are St. Joseph General, Dawson Creek, and Nicola Valley General, Merritt, which have been informed by the union that they are expected to start bargaining in conformity with the Labor Relations Act.

Cyclamates 'Convenient' Government Scapegoat

Many Cheering; Some Are Uneasy

By GERALD LEACH
The London Observer

Last month six governments suddenly banned cyclamates, the artificial sweeteners. Then news leaked out that Great Britain will probably soon follow Sweden, Holland, Canada and America in banning or tightening controls on DDT and other persistent pesticides.

Many people are doubtless cheering this double onslaught against the evils of environmental pollution. Suddenly, it seems, politicians have found the courage to hit out at the increasing number of man-made "poisons" in our surroundings, despite big commercial interests.

The truth is less comforting. Far from being encouraged, this recent double strike should make us feel uneasy. For in their different ways the cyclamate and pesticide bans show that we are nowhere near achieving a sensible, forceful attack on these kinds of pollutants — and may even be moving backwards.

Equally seriously, the cyclamate ban (and just possibly the pesticide ban) will probably kill a large number of people.

Consider the cyclamates first. The avalanche of prohibitions began in the U.S. when bladder tumors were found in rats that had spent all their adult lives eating daily doses of cyclamates 50 times higher than those permitted with humans (allowing for different body weights).

As the science journal Nature has said, this evidence is about as solid as candy floss. Any toxicologist worth his salary can get any substance — common salt, carrots, lemonade or what you will — to produce abnormal changes in animals if they pump enough of the stuff into them. The real problem is to show that normal expected doses have (or don't have) any effect on people.

With most substances this takes years of very careful study. With cyclamates 15 years of such studies have failed to find that they do harm except, very rarely, to cause a mild skin complaint.

Indeed, because of this lack of evidence the British food additives and contaminants committee (the people who have now advised the cyclamate ban in Britian) have twice before recommended that they should be allowed.

Why the sudden turnaround? In America the ban was forced on the government because of the Delaney amendment, a measure that was slipped with hardly any informed discussion into the U.S. food and drug laws. It says that any substance shown to cause cancer when fed to animals or man (no matter how massive the dose) must be banned.

Yet almost as soon as the Americans announced their ban, Sweden, Finland, Japan, Canada and Britain copied them, even though none has a "Delaney clause," in several instances without anyone seeing details of the tests.

In Britain the advisers did see the details, which immediately plunges the story even deeper into farce. For one of the first things they discovered when the fog-bound report at last reached them was that the rats had not only been fed massive doses of cyclamates: the cyclamates had been mixed with saccharine.

It must have been an awkward moment. However, the committee concluded that since saccharine has been around longer without (like cyclamates) apparently doing anyone any harm, the villain which caused the tumors must have been the cyclamates.

So, two days later, the British minister of agriculture was able to tell a relieved nation that cyclamates would be phased out, and the food trade got ready to tickle palates instead with saccharine and fattening sugar.

No one took much notice of the warning from many experiments that sugar is a prime suspect in heart disease, or the incontrovertible evidence from life insurance statistics that extra weight is the strongest factor predisposing to an early death.

The only conceivable explanation for this extraordinary saga is that the government and its advisers were pressed too hard by mounting public fears that we are all being slowly poisoned by food additives, pesticides and the like. When a convenient scapegoat came along, they threw it to the wolves to keep them quiet.

There is some evidence that this is what happened. When asked by Nature why such speed was necessary, a ministry said: "Public opinion wanted an answer straight away. We'd have been caught very much with our head in the sand if we didn't do anything about the cyclamates. We had either to ban them or prove them harmless." The second alternative would take years. The first avoided awkward parliamentary questions.

With DDT, tighter controls are entirely sensible. Certain fish and crustacea are extremely sensitive to it and there is concern that some predator birds might be accumulating doses large enough to affect their fertility.

But there is no question of it (or any other persistent pesticides) causing massive bird deaths. Thanks to previous restrictions, the huge decline of bird populations in the late 1950s has not only been stopped but reversed. (In America, where persistent pesticides are used much more heavily, it is a different, sadder story.)

Yet before one concludes that by banning DDT, governments are striking a brave blow for wild life, two things must be realized.

First, in the developed countries DDT use has been declining sharply for years. It is rapidly being replaced by less persistent and therefore safer chemicals. As a spokesman for an industrial user of pesticides says: "We don't lose any sleep if they ban it completely." In other words, action has been taken long after the main damage was done and only when it was very easy to act.

Second, the well-known fact that DDT is the most widely distributed man-made chemical on earth — it's found even in Antarctic penguins — isn't due to its use in the developed countries that are now banning it. Most of it comes from the tropics, where for the past 20 years DDT and other persistent chemicals have saved literally millions of lives by decimating disease-carrying and crop-destroying insects. In India alone DDT is estimated to have cut the incidence of malaria from 75 million to 5 million in a single decade.

No one should be complacent about the destruction of wild life. But there is a lurking danger that the rich countries might follow their own bans on persistent pesticides with pressures on poor, tropical countries to follow suit. If they did, before alternatives were available, more deaths, hunger and disease would be inevitable.

At present there is little chance of this happening because the bans are concerned with North American wild life. But if we begin to screw down on pesticides because of entirely unsubstantiated fears that they are "poisoning" us; if we start clamoring that our present DDT levels of about two to three parts per million must be slashed, then we would have to put pressure on tropical countries. For instance, we would almost certainly have to refuse to import many of their crops because of their DDT content.

The moral of these two onslaughts on pollution is not that we should stop caring about the load of man-made chemicals we eat and drink and breathe. It is that we should care more.

Instead of acting emotionally, or bending under the blast from every quick slogan or fervent lobby group, we have to realize that these things are never as simple as they at first seem — and think about them hard before we move.

Obstructionist Fined

CLOVERDALE (CP) — John Freeman of Surrey was fined $200 Wednesday for obstructing a public highway. He parked his truck half on and half off the Barnston Island ferry in July after complaining that ferry in July after complaining that ferry crews were taking too many coffee breaks, thus curtailing service.

Tester Damaged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harry Lloyd Rempel, 22, was charged Wednesday with willfully damaging an $1,150 breath-testing machine used to check blood alcohol level. The machine was knocked to the floor at the police station.

'WHERE ARE SAFER DRIVERS'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the B.C. automobile sales industry says more money should be spent on driver training programs.

Weldon McFarlane, president of the B.C. Motor Dealers' Association, told a service club that it seems folly to spend money on excessive safety features in autos while driver training agencies are starved for funds.

"The several billions of dollars spent each year on safety features all assume that an automobile must get into an accident.

"Only nine per cent of the vehicles involved in accidents are involved as a result of mechanical failure.

"Normally pleasant and agreeable people get real aggressive and belligerent in a high-powered automobile. Why spend all this money on safety features when anyone who can afford an automobile can drive one?"

"In 1950 Ford did a lot of research developing seat belts and padded dashboards—it was a dismal failure.

"Now you are forced to buy cars with six sets of safety belts and one day you will see a gas tank that won't leak even when it's upside down."

In spite of all these safety items, the accident rate continued to increase.

He said many mechanical problems causing accidents are clearly known to the driver.

"Like the soles on your shoes, you know when they are worn out, but people still procrastinate, putting off getting them fixed."

He said safety councils and high school driver training should be expanded. "They teach defensive driving, yet are restricted for lack of funds."

He said the recall of new cars for safety checks illustrate that "manufacturers are providing maximum safety."

Far East Witnessing 'Agonizing Death' of Ideology

By STANLEY KARNOW

TAIPEI (WP) — This island redoubt of Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese nationalist regime is a good spot to observe in microcosm a phenomenon that is taking place thoughout the far east.

The phenomenon is the gradual, agonizing death of ideology and its replacement by a fresh drive for the material benefits that the contemporary world has to offer.

In short, lofty doctrines and magic slogans and grandoise promises have lost their appeal. Instead, Asians want air conditioners, television sets, refrigerators and motorcycles if not automobiles — and they want them now.

This shift in values has frequently occurred amid radical and violent convulsions that swept away the old gods that failed. For in effect, these new aspirations are symptomatic of deep and sometimes traumatic social change.

In Japan, the atomic holocaust at Hiroshima destroyed the concept of Bushido, the mystical military tradition, and turned the Japanese into a nation of dynamic rotarians.

The cloudy formulas purveyed by Indonesia's former president Sukarno dissolved in an eruption that cost the lives of a half-million people suspected of Communist affiliations while the war has given Vietnam a "Honda economy" in which the motorcycle symbolizes success.

Even Communist China has not escaped the trend. To a significant extent, the turbulent cultural revolution was Mao Tse-Tung's final and fruitless effort to impose his utopian ideals on a country that is inexorably sliding toward Soviet-style revisionism.

Here on Taiwan, where Chiang and his remnant legions found refuge after their defeat by the Communists two decades ago, the same drift away from dogma has been going on.

To be sure, the aged generalissimo never misses a chance to intone his official ideolgy, which asserts his claim to be the legitimate ruler of all China and his vow to recover the vast land that lies across the strait.

More and more over the years, though, Chiang's ideology has acquired a faded quality until today his rhetoric sounds like some kind of religious incantation to which everyone genuflects but nobody really believes.

Hollow as it may be, however, Chiang's illusion contributes to the current stability and prosperity of this island. Without it, several observers here contend, Taian could well face an explosion.

What makes this situation potentially volatile is the presence here of two different populations, each with its distinct set of habits and hopes.

On the one hand, there are 11 million Taiwanese, whose ancestors originally came here from China in the 17th century. Almost Calvinist in their devotion to hard work, they have transformed Taiwan into an impressive industrial area and their aim is to build up their power further.

Living among them are some two million mainland Chinese who fled here with Chiang. Though they dominate the government and army, they have never quite adapted themselves to this exile, and their only dream is to return to China.

Barely below the surface are latent tensions between the Taiwanese and mainlanders that are, in a curious way, kept in check by Chinag's ideology.

The return-to-China litany bolsters the mainlanders dream that they will someday go home. It reassures the Taiwanese, who feel secure as long as the mainlanders are preoccupied with that reverie.

But two future developments are bound to alter this state of affairs. One is the liklihood that a majority of the United Nations general assembly will vote in favor of the Chinese Communists. The other is the certainty that Chiang, now 82, will die.

A U.N. setback would shatter the nationalists illusion that they represent China and could, consequently, uncork the frustrations that they have bottled up for 20 years.

Chiang's death would bring to the fore his son and heir, Chiang Ching-Kuo, whose authority might be challenged by rival generals. Equally unsettling is the possibility that Ching-Kuo who suffers from diabetes, will not long survive his father.

In either event, the prospect is strong that the tensions between the mainlanders and Taiwanese could emerge in open hostilities.

Thus the ideology that has sustained this tight little island may well meet its ultimate end with a bang. And the end of an illusion could be the beginning of turmoil.

Basic Wage Hike Urged by Labor

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor Wednesday asked the provincial minimum wage be increased to $2 an hour from $1.25 and suggested those in lower income brackets might resort to violence if it is not.

In a brief presented to the provincial Industrial Relations Board, the federation said $2 now is the wage necessary to keep the average worker putting in a 40-hour week above the poverty level.

The poverty level was determined as the expenditure of 70 per cent or more of disposable income on accommodation, food and clothing.

People are becoming more aware that they are poor, the federation said, and are beginning "to find the levers of power through organization and activism."

"Poverty breeds frustration, discontent and the desire for violent radical solutions which can often create more problems than they solve," the brief said.

"Poverty is a disease of the body of our society. We must take a leaf from the book of those physicians who advocate preventive medicine. We must eliminate the cause of poverty at their outset, thus precluding the necessity for the violence of an operation later, or in this case, the violence of destroyed cities."

CIA Bastion in Caribbean Falls Prey to Peace Plan

By A. D. HORNE

WASHINGTON (WP) — A former CIA basstion in the Caribbean has fallen to the Nixon administration's search for peaceful solutions to international disputes.

The particular dispute involved the United States, Honduras, and two tiny islands called Great Swan and Little Swan which the U.S. has held since the mid-19th Century and had used in the early 1960s to transmit calls to the Cuban people to rebel against Fidal Castro.

The U.S. claim to the islands, which lie about 100 miles off Honduras' north coast, had a solid basis: Guano, the accumulated droppings of sea fowl.

Under the Guano Act of 1856, U.S. citizens discovering guano on unclaimed islands could apply to Washington for certificates which entitled them to collect the stuff and sell it as fertilizer. Under the same act, the president could also claim the islands as U.S. property, which secretary of state William Seward did in 1863.

Honduras's claim, first formally advanced in 1923, was pased on its role as inheritor of former Spanish colonial properties. Little was heard of the dispute until 1960, when the CIA's clandestine Radio Swan came on the air from Great Swan Island.

That episode is told in detail in the 1964 book of David Wise and Thomas B. Ross, The Invisible Government in a chapter titled "CIA's Guano Paradise."

As Wise and Ross reconstructed it, the CIA used a front called the Gibraltar Steamship Corp. to portray Radio Swan as a "commercial venture" when it began broadcasting programs recorded by Cuban exiles in New York.

Although these first programs mixed entertainment and propaganda, Radio Swan took a direct military role furing the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion, broadcasting coded signals to the exile landing force.

After the invasion's failure, the station's cover was changed. According to Wise and Ross, the Gibraltar Steamship office was moved from New York to Miami, and this Miami office was turned into something called the Vanguard Serivce Corp., which continued to run the broadcasts from Great Swan under the new name of Radio Americas.

At some time after 1965, that, too, was discontinued. There no longer is a CIA transmitter on Great Swan, according to reliable sources. All that is left on the island — which had a population of 28 when a coast and geodetic survey ship conducted a census in 1960 — is a weather bureau sounding station and a radio navigation beacon.

So, when Honduras' Foreign Minister Tiburcio Carias Castillo called on Secretary of State William P. Rogers at the U.S. mission to the United Nations last fall Rogers made a grand gesture:

He suggested that the U.S. move to settle the dispute, which Honduras had taken to the UN general assembly without success in 1960.

The agreement announced by the state department Nov. 13, a week before incomparably larger but essentially similar solution to the Okinawa issue, was simple: the U.S. would give up sovereignty over the Swans to Honduras, and Honduras would allow the U.S. to keep its weather and navigation facilities on Great Swan.

Suez Means Money—Not Canals

By RODNEY ANGOVE

PARIS (AP) — Running the Suez canal might have been good business when it opened 100 years ago, but the Suez company is doing far better today in the investment business.

So much better, in fact, that many stockholders don't even want to go back to running a concession for a public service, including the proposed tunnel under the English Channel.

The company has about 100,000 stockholders, largely people with small holdings.

Ironically, the 1956 nationalization of the canal by Egypt hastened Suez's switch from canal-running to money-making. The 99-year lease on the canal, which opened Nov. 19, 1869, was to have ended in 1968, anyway, but the diversification necessary to carry on had only timidly begun.

Nationalization left management hesitant, but within a couple of years it found its way. Now, having blossomed into France's No. 1 financial and industrial firm, Suez stands taller in the esteem of the stockholders than ever before.

Nationalization Hastened Switch to Money-Making

A company spokesman points to the stock market figures. The peak value of one share was 98,000 francs, or $280 at the official rate of 350 francs to the U.S. dollar, in 1954. As traders sensed possible nationalization, it dropped to 69,500 francs on July 26, 1956. The morning after nationalization, it dropped to 48,000 and then slid to the historic low of 31,110 francs. That was $74 at the official rate, which by then had gone to 420 francs to the dollar.

There sat one of the world's best-known companies, amputated of $560,000,000 worth of property, by its own figuring, as well as its major means of doing business. It held only about $100,000,000 in assets outside Egypt.

Directors came close to liquidating.

Then Egypt agreed to pay an $80,000,000 indemnity. That in itself did not turn the firm around, but it convinced management to stay in business. The name was changed from Universal Company of the Maritime Canal of Suez to the Suez Finance Co., which started pushing cash into everything that looked good.

The stock crept back to $105 in 1958, but stockholders began asking whether that kind of diversification—major holdings in 130 scattered firms—was good management.

President Jacques Georges-Picot, agreeing that it probably wasn't, reasoned out a new formula: There should be two "poles" of activity for direct investment, a financial one around a group of banks, and an industrial one around such firms as Saint-Gobain Glass and Pont-a-Mousson Steel and Engineering. Assets should be divided about one-third to each "pole," with the final third going into the investment portfolio business.

Within 10 years, gross receipts nearly quadrupled to $14,500,000 a year, and profits went up sixfold to about $9,800,000.

What's good for Suez is also good for Britain. That government is the largest stockholder, with 16.87 per cent of the firm's capitalization. Only three other holders own more than two per cent.

TEACHERS: HALT INEFFICIENCY . . .

. . . TRUSTEES: DESPERATE FOR FUNDS

'We Must Educate More Students for Less Money'

By BOB MITCHELL

A trustee and a teacher made statements this week painting up the contradictory nature of education financing in British Columbia.

Jim Campbell, president of the B.C. School Trustees' Association, said 38 of the province's 89 school districts will be in serious financial trouble under the basic education costs formula for 1970.

BUNN

And in an article in the "B.C. Teacher" C. D. Ovans, general secretary of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, said the school system must be run more efficiently because taxpayers are becoming less tolerant of rising education costs.

The dilemma facing school boards is that they will have to find a way of educating more students for less money.

Ontario Minister of Education William Davis said earlier this year if education costs continue to accelerate at their present rate, by the turn of the century they would theoretically take up the entire provincial budget.

This week the B.C. government announced the instructional unit would be increased from $11,960 to $12,990. An "instructional unit" equals 30 elementary pupils or 20 secondary students, and the total number of units in a district forms the basis for calculating the operating budget.

Campbell said many districts could use up the increased grants without even including a pay increase for teachers, and districts short of funds will inevitably have to ask municipal councils to vote extra funds or get ratepayer approval in a referendum.

Last spring seven of nine referendums were rejected in districts where school boards wanted to go over the allowable budget.

The only other alternative is for boards to cut back education services, with the prospect of reduced standards, Campbell said.

Ovans said in his "B..C Teacher" article schools must be operated in a more business like manner.

"If the school system were operated as a business enterprise it would be much less wasteful of expensive human energy than it is today."

He said the provincial government is attempting to keep school costs down without accepting the responsibility for making the system more productive.

Ovans said the following principles which apply in the business world could be applied to education to reduce costs:

- Use of technology to reduce labor costs;
- Up-grading of skills and knowledge of the present teaching force;
- Dropping high-cost, low-productivity programs.

Use of technology for instructional purposes could result in greater use of packaged learning materials and creation of resource centres.

Teachers would be separated into two main categories: teacher-instructors, trained to use technology, and teacher-educators, whose purpose would be to guide the individual development of students.

In most districts teacher salaries account for almost 70 per cent of the total basic education program. Trustee Peter Bunn said the total cost of teacher salaries, clerical assistance and "tools of the trade" was 79.33 per cent of the Greater Victoria board's budget in 1969.

"I doubt whether any other district has such a high percentage of its budget going into teaching. Our emphasis is on the art of teaching, not the cost of maintenance."

The Greater Victoria board has taken the first step in setting up a data processing system for the district. A survey by Kates, Peat, Marwick and Co. of Vancouver on the district's data processing needs was to have been submitted to the board by Nov. 30.

The survey as outlined in July was to cover application of data processing to education, finance, maintenance and school planning.

A proposal to set up a data processing network for the Island has been made.

SPEAKS OUT To Victoria!

Through my column type ads I've tried to let you know, so far as space has allowed, my attitudes and where I stand on some of the issues.

In this my last column, I propose to answer two of the questions most often tossed my way during the last few weeks.

Why are you running for Mayor?

What makes you think you'd do a better job than the other candidates?

These are obviously fair questions for the voters to ask . . . hard for a candidate to answer. I've enjoyed the years the voters gave me to serve on City Council but I became concerned with the direction our city and region was heading . . . concerned that we must be prepared to move in new directions. That direction is to vigilant fiscal management of our resources. Greater Regional co-operation, over all Regional Planning, co-ordination of the Human Agencies, keeping the city core vital, to decision-making for much-needed hospital beds, to use the agency of City Hall as a means to draw on the support and expertise of all our citizens in shaping the future of our community.

When I decided to run for the office of Mayor it was because I didn't feel that the other candidates seeking the office would lead the city in this direction. This is my answer to question two.

We have a dedicated, able and highly-trained civic staff. If the Mayor and Council are going to continue, as is their duty, to direct these activities, they too must be able, trained and have a thorough experience in the day-to-day operations at City Hall. Such experience in my opinion, can only be gained by serving on Council.

If I become your next Mayor, it will be my duty along with Council, to serve all the people of Victoria. The City staff and your faithful employees at City Hall will be there to serve you, too.

I will be at City Hall on a FULL TIME BASIS and I would take it to be my responsibility to see that any buck-passing ends at the Mayor's Office.

No Progress In 'Freeing' S.W. Africa

By STANLEY UYS
The London Observer

CAPE TOWN—The Oct. 4 deadline set by the United Nations Security Council for South Africa to withdraw its administration from the trust territory of Southwest Africa has come and gone, and the South African government remains in undisturbed control of the territory.

South Africa has no intention of handing over administration of Southwest Africa to the United Nations, and, in fact, is drawing the territory steadily deeper into its administration.

The relationship which now exists between South and Southwest Africa is indistinguishable in practice from incorporation.

The Security Council had resolved that if South Africa ignored the Oct. 4 ultimatum, it would "meet immediately to determine upon effective measures" provided by the UN charter.

On Oct. 21, the UN's 126-country trusteeship committee, by 96 votes to 2 (South Africa and Portugal), with six abstentions (Australia, Botswana, France, Ivory Coast, Malawai and Britain) censured South Africa for ignoring the deadline, and asked the Security Council to note the "deteriorating situation" in Southwest Africa.

But this is as far as the UN has been able to go, short of invading Southwest Africa or applying sanctions against South Africa—measures which the Western nations, and many others, simply would not support.

Through the years in which the Southwest Africa issue has been raised at the UN—annually since the founding of the world body in 1946, in fact—the protesting members have made no progress whatever in persuading the South African government to relinquish even a fraction of its control over the territory.

Its Mark Left on UN Prestige

South Africa's "obduracy," as it is called, has left its mark on the prestige of the UN, whose members have quarrelled among themselves over whether they should continually be adopting resolutions which they cannot enforce.

Britain, for example, refused to vote for the Oct. 4 deadline, because it regarded this as a preparatory step to a call for comprehensive, mandatory sanctions, which Britain said were not "practical."

In 1962, the UN sent a mission to Southwest Africa, which after a farcical tour expressed divided opinions. In June, 1967, the UN appointed an 11-member council charged with the task of securing entry into Southwest Africa and administering it until it was ready for independence.

The council tried to fly into Windhoek, Southwest Africa's capital, in April, 1968, but got no farther than Lusaka, Zambia, again in circumstances which, if anything, detracted from the UN's prestige.

But Southwest Africa still remains a grave international issue. A German colony until the First World War, it was entrusted to South Africa by the League of Nations to administer under a mandate as if it were part of South Africa, with the provision that South Africa "promote to the utmost the material and moral well-being and the social progress of the inhabitants of the territory."

When the League of Nations was dissolved, and the UN was founded in 1946, an international trusteeship system came into existence, and the former colonial powers were asked to place the remaining colonies under this system.

The UN would appoint administrators, and through its various agencies would help the territories concerned to develop as quickly as possible towards self-rule.

But South Africa, maintaining that the UN had not inherited the league's power over former mandates and that its obligations to the international community had lapsed with the league's dissolution, refused to place Southwest Africa under international trusteeship.

This decision was made in 1946, and every year the debates at the UN on South Africa's attitude have become increasingly heated.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MOVIE TO WATCH tonight is a matter of preferences. One is almost as bad as another. Channel 11 offers Whirlpool, a 1959 English drama, at 11:30. to midnight on Channels 6 and 8 it's a 1945 drama. Leave Her to Heaven. And Channel 5 at 1:05 a.m. dusts off another 1945 number, a western comedy titled Under Western Skies. So take your choice.

DIAMOND LIL'S. 10:30, Channel 8. Banjo player Maurice Bolyer and singer Doug Chamberlain join the regulars, Vanda King, Tommy Common and the orchestra.

BONAZA. 9, Channel 2. A better-than-average episode, it's a comic script written by costar Michael Landon, who also directs it. Hoss Cartwright finds himself in hot water when tall tale teller Salty Hubbard spreads the word he's a notorious bank robber.

FAMILY AFFAIR. 7, Channel 8; 7:30, Channel 7, Pleasant outing, thanks to a Chinese number one boy called Ho who arrives in New York from Hong Kong with the idea of working for the family. Ho jostles with French during his stay, but does so well, the Englishman feels he's no longer wanted and submits his resignation. There's the usual happy ending with cries of "We love you French," yet the main interest is Ho, a likeable character with an expressive face.

IT TAKES A THIEF. 7, Channel 6; 10, Channel 4. "The Second Time Around." Fred Astaire, in the role of Robert Wagner's debonair father, pays a return visit to the show and his presence makes the outing worthwhile. The counterfeit villains who plagued Alistair and Al Mundy some episodes back, show up again and mark father and son for death. Astaire's calculated charm and Wagner's casual style work well together.

THURSDAY NIGHT. 10, Channels 2 and 6. Rising Sun is the title for this hour-long documentary, which examines Japan's emergence as a top power in the Far East. Included are filmed excerpts from Tora! Tora! Tora!, the American movie recreation of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

DEAN MARTIN. 8:30, Channel 8; 10, Channel 5. Romy Schneider, Milburn Stone of "Gunsmoke," and Nancy Wilson are the main attractions of the hour. Miss Schneider tries vocalizing with a version of "Ain't Misbehavin'," and plays a customer in a clothing store skit having language problems with salesmen Dean Martin and Charles Nelson Reilly. Country doctor Milburn Stone is backed by the Martin girls for "Lida Rose," and lists a variety of "spoonerisms" with his host. Nancy Wilson and Dino kid some TV inanities, Nancy sings 'Son of a Preacher Man," and Reilly returns to portray a flower store salesman going crazy over an order.

JIM NABORS. 8, Channel 7; 9:30, Channel 12. A Southern hour with Jim and Mississippi's Bobbie Gentry, singing about their land. In a cornpone sketch, Bobbie plays a local belle who's after handsome Nabors, and she appears in the big finale on mountain tunes. Nabors sings "Try to Remember" and "Somewhere," and in the weekly bording house segment, Jim constructs a burglar alarm that works especially well on relative Frank Sutton.

IRONSIDE. 8:30, Channel 5. "L'Chayim." Good episode. A Torah is stolen from a synagogue, and since the Chief knows the Rabbi who was assaulted during the theft, he becomes involved in the case. It turns into a neat switch on the stock kidnapping plot when the thieves decide to ransom the Torah back to the synagogue. Dave Opatoshu is ideally cast as the Rabbi.

EXOTIC ACTRESS Romy Schneider makes her singing debut tonight on The Dean Martin Show. (See listing opposite.)

THIS IS TOM JONES. 7:30, Channel 8; 9, Channel 4. Janis Joplin and Glen Campbell join our host tonight, singing tunes like "You Came A Long Way from St. Louis" (Jones and Campbell), "Someday Soon" (Glen), "Little Girl Blue" (Janis Joplin), and "Raise Your Hand" (Jones and Joplin). For the comedy interlude, The Committee entertains in its customary satirical vein.

THE UNDERWORLD OF JACQUES COUSTEAU. 7:30, Channel 4. "The Desert Whales." (Repeat). In case you missed this show on whales last October, tune in for a big winner tonight. Cameras track grey whales off the California coast, heading for Mexican breeding grounds where divers record the leviathan mating act. Crew members are unusually bold—buzzing around whales in little boats. One gets flattened, and others perform a touching rescue mission with a dehydrated baby stranded on a sand bar. This Red Cross effort for the baby gives the hour an emotional climax, for a change, and the sight of whales surfacing like huge periscopes after feeding on the lagoon bottoms is fascinating.

Ancient Civilization Discovered

TEL AVIV (AP) — An Israeli archeologist announced Wednesday he has discovered evidence of an ancient people who populated the Sinai Desert 6,000 years ago.

Dr. Beno Rothenberg of Tel Aviv University told a news conference the inhabitants flourished on copper and turquoise mining, hunting, fishing and making tools.

They lived in southern Sinai, numbered about 5,000 and were subservient to the Egypt of King Suhare in about 4000 BC, he said.

"It is not certain, but they probably migrated from Jordan, from the east," he added.

Rothenberg, whose expedition followed Israeli troops into the Sinai Desert in June, 1967, when the expanse was captured from Egypt, says the Israelis carried out the most thorough search the desert has known.

Some areas of the 20,000-square-mile peninsula had never been entered before, even by native Bedouin, Rothenberg said. His expedition charted 82 new archeological sites, including remnants of houses, mines and a 1,000-yard-long "factory," an enclosure in which various implements were fashioned.

He also reported finding rare "native copper"—pure copper which does not require any refining process.

Mousetrap Nearing Record For Longest Play Run

DEAD at 55 is actress Ruth White, character star of stage, screen and television. She died in New Jersey Wednesday after an illness of several months. (AP Wirephoto.)

LONDON (Reuters) — Steadily bypassing the vagaries of theatrical taste and fashion, Agatha Christie's play The Mousetrap has entered its 18th year at London's Ambassadors Theatre without showing any signs of flagging popularity.

Peter Saunders, its impresario, sees no reason why it should not run into 1973. By then it would smash the record for the world's longest-running show still held by The Drunkard, an American melodrama which ended a 20-year run in Los Angeles in 1953.

The Mousetrap, a run-of-the mill thriller which its author thought good for six months when it opened on Nov. 25, 1952, now has been seen by more than 2,500,000 persons who have poured more than $3,600,000 into the box-office. Some 120 actors and actresses have appeared in it and one-year contracts now are the rule to keep the production fresh.

Since the opening, the curtain has been lowered about 80,000 times, more than 110 tons of programs have been sold and 7,013 cigars were smoked by the actors playing one of the roles. All the stage furnishings have been replaced except for a leather armchair and a mantelpiece clock.

IRONS 31 MILES

Besides ironing 31 miles of shirts, wardrobe mistress Maisie Wilmer Brown has learned great chunks of the play through hearing it each night for 17 years over a loudspeaker system. But her duties have always kept her from seeing it from beginning to end.

The man who has every line of it implanted in his mind is company manager Anthony Huntly Gordon, who has listened to more than 100,000,000 words spoken on the stage since the first cast went into rehearsal.

No definite explanation of the play's longevity in London has ever been offered. Though it has been acted in 41 countries and translated into 22 languages, it has nowhere entrapped the public so persistently as in its original home.

Faithful to its author's formula of country-house drawing-room tableau with a quota of suspects after a murder in the first act, The Mousetrap has nothing extraordinary to offer apart from skilful characterization and well-contrived suspense up to the final twist.

'Sweetest Music' Man Plays Carnegie Hall

NEW YORK (AP) — President Nixon sent congratulations and Ethel Merman went backstage to kiss Guy Lombardo Wednesday night as the "sweetest music this side of heaven" finally made Carnegie Hall after 45 years on the road.

About 2,000 mostly middle-aged or older fans went sedately wild as the strains of Auld Lang Syne brought the Canadian-born Lombardo and his 12-piece band to the stage which is much more accustomed to Leonard Bernstein and Beethoven's Fifth.

"You bet your life I'm an old fan of Guy's—no, make that a young fan," Miss Merman said as she made up for Guy's complaint, "I've never been kissed on New Year's Eve, I've always been too busy playing."

Nixon, at whose inaugural Lombardo played, wrote wishing luck and said: "I hope Pat and I will dance to your music before long."

Lombardo, a native of London, Ont., said he hopes to play at the White House perhaps next summer between stints of presenting Sound of Music at Jones Beach in Long Island. Meanwhile, he told reporters: "It's such a thrill to play Carnegie Hall."

There were few under-30s at the concert.

An Evening at the Opera...

. . . is something not often available to Victorians. A fact which most people consider inevitable — but which Laszlo Gati, Music Director of the Victoria Symphony Society, found unacceptable. As a happy result, this Sunday and Monday, Symphony '70 will host two renowned operatic singers, Carol Neblett, soprano from the New York City Opera, and Jan Rubes, basso from the Canadian Opera Company.

The New York Times considers Miss Neblett to be a rising star, since she combines "artistry, ability, and a voice rich in the middle register, with outstanding good looks". The good looks are obvious from her photographs . . the fine voice is obvious from her New York successes . . . the combination promises to be a delight.

Jan Rubes performed often in the Opera House of his native Prague before coming to Canada in 1948. Since then his engagements have included all major North American cities, the Stratford Festival, Havana, Mexico, and no fewer than seven appearances at Carnegie Hall. Last year Victorians enjoyed his talents as Don Basilio in "The Barber of Seville."

The Victoria Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Laszlo Gati, will compliment these outstanding soloists in a program which includes favorite works by Mozart, Verdi, and Cimarosa. Tickets are now available from the Symphony Box Office at Eaton's . . . you can enjoy your Evenings at the Opera for

LAWYER DESCRIBES LINKS

Ritual Murder Total Rises

By BRUCE RUSSELL

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — Eighteen persons died in a grisly string of ritual slayings conducted by a mystic hippie-type band linked with the knifing murder of pregnant actress Sharon Tate and six other persons, says a lawyer for the woman who helped police on the case.

"The more they stabbed, the better they felt," said lawyer Wesley Russell, who also disclosed Wednesday that his client, Shelley Nadell, 31, told him the gang had planned another 11 murders.

"Some of the murder victims are buried in the desert, and their bodies probably will never be found," said the lawyer, who added that he feared for Miss Nadell's life both inside and outside jail.

The woman was remanded in custody Wednesday for two weeks on a drug prescription forgery charge. Police say the link betwen the hippies and the brutal slayings at Miss Tate's Hollywood Hills estate Aug. 9 came from whispered jail cell conversations between Miss Nadell and cellmate Susan Atkins, 21, a member of the cult.

A grand jury Friday is expected to rule at a secret session if cult leader Charles Manson—known as both "God" and "Satan" to his followers—will be charged in connection with the killings.

ARRESTED IN RAID

The hypnotic-eyed Manson, 35, and 25 devoted followers were arrested Oct. 10 in a police raid on their secluded Death Valley commune.

Police alleged that Manson and his band made their living by stealing cars. The raid led to other arrests which in turn set police on a trail to the killers of Miss Tate and her four friends, together with the stabbing deaths of a millionaire supermarket owner Leno LaBianca and his wife the following night.

Police have claimed that some of Manson's followers set out on a path of violence and murder—a pseudo-religious program of "liberation through death." Some victims were killed to free them from their wealth in accordance with the group's occult beliefs, police said.

Three members of the group, known as Satan's Slaves, already have been booked for murders and more indictments are expected after the grand jury hearing. In custody are Charles Watson, 24, held in his home town of McKinney, Tex.; Linda Kasabian, 19, who gave herself up in Concord, N.H.; and Patricia Krenwinkel, 21, who said she will fight extradition proceedings in Mobile, Ala.

HAS HYPNOTIC EYES

Manson was arraigned Wednesday in a desert courtroom in Independence, Calif., and made his appearance wearing standard blue prison overalls, a long beard and long hair. With handcuffs linked to a heavy chain around his waist, he glanced around the court with the striking eyes which Miss Atkin's lawyer claimed hypnotized his followers.

Miss Atkins has admitted being present at three separate killings—the Tate massacre, the LaBianca stabbings and the torture slaying July 25 of a 34-year-old Los Angeles musician, Gary Hinman.

She is charged with Hinman's murder, but her lawyer denied she took part in any of them.

Police said a hippie-type band burst into Miss Tate's palatial hilltop estate Aug. 9 and knifed the pregnant actress to death, despite her pleas that her unborn child be spared. She was eight months' pregnant.

The movie star—wife of film director Roman Polanski—was found suspended by a rope slung around a beam with Hollywood hairdresser Jay Sebring, 35, strung up beside her.

Also found dead in the home were coffee heiress Abigail Folger, 26, Polish-born playboy Voitvck Frokowski, 37, and Steve Parent, 18, friend of the estate caretaker.

DESCRIBE SLAYINGS

Miss Nadell was reported to have described how the slayings were carried out by two men and three young women, all dressed in black and carrying sheathed knifes.

She also was said to have told police that the Atkins woman said the same quintet were ordered back to Los Angeles the next night to kill the supermarket owner in case they "lose their nerve."

Independence Sheriff Merrill Curtis told reporters that three of Manson's female followers held in jail insisted on taking their clothes off and walking around their cells nude.

In the Independence court a picture began to unfold of commune life in Death Valley.

Witnesses who said three cars that disappeared in the Los Angeles area in the summer were seen in Manson's possession described how they encountered him at the wheel of a new Ford in an almost inaccessible mountain area bordering Death Valley.

One witness told the hearing of searching the hills to help Manson and his followers find springs near their cave dwellings.

Victim's Father Tells Of Search for Killers

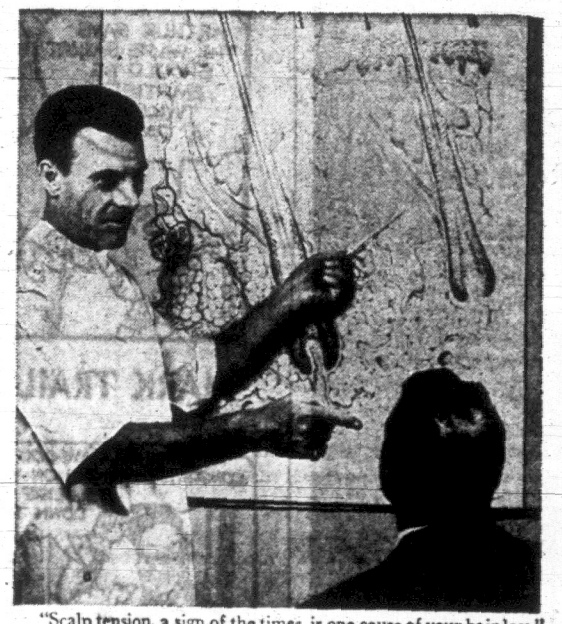

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The father of actress Sharon Tate says he resigned as an army intelligence lieutenant-colonel and masqueraded as a hippie in a four-month search for his daughter's killers.

Paul J. Tate, 46, told the Los Angeles Times he grew a moustache and beard and mingled with drug addicts, lived in communes and cautiously questioned various drifters for clues.

Tate was interviewed Wednesday as police across the country rounded up certain members of a hippie-style clan wanted in the investigation of the Aug. 9 deaths of Miss Tate and four others in her home.

"I guess I've seen just about everything in hippie communes while checking out drug angles," said the father, a 23-year army man. "Just the same, I hope nobody prejudices the case."

He said anything he knew would be told "at the proper time" and declined to state how successful he had been on his search. But he said the arrests in the case had "taken a great weight off my mind."

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says Harrison trichologist to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. They are sending a specialist here to advise men and women how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here tomorrow

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and growing thicker hair — will be demonstrated in Victoria this Friday and Saturday, December 5 and 6.

This news was released here today by A. B. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In the announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist T. Cronshaw to conduct the Victoria clinic. Cronshaw will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the Hotel Sussex.

Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatments.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no obligation by seeing Mr. Cronshaw," director Harrison said. "Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home Treatment, we will frankly tell you so."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause baldness."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison trichologists hold clinics in all major cities across Canada.

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and baldish by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything.' So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair: That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss—and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

Free Scalp Examination

See Mr. Cronshaw in person. Learn how baldness can be corrected, and new hair grown. The new Harrison method permits you to actually correct your baldness and improve your hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Sussex Friday or Saturday between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Cronshaw's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. Examinations are given in private.

Protecting Herbs From Jack Frost

By HILDA BEASTALL

While some gardens in the Victoria area are still unvisited by frost, othrs haye been completely whitened on several mornings. The frosts are likely to stop the growth of some of the herbs we would still want to use in December, but what can be done about it?

Hilda

Parsley, summer savory, sweet marjoram and mint lift our winter soups and casseroles from the rut of monotony into the realm of artistic creativeness. While they are not easy to grow indoors, they are worth an effort at prolonging their usefulness.

If tne herb bed is in a spot that is sheltered from the north and east, catching whatever sun there is, a shallow wooden frame with a glass cover would keep the hardier plants growing a little. A few new leaves on parsley, and the plants of savory and marjoram kept green is all we can expect at this time of year.

Much is written in books about lifting herb plants in fall to grow in pots on the kitchen windowsill. Perhaps in some climates this method possible, but here I have never succeeded.

With a slightly heated greenhouse, and the airy buoyant atmosphere maintained, plus overhead light and sunlight whenever available, it is easy enough to grow two or three herbs of different kinds all winter.

Mint likes warmth and moisture to produce new shoots, and chives usually do not respond with new growths until daylight lengthens in late January.

An ideal spot for growing herbs in our normal winters would be on raised shelves or raised beds in a sunny patio.

The raised beds would be several degrees warmer than at soil level, and the patio paving retains sun warmth longer than moist ground soil.

Also a patio frequently has the additional warmth and shelter of a house wall on at least one side.

Whatever can be devised by the ingenious gardener or cook for the growing of a few of the hardier herbs during the winter months will be repayed by family appreciation of their use.

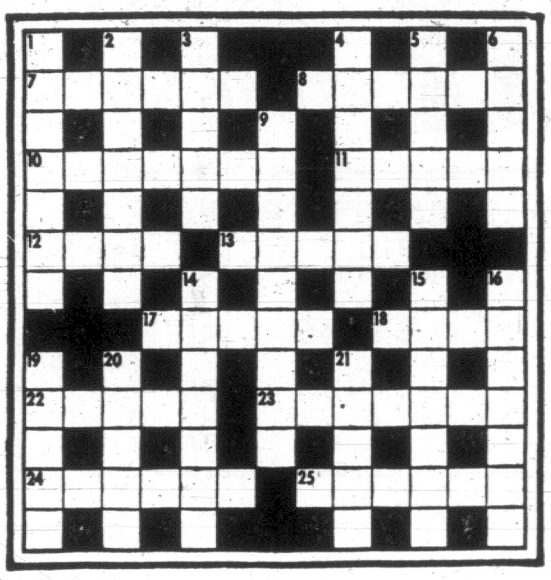

If herbs were costly, they would be more widely used.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Macdonald Injured In Hotel Room Fire

By BOB BOWMAN

It was on this day in 1866 that delegates from Canada, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia began meeting with British political leaders in London to plan the final steps for Confederation. There was some friction between the delegates from the Maritimes and those from Canada because the Maritimers had arrived in London in July, but the Canadians did not get there until the end of November.

However, the delay proved to the beneficial because Lord Russell's Whig government had been defeated during the summer, and now the Tories were in power led by the Earl of Derby, with Lord Carnarvon as Colonial Secretary. Years later Carnarvon played an important part in keeping British Columbia in Confederation when that province was threatening to secede because of the delay in building a railway to the Pacific.

There were six delegates from Canada, led by John A. Macdonald, while New Brunswick and Nova Scotia had five each. Their leaders were Premiers Tilly and Tupper. While they were making final plans with the British, Nova Scotian Opposition Leader Joseph Howe was also in London trying to prevent Confederation.

Macdonald was elected leader of the British North American delegates but could not attend the meetings for several days because he set his hotel room on fire. He had gone to sleep in bed while reading and awoke to find the bedclothes and curtains ablaze. He shouted for help and Galt and Cartier rushed to put out the fire, but Macdonald suffered from burns.

That wasn't the end of Macdonald's adventures. He had been a widower for nine years but met Susan Agnes Bernard while window shopping on Bond Street. There was a whirlwind courtship and they were married in London in February before the BNA Act had been passed by parliament. Other events on December 4.:

1800—David Thompson made trip across Rockies.

1856—Canada arranged bonding system for U.S. goods in transit.

1867 — William McDougall urged Canada to acquire North West Territories from Hudson's Bay Company.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

Today's deal is presented as a "bridge mystery." You are informed that our South declarer mishandled his assets, resulting in the loss of a slam contract. It is your job to bring South's misplay to light.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♡	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠.

After winning the opening lead with the trump eight, South led a low trump to the board's ace. The club finesse was then taken, South's queen losing to West's king. West returned a heart, the trick being captured by the board's ace. On the heart king, South discarded his deuce of clubs. Eventually declarer lost a diamond trick, and went down one. Where did he slip?

South's mistake came when he took the club finesse as a first-choice play. He should have saved the finesse for a last resort. Had he done so, he would have fulfilled his contract.

After cashing two high trumps in his own hand, declarer should have laid down his ace and king of diamonds, on the outside chance of catching the diamond queen. When this would fail to materialize, a heart would be led to dummy's ace. The king of hearts would then be played, South discarding his remaining diamond. Dummy's last heart would now be ruffed in the closed hand.

Dummy would next be reentered via a trump, and the jack of diamonds laid down. With East following suit with a low diamond, South would discard his two of clubs. West would win this trick with his queen — and, simultaneously, he would become the victim of an endplay.

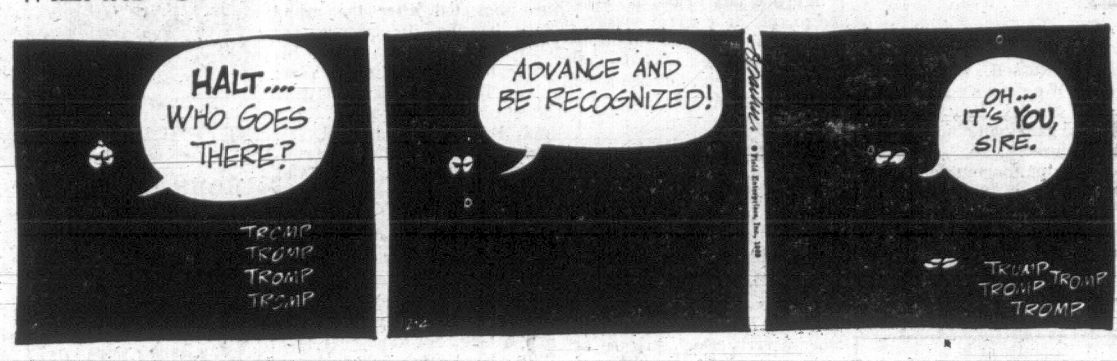

If he returned a club, South would have two club winners. And if, instead, he played back a heart, South would ruff the trick in dummy as he discarded the queen of clubs from his own hand.

If it turned out that East had played the diamond queen on the lead of the jack (in theory), then South would have been compelled to resort to the club finesse. But why take unnecessary finesses?

Ottawa Firm On Powers

Social Aid Transfer Vetoed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government today again rejected a Quebec demand that all social security measures be placed under provincial control.

Also rejected was the demand that Ottawa make payments—such as family allowances — to the provinces rather than to individuals.

A working paper prepared for the fourth federal-provincial constitutional conference here Monday to Wednesday said transfer of family and youth allowances and old age pensions to the provinces would cost the federal treasury more than $2,400,000,000 annually.

The paper also maintained that acts of Parliament in the field of retirement pensions —for example, the Canada Pension Plan—should over-ride provincial statutes such as the Quebec Pension Plan.

"In respect of retirement insurance and associated benefits Parliament's powers ought to be paramount," the federal paper said.

Apart from this proposal for additional federal powers, Ottawa appeared to come out in favor of the status quo in the field of distribution of powers as they apply to social services and income support.

The paper said the provinces ought to have exclusive jurisdiction over social services.

SUGGESTS EQUAL POWERS

Parliament and the provincial legislatures should have equal powers to make general income support payments to persons. Examples of such payments are family allowances and old age pensions.

Ottawa and the provinces should continue to have "concurrent powers" in public income insurance measures such as old age pensions and supplementary benefits. Unemployment insurance would continue exclusively federal, workmen's compensation exclusively provincial.

ONLY TENTATIVE

The paper emphasized that the federal proposals are tentative, conditional on agreement on final distribution of powers and are not intended to prejudice existing programs.

It noted that Quebec has asked that all social security measures be placed under exclusive provincial jurisdiction.

It immediately rejected the proposal that Ottawa make payments to the governments of the provinces rather than to the people.

"Bluntly, a sense of community is less likely to exist where taxes are imposed to help governments rather than to help people. . . .

"The provinces would be under no obligation to use these grants for the purpose of supporting the incomes of the poor.

"They could use them instead for any purpose—including in-

YARD SUSPENDS FOUR POLICEMEN

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard today suspended from active duty four detectives, three of whom were alleged by a London newspaper to have accepted bribes from criminals.

A Scotland Yard spokesman identified the four suspended officers as Det. Inspector Bernard J. Robson, Det. Sgt. Gordon F. Harris, Det. Sgt. John Symonds and Det. Officer Harold Hughes. All were taken off duty today the spokesman said.

Canada, Britain Clash on Cutback

Times News Services

BRUSSELS—Canada and Britain clashed here Wednesday during the NATO defence planning committee meeting, over a proposed Canadian reduction of forces in Europe.

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux took exception to the way British defence chief Denis Healey spoke of the Canadian halving of land forces in West Germany and talked back at him in what was described as "strong and eloquent" language.

The words exchanged at the closed meeting were not on record but Cadieux said he considered that by inference Healey was being critical of the Canadian move.

A year ago when word of the impeding Canadian reduction became public Healey in a briefing to British correspondents accused Canada of "passing the buck" to her allies.

Wednesday he told the NATO defence ministers Britain hopes to ship her 5,000-man 6th Brigade to West Germany soon and was reported to have inferred that Canada was taking out her entire brigade group there and that the Britons would replace it.

Cadieux immediately reminded the meeting Canada is leaving 2,800 men of the brigade in Germany. Other observers then pointed out that Britain, in fact, withdrew her 6th Brigade from West Germany in 1967 as an economy move.

Massacre 'Whitewash' Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Army investigators looking into a possible coverup of the alleged My Lai massacre of South Vietnamese civilians called for questioning today Capt. Ernest Medina, commander of the unit reported to be involved in the incident.

Medina was the immediate superior of Lieut. William L. Calley Jr., the army platoon leader charged with premeditated murder in the deaths of at least 109 civilians at My Lai March 16, 1968.

The inquiry is an attempt to determine if a brigade-level investigation last year into reports civilians were killed unnecessarily was whitewashed. Interviewed Wednesday were five officers who were in Vietnam at the time of the incident.

A spokesman for the board, headed by Lt.-Gen. William R. Peers, said it was not satisfied with the scope and nature of the investigation by the 11th Infantry Brigade of the army's American Division, which concluded 20 civilians had been killed.

INDIAN WRITER CHARGES:

Our People Worse Off Than Whooping Cranes

The Times today begins an exclusive three-part condensation of Indian author Harold Cardinal's controversial book, The Unjust Society, which was released to bookstores across Canada this morning.

In it, Cardinal delivers a harsh condemnation of the Canadian social and government systems calculated to stir the public to action against what he contends are gross injustices done to the native peoples of this country.

Cardinal, born in 1945, was raised on the Sucker Creek Reserve in Northern Alberta and is now president of the Indian Association of Alberta.

By HAROLD CARDINAL

Now, at a time when our fellow Canadians consider the promise of the Just Society, once more the Indians of Canada are betrayed by a program which offers nothing better than cultural genocide.

The new Indian policy promulgated by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's government, under the auspices of Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, and Deputy Minister John A. MacDonald, and presented in June of 1969, is a thinly disguised program of extermination through assimilation. For the Indian to survive, says the government in effect, he must become a good little brown white man.

The Americans to the south of us used to have a saying: "The only good Indian is a dead Indian." The MacDonald - Chretien doctrine would amend this but slightly to, "The only good Indian is a non-Indian."

The federal government, instead of acknowledging its legal and moral responsibilities to the Indians of Canada and honoring the treaties that the Indians signed in good faith, now proposes to wash its hands of Indians entirely, passing the buck to the provincial governments.

As an Indian writing about a situation I am living and experiencing in common with thousands of our people it is my hope that this book will open the eyes of the Canadian public to its shame. In these pages I hope to cut through bureaucratic double-talk to show what it means to be an Indian in Canada.

It sometimes seems to Indians that Canada shows more interest in preserving its rare whooping cranes than its Indians. And Canada, the Indian notes, does not ask its cranes to Canada geese. It just wants to preserve them as whooping cranes.

Indians hold no grudge against the big, beautiful, nearly extinct birds, but we would like to know how they managed their deal. Whooping cranes can remain whooping cranes, but Indians are to become brown white men.

The contrast in the situatikn is an insult to our people. Indians have aspirations, hopes and dreams, but becoming white men is not one of them.

INDIAN MORTALITY RATE RISING

VANCOUVER (CP) — The mortality rate of Indians in Canada is rising, says a letter distributed to regional directors of the federal health and welfare and Indian affairs departments.

The letter, signed by G. Graham Cummings of Ottawa for the acting director-general of medical services, Ottawa, was published Wednesday in The First Citizen, a Vancouver-based native-oriented bi-monthly newspaper.

The letter, dated Oct. 20, said the Indian mortality rate increased 8 per cent from 1965 to 1968.

"Increased mortality among young Indians since 1965 has more than offset decreases in infant and childhood mortality and increased the standardized Indian death rate," the letter said.

"If Indian infant mortality remains cause for concern at a rate of 2.5 times the national infant mortality rate, Indian mortality between the ages of 20 to 39 years has ranged from over three to five times the comparable national . . . mortality rates.

"The situation among Indians in British Columbia remains in all respects the worst in Canada.

"By contrast, Indian death rates and patterns of mortality in Quebec differ hardly at all from those of all residents of that province and the crude death rates for Indians in the Maritime provinces better the provincial rates.

Warm Clothing Need 'Urgent'

Winters are cold in Korea.

There have been cases of entire families freezing to death because of a lack of warm clothing.

This winter is going to seem especially cold for several thousand families who lost their homes and all their possessions in disastrous floods in September.

Emergency feeding and shelter has been provided but the need for warm clothing and quilts is still urgent.

CLOTHING

A small dedicated group of Victorians work year-round to mend, pack and ship clothing to Korea for the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada.

In November, a shipment of 3,543 pounds of clothing and quilts was sent from the USC depot at 2333 Government St.

The USC Victoria work group under chairman Mrs. E. G. Woodward is looking for clothing donations during the Children of Asia campaign now under way.

There are a few basic rules.

The USC sends only warm, practical and wearable clothing overseas.

"We are pleased to get any used clothing but we would appreciate it if they are clean," said Mrs. Woodward.

Men's trousers and children's clothing top the list of needed articles. Women's clothing, other than dresses of

Bonner to Testify On Business Links

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Bonner, former attorney-general of British Columbia whose name has been linked with the administrator of the B.C. Brewers' Institute, has been called to testify before the B.C. Liquor Inquiry Commission.

Arthur Fouks, institute administrator, earlier told the inquiry that he and Bonner have been partners in an apartment building for about 2½ years.

Bonner, now a senior executive with MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., resigned his portfolio May 27, 1968.

The attorney-general's department is responsible for the provincial Liquor Act. The Brewers' Institute is an organization formed by the province's four major breweries—Carlings, O'Keefe's, Labatts and Molsons.

Bonner said Wednesday night in an interview there was "no question" that Fouks was his business partner, but he said the apartment building they own is "a family estate matter on both sides."

"We are not in business in the commercial sense of the word," he said.

Bonner said there was no conflict of interest when he was attorney-general.

CEASEFIRE IN VIETNAM

Shots Stop for Christmas

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government today announced a 24-hour ceasefire for Christmas and another one for New Year's.

President Nguyen Van Thieu's office said the Christmas ceasefire would begin at 6 p.m. Dec. 24 (5 a.m. EST) and end at 6 p.m. Christmas Day. The announcement said the New Year ceasefire would run from 6 p.m. Dec. 31 to 6 p.m. Jan. 1.

A United States mission spokesman said American forces also would abide by the ceasefires, as with previous Christmas and New Year truces.

Last year, the South Vietnamese announced a ceasefire for Christmas but refused to call one for New Year's Day.

The announcement of the ceasefires came shortly after the U.S. command disclosed that 70 Americans were killed in Vietnam last week, one of the lowest weekly death tolls of the war. But the 1,049 Americans wounded pushed total U.S. battlefield casualties in the war past the 300,000-mark to 300,829.

South Vietnamese casualty totals also were down last week, with the government reporting 373 of its soldiers killed and 953 wounded.

Headquarters said 2,177 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were killed. The week before these death tolls were 567 government soldiers and 3,220 guerrillas killed.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1969 —PAGE 15

'DON'T TELL US WHAT WE CAN DO WITH OUR DAY'

ISSUE SPLITS CHURCHES

Support Seems Strong for 'Open Sunday'

There appears to be a strong feeling among Greater Victoria voters that, while they might not particularly favor paid Sunday sports and entertainment, they oppose being told what they can not do with their Sundays.

Voters in the four core municipalities have a chance to vote for or against the issue Saturday.

British Columbia municipalities, outside Vancouver which operates on its own charter, were given the right to put the question under an Act passed during the last legislative session.

Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils have each given the "open Sunday" bylaw three readings. Before they can give it a fourth and final reading — whether for or against — the issue must receive a 60-per-cent vote in favor Saturday.

So, even should the vote "yes" be 60 per cent or better, councils will still make up their own minds, although voter reaction will no doubt bear strongly on their decision. Should the vote be less than 60 per cent, the idea is ditched for another year at least.

And, although it will affect movie theatres, the vote on entertainment after 1:30 p.m. will likely not mean much change for other ventures which have quietly operated on Sundays for some time.

The Victoria Symphony Society regularly holds Sunday concerts — with paid admission — and paid exhibition games on Sunday are not uncommon in Victoria's city-owned Memorial Arena. Now being advertised is a Dec. 21 — that's a Sunday — hockey game between Russia and Canada.

"I personally prefer Sunday the way it is," said Dennis Pearce, 1180 Hollis. "But I think people have the right to choose for themselves how they will spend a holiday — especially when they're willing to pay for it.

"I'd hate to see Sunday turned into Saturday and I don't think that will happen. It's just a matter of adding movies and Sunday games to the symphony concerts that are already permitted."

And, after some debate, the Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night came out in support of the bylaw.

Several delegates voiced concern that passage of the bylaw would increase Sunday employment and possibly some day permit other commercial enterprises such as stores and industries to remain open.

Wages and working conditions should be safeguarded, and when an employee is required to work Sunday there should be provision for compensating time off, delegates said.

Retail Clerks' Union delegate John Nicol described some of the pitfalls of "open Sunday" as experienced in the U.S., where family life is disrupted, there is no day of rest and workers become disgusted with the "rat race."

Among other area voters canvassed, Victoria builder Matthew Paine said a man who works six days a week is entitled to relax in his own way on Sunday.

"Sunday is a day of recreation which means re-creation—a renewal of mind and body. Many find re-creation in church; others at a symphony concert, a football game or a movie show.

"The important thing is that they have the right to choose."

Mrs. Clara Hill Maunsell, Victoria teacher and poet, said people with religious feeling should be able to go to church in the morning and attend public entertainments in the afternoon and evening.

Salesman Philip L. Hutchins, 1127 Douglas, said the Lord's Day Act is out of date.

"It belongs to the days when North America was largely an agricultural community, with hangovers from the Puritans of New England. And even then it was hypocritical. They said we mustn't work on Sundays, but there were still cows to be milked and chores to be done."

The projectionist at a Victoria theatre said:

"I'd rather not work on Sunday even if it means double pay and a day off during the week. But if people want Sunday movies, I guess they're entitled to them."

Speaking for the Greater Victoria Council of Churches, Canon Grahame Baker issued a statement:

"The Sabbath is to the Christian a day of worship and re-creation. It is a great boon to mankind and I assume all Christians will wish to honor the Sabbath in their own lives.

"However, it is not practical in the 20th century for Christians to try and legislate for those who do not hold the same viewpoint."

Baker said Victoria is "two-faced" as regards to Sunday.

"If I happen to enjoy the symphony concert I can have that enjoyment on the Sabbath; if I enjoy films or sports I am not allowed to enjoy them.

"This seems to be very unfair."

Canon Baker said while some Christians insist people should not work on Sunday, they are "quite happy" to have bus drivers, telephone operators, waitresses and restaurant employees attend to their needs."

"I have never heard anyone suggest that buses should stop and electricity be cut off because they force people to work on the Sabbath."

Rev. William Bahan, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene and spokesman for 30 churches in the Greater Victoria Evangelical Pastors Fellowship, said a "yes" vote will be bad for everyone. We need one day a week when we can relax ourselves, bodily and mentally, from the daily toil."

A committee representing the Presbyterian Church on Vancouver Island unanimously opposed the bylaw and, in a resolution, "urges all our people to oppose the introduction of Sunday sport and Sunday entertainment."

Scott Can't Withdraw Says Municipal Act

Civic Election Watch

By JIM HUME

Mayoralty candidate William Scott cannot withdraw from the Victoria campaign.

Once a candidate has officially entered the race, he has 24 hours after nominations close in which to change his mind. After that, like it or not, he's in the fight all the way.

The rules and regulations are laid down in the Municipal Act, Section 67, subsection 1.

And that means that while William Scott may dramatically announce that he has withdrawn from the contest, his name will be on the ballot paper come Saturday.

The Act is quite specific: "Any candidate may withdraw within 24 hours of the close of nominations, but not afterwards."

Scott said he is pledging his support to candidate Courtney Haddock, who is being opposed by Ald. Ian Stewart and Ald. Robert Baird. Neither Scott nor Haddock could be reached for comment today.

In 1961 Scott pulled 1,356 votes when seeking an aldermanic seat. In 1966 he increased his support polling 1,483 votes, again in the aldermanic race.

On Saturday, with a tight three-way race in the offing, that could be the difference.

Indications are that it will be tight right down to the wire.

RECORD DAY

Wednesday returning officer Morran Waller and his assistant George Merz conducted the first day of advance polling. Significantly they recorded 48 votes, an all-time record for the advance.

In recent years a total of 70-75 voters for three days of advance polling has been the high. More than half that total on the first day suggests the Victorians will turn out in record numbers two days from now.

Overshadowed by the mayoralty campaigns in Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Sidney have been the struggles of aldermanic candidates.

On the basis of campaigns, past experience, prominence and community-service records, informed observers of Greater Victoria politics see the trends moving this way:

In Victoria with four seats vacant and eight contestants, incumbent Clyde Savage and ex-council member Hugh Ramsay are emerging as favorites. Peter Pollen and A. O. Hood should pick off the other two seats although Ove Witt, who came close last year, could provide the upset.

EDGE TO CUTHBERT

Esquimalt: Three seats, four candidates. Incumbent Arthur Cuthbert has the edge. Kenneth Hill and Arthur Mebs should take the other two seats.

Oak Bay: a scramble for three seats by 11 candidates. With no incumbents seeking re-election the race is wide-open. No heavy forecasting here, but look for Brian Smith, Brian Lawless, former alderman William Wade and Dr. Alan Hoey to be among the front runners.

Saanich: the only core municipality without a mayoralty election offers four seats to nine candidates. The four incumbents seeking another term — Alderman William Noel, William Campbell, Foster Isherwood and Edith Gunning — should be safe. But don't be surprised if John Roberts or Vincent Sullivan manage at least one upset.

Sidney: two seats, five candidates, no incumbents. Norma Sealey should make it back on past experience. Hugh Hollingworth could be her council companion.

SWEET SMELL OF TROUBLE is demonstrated by Saanich Constable Dave McGregor as he burns marijuana sample while student Marilyn Sluggett watches during drug classroom discussion at Claremont High School today.

Oh! That Word!

Author Farley Mowat was in Victoria today promoting a new book and never crying "progress."

"I don't know of a more mis-used word," he said. "In the name of progress we have polluted our rivers, our air and destroyed wildlife resources in many parts of Canada."

He spent the afternoon at three downtown bookstores autographing copies of his recently-published "The Boat Who Wouldn't Float," an entertainment about an old two-master he found at Muddy Hole in Newfoundland.

Of Victorians, he said, "I hear you all are dedicated to progress. You wait—you will make a muck of things here. That's why I'm not sure of coming here. I hate to see the beauty of the natural resources of a province gradually destroyed."

POLICE SPEARHEAD DRUG EDUCATION

This Squad Doesn't 'Bust' Kids

By DON VIPOND

He was 14½ years old, a good scholar, fine athlete, with ambition.

That was a year ago and he still has ambition — he wants to go to Montreal to push "pot."

He's not in school any-more. He dropped out after almost being expelled. And to hell with sports, man.

"We still see him around and talk to him," Saanich police Sgt. Bill Chisholm said this morning. "He admits freely he's dropping acid now."

Chisholm and Constable Dave McGregor were talking to a class at Claremont High School, boys and girls mostly in Grade 12.

They've been taking their film, Marijuana, into classes, detailing some of their experiences from the local drug scene, answering questions.

They bring a big display board — pot, hash, the kinds of pipes users employ, all the pills, acid, crystal plus the hard stuff, H (for Heroin). Everything on that board is the real thing, much of it seized in local "busts," or raids.

The schools invite the police and their presentation is low key, as factual as they can make it.

The boy Chisholm mentioned in passing lives in Saanich and is a fact.

The officers say that a lot of research is still under way on marijuana. There's no proof at the moment that it is more harmful —even as harmful — as cigarettes for many people.

But we know cigarettes are killers, and do two wrongs make a right?

One thing is certain about marijuana. It's part of an environment which leads to other drugs. To back that up, the film goes to a narcotics rehabilitation centre to ask recuperating addicts how many started on pot.

Ninety-five per cent of them say it all began with marijuana.

The chat produces some intriguing items:

Five local drug addicts, aged 24 to 30, have died in the past two years.

Hashish is the big interest locally at the moment. It is refined marijuana, six times as powerful.

If you set out to buy marijuana, you're likely to get stung with a baggie of alfalfa.

Chisholm said the police don't just enforce laws, they're available to help.

"Give us a call and we can talk things over. You don't have to give your name or address."

Big Stink Is Sewer Lack Not Old Tanks—Whitbread

Instead of raising a stink about septic tanks, anti-pollution groups should be informing the public of the need for sewer systems," Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said today.

Whitbread, senior medical health officer for the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Health Board, was replying to a charge Wednesday by a Glen Lake property owner that governments are "morally wrong" in not conducting periodic checks on all septic tanks in British Columbia.

Schoolteacher Jim London asked the Victoria branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control to demand regular three-year checks on all septic tanks.

"The situation is appalling," he said.

London said many of the 55 property owners around Glen Lake have not had their septic tanks cleaned out since they were installed 20 years ago.

Said Whitbread: "If he's so annoyed about the septic tanks, why doesn't he get out and promote sewer systems?" said Whitbread.

STAFF SHORTAGE

"It's ridiculous for us to attempt to check every individual septic tank in this area. We just don't have the staff."

Whitbread added there have been no complaints about sewage leaking into Glen Lake.

London said he had no proof that effluent is seeping into the lake but that it is shocking that nobody ever checked septic tanks.

"Governments check cars and all kinds of insignificant things but when it comes to something important, like pollution they don't bother."

The SPEC executive decided to investigate legislation concerning septic tanks.

"If there is no legislation regarding inspections we'll ask for it," said SPEC vice-president David Dunsmuir. "And if there is legislation we'll go after some teeth for it."

Whitbred said SPEC should get out with their banners and try to convince the people of View Royal and Central Saanich of the importance of Saturday's sewer referendum.

Arthur Mayse . . .

IN THE YEARS WHEN convicted and uncommuted murderers were hanged, I was sometimes assigned to help cover spring or fall assizes. If nothing else, those sessions taught me that in crime as in life, the shadings between black and white are infinite.

From my observation post behind an Assize Court press table, I was forced to realize that even murder has its gradations.

If black as we see it is merely the absence of any redeeming color, the slayer who plotted coldly and slew deliberately was dark-hued indeed. But, though his victim was no less dead, the murderer who struck in haste and repented at leisure often had for his hue a dull, sad grey.

One of these who blundered into the deadly web was a fisherman whose boat was his home until he met and fell pathetically in love with a woman in her late twenties. She had a child by a marriage no longer operative, and if she didn't actually promote a liaison with Joe Zebb, she offered no discouragement.

The gods to whom we mortals are but as flies for their sport rang down the curtain on the first act of the dismal play a few months later. In centre-stage, at the foot of her own too-popular stairs, the woman died of a stab-wound to her heart.

Vancouver police found Zebb with almost ridiculous ease. He had returned to his boat and there he huddled, with blood on his shore-going suit. Zebb gave no trouble. He produced a bloodied fish-knife and, almost before a warning could be delivered, launched into a confused and rambling admission of guilt.

They took him in. From that point, each step fetched him closer to the gallows.

"Hell," his shocked partner maintained, "Joe wouldn't kill a fly! If I'd been around, I'd have taken him off and got him good and drunk."

But he wasn't there, and Zebb, a man distraught, returned to the East End apartment, where he killed his butterfly.

First came the inquest. A preliminary hearing followed. On the strength of evidence presented, a lower court judge decreed that Zebb should stand trial.

The case was added to the spring assizes calendar. Joe was returned behind bars to wait.

The courtroom where his fate was decided smelled of old varnish. Its ceiling was lofty, its furnishings of heavy oak, and its walls, as I remember them, were panelled in dark wood. Even though I came to it as an observer, I could never enter that place without a slight shiver.

Zebb, his face paler than it had been when last I saw him, looked curiously out of place in the law's arena. He was a small man; the provincial policemen in Jack Canuck uniforms who fetched him up from below made him appear smaller still. He seemed unaware of the Supreme Court judge in his big oak-and-leather chair upon the dias, or the lawyers busy at their tables, or later of the jury selected for his trial.

He stared straight ahead of him. His partner, who came each day to sit among the gallery that a murder trial attracts, watched him with a worried eye. They were friends, they had worked the troller together for years, and their partnership was approaching dissolution.

The trial plodded its methodical way from medical evidence through to the judge's charge to the jury.

It was a simple enough story. Zebb, in a fool's paradise, had given the woman new clothes, furniture, household appliances and so on. As he saw it, she and her child were his family, and he meant to provide for them.

To come in from a trip and find himself not only betrayed but laughed at had been too much for him. Even then, he hadn't meant to kill her.

However, the reef that the defence could not weather was premeditation. Zebb had threatened. (Not her, but the other guy, he maintained.) He had gone back to his boat, returned with the knife, and while legally sane, struck the death-blow.

So to grim sentencing day, and on to the final scene.

A black-bordered invitation to be an offical witness was up for grabs, but I wanted no part of that assignment. Although we had never exchanged a word, it is hard to follow a man's journey through the processes of law without some feeling of involvement.

The reporter who covered the hanging told me that it was a notably neat job. But what stuck in my mind was this conviction. Except for a chance meeting with the wrong woman, and his partner's absence at a crucial moment, Joe Zebb would never have stretched a rope.

Far East Witnessing 'Agonizing Death' of Ideology

By STANLEY KARNOW

TAIPEI (WP) — This island redoubt of Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese nationalist regime is a good spot to observe in microcosm a phenomenon that is taking place thoughout the far east.

The phenomenon is the gradual, agonizing death of ideology and its replacement by a fresh drive for the material benefits that the contemporary world has to offer.

In short, lofty doctrines and magic slogans and grandoise promises have lost their appeal. Instead, Asians want air conditioners, television sets, refrigerators and motorcycles if not automobiles — and they want them now.

This shift in values has frequently occurred amid radical and violent convulsions that swept away the old gods that failed. For in effect, these new aspirations are symptomatic of deep and sometimes traumatic social change.

In Japan, the atomic holocaust at Hiroshima destroyed the concept of Bushido, the mystical military tradition, and turned the Japanese into a nation of dynamic rotarians.

The cloudy formulas purveyed by Indonesia's former president Sukarno dissolved in an eruption that cost the lives of a half-million people suspected of Communist affiliations while the war has given Vietnam a "Honda economy" in which the motorcycle symbolizes success.

Even Communist China has not escaped the trend. To a significant extent, the turbulent cultural revolution was Mao Tse-Tung's final and fruitless effort to impose his utopian ideals on a country that is inexorably sliding toward Soviet-style revisionism.

Here on Taiwan, where Chiang and his remnant legions found refuge after their defeat by the Communists two decades ago, the same drift away from dogma has been going on.

To be sure, the aged generalissimo never misses a chance to intone his official ideolgy, which asserts his claim to be the legitimate ruler of all China and his vow to recover the vast land that lies across the strait.

More and more over the years, though, Chiang's ideology has acquired a faded quality until today his rhetoric sounds like some kind of religious incantation to which everyone genuflects but nobody really believes.

Hollow as it may be, however, Chiang's illusion contributes to the current stability and prosperity of this island. Without it, several observers here contend, Taian could well face an explosion.

What makes this situation potentially volatile is the presence here of two different populations, each with its distinct set of habits and hopes.

On the one hand, there are 11 million Taiwanese, whose ancestors originally came here from China in the 17th century. Almost Calvinist in their devotion to hard work, they have transformed Taiwan into an impressive industrial area and their aim is to build up their power further.

Living among them are some two million mainland Chinese who fled here with Chiang. Though they dominate the government and army, they have never quite adapted themselves to this exile, and their only dream is to return to China.

Barely below the surface are latent tensions between the Taiwanese and mainlanders that are, in a curious way, kept in check by Chinag's ideology.

The return-to-China litany bolsters the mainlanders dream that they will someday go home. It reassures the Taiwanese, who feel secure as long as the mainlanders are preoccupied with that reverie.

But two future developments are bound to alter this state of affairs. One is the liklihood that a majority of the United Nations general assembly will vote in favor of the Chinese Communists. The other is the certainty that Chiang, now 82, will die.

A U.N. setback would shatter the nationalists illusion that they represent China and could, consequently, uncork the frustrations that they have bottled up for 20 years.

Chiang's death would bring to the fore his son and heir, Chiang Ching-Kuo, whose authority might be challenged by rival generals. Equally unsettling is the possibility that Ching-Kuo who suffers from diabetes, will not long survive his father.

In either event, the prospect is strong that the tensions between the mainlanders and Taiwanese could emerge in open hostilities.

Thus the ideology that has sustained this tight little island may well meet its ultimate end with a bang. And the end of an illusion could be the beginning of turmoil.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

is almost as bad as another. Channel 11 offers Whirlpool, a 1959 English drama, at 11:30. to midnight on Channels 6 and 8 it's a 1945 drama. Leave Her to Heaven. And Channel 5 at 1:05 a.m. dusts off another 1945 number, a western comedy titled Under Western Skies. So take your choice.

DIAMOND LIL'S. 10:30, Channel 8. Banjo player Maurice Bolyer and singer Doug Chamberlain join the regulars, Vanda King, Tommy Common and the orchestra.

BONANZA. 9, Channel 2. A better-than-average episode, it's a comic script written by costar Michael Landon, who also directs it. Hoss Cartwright finds himself in hot water when tall tale teller Salty Hubbard spreads the word he's a notorious bank robber.

FAMILY AFFAIR. 7, Channel 8; 7:30, Channel 7, Pleasant outing, thanks to a Chinese number one boy called Ho who arrives in New York from Hong Kong with the idea of working for the family. Ho jostles with French during his stay, but does so well, the Englishman feels he's no longer wanted and submits his resignation. There's the usual happy ending with cries of "We love you French," yet the main interest is Ho, a likeable character with an expressive face.

IT TAKES A THIEF. 7, Channel 6; 10, Channel 4. "The Second Time Around." Fred Astaire, in the role of Robert Wagner's debonair father, pays a return visit to the show and his presence makes the outing worthwhile. The counterfeit villains who plagued Alistair and Al Mundy some episodes back, show up again and mark father and son for death. Astaire's calculated charm and Wagner's casual style work well together.

THURSDAY NIGHT. 10, Channels 2 and 6. Rising Sun is the title for this hour-long documentary, which examines Japan's emergence as a top power in the Far East. Included are filmed excerpts from Tora! Tora! Tora!, the American movie recreation of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

DEAN MARTIN. 8:30, Channel 8; 10, Channel 5. Romy Schneider, Milburn Stone of "Gunsmoke," and Nancy Wilson are the main attractions of the hour. Miss Schneider tries vocalizing with a version of "Ain't Misbehavin'," and plays a customer in a clothing store skit having language problems with salesmen Dean Martin and Charles Nelson Reilly. Country doctor Milburn Stone is backed by the Martin girls for "Lida Rose," and lists a variety of "spoonerisms" with his host. Nancy Wilson and Dino kid some TV inanities, Nancy sings 'Son of a Preacher Man," and Reilly returns to portray a flower store salesman going crazy over an order.

JIM NABORS. 8, Channel 7; 9:30, Channel 12. A Southern hour with Jim and Mississippi's Bobbie Gentry, singing about their land. In a cornpone sketch, Bobbie plays a local belle who's after handsome Nabors, and she appears in the big finale on mountain tunes. Nabors sings "Try to Remember" and "Somewhere," and in the weekly bording house segment, Jim constructs a burglar alarm that works especially well on relative Frank Sutton.

IRONSIDE. 8:30, Channel 5. "L'Chayim." Good episode. A Torah is stolen from a synagogue, and since the Chief knows the Rabbi who was assaulted during the theft, he becomes involved in the case. It turns into a neat switch on the stock kidnapping plot when the thieves decide to ransom the Torah back to the synagogue. Dave Opatoshu is ideally cast as the Rabbi.

EXOTIC ACTRESS Romy Schneider makes her singing debut tonight on The Dean Martin Show. (See listing opposite.)

THIS IS TOM JONES. 7:30, Channel 8; 9, Channel 4. Janis Joplin and Glen Campbell join our host tonight, singing tunes like "You Came A Long Way from St. Louis" (Jones and Campbell), "Someday Soon" (Glen), "Little Girl Blue" (Janis Joplin), and "Raise Your Hand" (Jones and Joplin). For the comedy interlude, The Committee entertains in its customary satirical vein.

THE UNDERWORLD OF JACQUES COUSTEAU. 7:30, Channel 4. "The Desert Whales." (Repeat). In case you missed this show on whales last October, tune in for a big winner tonight. Cameras track grey whales off the California coast, heading for Mexican breeding grounds where divers record the leviathan mating act. Crew members are unusually bold—buzzing around whales in little boats. One gets flattened, and others perform a touching rescue mission with a dehydrated baby stranded on a sand bar. This Red Cross effort for the baby gives the hour an emotional climax, for a change, and the sight of whales surfacing like huge periscopes after feeding on the lagoon bottoms is fascinating.

SOCIAL SECURITY MEASURES

Ottawa Vetoes Power Sharing

DEGRADATION OF INDIANS in Canada as attacked by author Harold Cardinal in The Unjust Society is graphically illustrated by this decrepit hovel, a two-room shack without running water or sanitary facilities, home for a mother and father and their nine children on a B.C. reserve.

Status Quo Favored

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government today again rejected a Quebec demand that all social security measures be placed under provincial control.

Also rejected was the demand that Ottawa make payments—such as family allowances — to the provinces rather than to individuals.

A working paper prepared for the fourth federal-provincial constitutional conference here Monday to Wednesday said transfer of family and youth allowances and old age pensions to the provinces would cost the federal treasury more than $2,400,000,000 annually.

The paper also maintained that acts of Parliament in the field of retirement pensions —for example, the Canada Pension Plan—should over-ride provincial statutes such as the Quebec Pension Plan.

"In respect of retirement insurance and associated benefits Parliament's powers ought to be paramount," the federal paper said.

Apart from this proposal for additional federal powers, Ottawa appeared to come out in favor of the status quo in the field of distribution of powers as they apply to social services and income support.

The paper said the provinces ought to have exclusive jurisdiction over social services.

SUGGESTS EQUAL POWERS

Parliament and the provincial legislatures should have equal powers to make general income support payments to persons. Examples of such payments are family allowances and old age pensions.

Ottawa and the provinces should continue to have "concurrent powers" in public income insurance measures such as old age pensions and supplementary benefits. Unemployment insurance would continue exclusively federal, workmen's compensation exclusively provincial.

ONLY TENTATIVE

The paper emphasized that the federal proposals are tentative, conditional on agreement on final distribution of powers and are not intended to prejudice existing programs.

It noted that Quebec has asked that all social security measures be placed under exclusive provincial jurisdiction.

It immediately rejected the proposal that Ottawa make payments to the governments of the provinces rather than to the people.

"Bluntly, a sense of community is less likely to exist where taxes are imposed to help governments rather than to help people. . . .

"The provinces would be under no obligation to use these grants for the purpose of supporting the incomes of the poor. They could use them instead for any purpose including in-

YARD SUSPENDS FOUR POLICEMEN

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard today suspended from active duty four detectives, three of whom were alleged by a London newspaper to have accepted bribes from criminals.

A Scotland Yard spokesman identified the four suspended officers as Det. Inspector Bernard J. Robson, Det. Sgt. Gordon F. Harris, Det. Sgt. John Symonds and Det. Officer Harold Hughes. All were taken off duty today the spokesman said.

Canada, Britain Clash on Cutback

Times News Services

BRUSSELS—Canada and Britain clashed here Wednesday during the NATO defence planning committee meeting, over a proposed Canadian reduction of forces in Europe.

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux took exception to the way British defence chief Denis Healey spoke of the Canadian halving of land forces in West Germany and talked back at him in what was described as "strong and eloquent" language.

The words exchanged at the closed meeting were not on record but Cadieux said he considered that by inference Healey was being critical of the Canadian move.

A year ago when word of the impending Canadian reduction became public Healey in a briefing to British correspondents accused Canada of "passing the buck" to her allies.

Wednesday he told the NATO defence ministers Britain hopes to ship her 5,000-man 6th Brigade to West Germany soon and was reported to have inferred that Canada was taking out her entire brigade group there and that the Britons would replace it.

Warm Clothing Need 'Urgent'

Winters are cold in Korea.

There have been cases of entire families freezing to death because of a lack of warm clothing.

This winter is going to seem especially cold for several thousand families who lost their homes and all their possessions in disastrous floods in September.

Emergency feeding and shelter has been provided but the need for warm clothing and quilts is still urgent.

A small dedicated group of Victorians work year-round to mend, pack and ship clothing to Korea for the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada.

In November, a shipment of 3,543 pounds of clothing and quilts was sent from the USC depot at 2333 Government St.

The USC Victoria work group under chairman Mrs. E. G. Woodward is looking for clothing donations during the Children of Asia campaign now under way.

There are a few basic rules. The USC sends only warm, practical and wearable clothing overseas.

"We are pleased to get any used clothing but we would appreciate it if they are clean," said Mrs. Woodward.

Men's trousers and children's clothing top the list of needed articles. Women's clothing, other than dresses of

INDIAN WRITER CHARGES:

Our People Worse Off Than Whooping Cranes

The Times today begins an exclusive three-part condensation of Indian author Harold Cardinal's controversial book, The Unjust Society, which was released to bookstores across Canada this morning.

In it, Cardinal delivers a harsh condemnation of the Canadian social and government systems calculated to stir the public to action against what he contends are gross injustices done to the native peoples of this country.

Cardinal, born in 1945, was raised on the Sucker Creek Reserve in Northern Alberta and is now president of the Indian Association of Alberta.

By HAROLD CARDINAL

Now, at a time when our fellow Canadians consider the promise of the Just Society, once more the Indians of Canada are betrayed by a program which offers nothing better than cultural genocide.

The new Indian policy promulgated by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's government, under the auspices of Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, and Deputy Minister John A. MacDonald, and presented in June of 1969, is a thinly disguised program of extermination through assimilation. For the Indian to survive, says the government in effect, he must become a good little brown white man.

The Americans to the south of us used to have a saying: "The only good Indian is a dead Indian." The MacDonald-Chretien doctrine would amend this but slightly to, "The only good Indian is a non-Indian."

The federal government, instead of acknowledging its legal and moral responsibilities to the Indians of Canada and honoring the treaties that the Indians signed in good faith, now proposes to wash its hands of Indians entirely, passing the buck to the provincial governments.

As an Indian writing about a situation I am living and experiencing in common with thousands of our people it is my hope that this book will open the eyes of the Canadian public to its shame. In these pages I hope to cut through bureaucratic double-talk to show what it means to be an Indian in Canada.

It sometimes seems to Indians that Canada shows more interest in preserving its rare whooping cranes than its Indians. And Canada, the Indian notes, does not ask its cranes to become Canada geese. It just wants to preserve them as whooping cranes.

Indians hold no grudge against the big, beautiful, nearly extinct birds, but we would like to know how they managed their deal. Whooping cranes can remain whooping cranes, but Indians are to become brown white men.

The contrast in the situation is an insult to our people. Indians have aspirations, hopes and dreams, but becoming white men is not one of them.

INDIAN MORTALITY RATE RISING

VANCOUVER (CP) — The mortality rate of Indians in Canada is rising, says a letter distributed to regional directors of the federal health and welfare and Indian affairs departments.

The letter, signed by G. Graham Cummings of Ottawa for the acting director-general of medical services, Ottawa, was published Wednesday in The First Citizen, a Vancouver-based native-oriented bi-monthly newspaper.

The letter, dated Oct. 20, said the Indian mortality rate increased 8 per cent from 1965 to 1968.

DECREASES OFFSET

"Increased mortality among young Indians since 1965 has more than offset decreases in infant and childhood mortality and increased the standardized Indian death rate," the letter said.

"If Indian infant mortality remains cause for concern at a rate of 2.5 times the national infant mortality rate, Indian mortality between the ages of 20 to 39 years has ranged from over three to five times the comparable national . . . mortality rates.

"The situation among Indians in British Columbia remains in all respects the worst in Canada.

"By contrast, Indian death rates and patterns of mortality in Quebec differ hardly at all from those of all residents of that province."

In welfare financin', a fed'ral hand on th' tiller is better than a provincial hand in th' till.

CEASEFIRE IN VIETNAM

Shots Stop for Christmas

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government today announced a 24-hour ceasefire for Christmas and another one for New Year's.

President Nguyen Van Thieu's office said the Christmas ceasefire would begin at 6 p.m. Dec. 24 (2 a.m. PST) and end at 6 p.m. Christmas Day. The announcement said the New Year ceasefire would run from 6 p.m. Dec. 31 to 6 p.m. Jan. 1.

A United States mission spokesman said American forces also would abide by the ceasefires, as with previous Christmas and New Year truces.

Last year, the South Vietnamese announced a ceasefire for Christmas but refused to call one for New Year's Day.

The announcement of the ceasefires came shortly after the U.S. command disclosed that 70 Americans were killed in Vietnam last week, one of the lowest weekly death tolls of the war. But the 1,049 Americans wounded pushed total U.S. battlefield casualties in the war past the 300,000-mark to 300,829.

South Vietnamese casualty totals also were down last week, with the government reporting 373 of its soldiers killed and 953 wounded.

Headquarters said 2,177 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were killed. The week before these death tolls were 567 government soldiers and 3,220 guerrillas killed.
